WONDERFUL OLD MAN.

The President of Mexico is nearly eighty years old, but this has not kept him from becoming a candidate for an eighth term. He was a third-term so long ago that he has probably forgotten all about it. Each time he has put aside his personal preferences and yielded to the solicitations of the people.

The people of Mexico really do desire to see the wonderful old man stay in office. He has inaugurated the reign of law in his country and prosperity followed in the wake. He permits no insurrections and he is a friend of popular education. The people feel that they cannot get along without him, and prosperous Mexico does right to keep him in office while vigor of mind and body remain to him. The trouble is, that when Diaz drops out the country will be perplexed indeed to find a successor. No doubt a capable President can be selected, but it is not all sure that a successor can be selected with a unanimity that will prevent an insurrection. A strong hand will be needed when that change does come.

But he is still in good health, although it was back in 1877 when he first became President as the result of a revolution. He was born in 1831, and he began a military career in the days of Santa Anna. From 1880 to 1888 he went voluntarily out of office. In 1884 he became President, and he has held the office ever since. He has reduced the bonded debt, invited capital to come in to build railroads and establish industries, and he has promoted public education. The country is prosperous and contented under its remarkable executive head, and all hope he will live to serve out his eighth term.

FACTS THAT ARE POINTERS.

If business conditions have not become normal they are steadily improving, and at the rate that iron and steel interests are taking on new life it can not be long before all the wheels of industry are moving. Thousands of wage-earners who had been idle for a year or more have recently found employment, and before another month passes the army of unemployed men will be small in numbers.

Steel products are being sold at low prices, but the fact that there is a healthy demand for them is stimulating to all branches of trade. Iron, steel and the stock market are all business barometers. Pig iron is in good demand and the price has a decided upward tendency. With an increasing demand for finished steel, prices for such will naturally advance. The stock market, the best barometer of all, is strong and upward.

No clear-sighted business man expects to see anything like high pressure prosperity in the immediate future. The country has gone through a year of depression.

A return to normal conditions will be gradual; but better times have already come, and come sooner than some business men had predicted. We will probably find the situation normal by the coming summer or fall and record-breaking prosperity before this time next year.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

S.S.S. HEALS SORES AND ULCERS

S. S. S. heals Sores and Ulcers in the very simplest way. It just goes right down into the blood and removes the cause, and the place is bound to heal because the impurities and morbid matters which have been the means of keeping the ulcer open are no longer absorbed from the blood. External applications of salves, lotions, plasters, etc., can never produce a cure because they do not reach the source of the trouble. At best they can only allay pain or reduce inflammation; such treatment is working on symptoms and not reaching the cause. Every nutritive corpuscle in the blood is weakened or infected, they cannot nourish the fibrous tissue around the place, but instead they constantly discharge into the flesh around the sore a quantity of impure, germ-laden matter which gradually eats into the surrounding healthy tissue and causes the ulcer to enlarge. Since impure blood is responsible for Sores and Ulcers, a medicine that can purify the blood is the only hope of a cure. S. S. S. has long been recognized as the greatest of all blood purifiers, possessing the qualities necessary to remove every impurity from the blood. While curing the sore or ulcer S. S. S. brings about a healthy condition of the flesh by supplying it with rich, healthy blood, and thus makes the cure permanent and lasting. Book on Sores and Ulcers and any medical advice free to all who write.

BAD ARM A HANDICAP

Baseball Player's Whip Rarely Regains Its Strength.

IS TURNER'S ARM GONE?

This Much Discussed Question Causing Cleveland Fans Considerable Worry—Jennings, Cuppy and Others. The Case of Joe Doyle.

Has Terry Turner, the Cleveland American's star shortstop, regained the full use of his great throwing arm? This is a much mooted question, entirely too difficult for solution by the average baseball fan. Late last fall Turner's lameness in his throwing arm forced him to quit the Naps, and early this spring there was some doubt as to whether he would be able to play or not this season, but he finally joined his team and took his regular place in the lineup. Still, his throwing to first causes him considerable pain, and it is doubtful whether he will be able to finish the season out or not. Without the great shortstop in the lineup the Naps will be greatly weakened, even though they have an able substitute in Perring.

TY COBB, DETROIT'S GREAT OUTFIELDER.

[Ty Cobb of the Detroit Americans, who has led the batters in Ban Johnson's circuit for the past year, is again on the road to duplicate his feats of the two previous seasons. In a recent game out of four times at bat Cobb made two three-baggers and two two-base hits.]

It is history in baseball that few men who have trouble with their throwing arm ever regain proper use of that valuable member. In the phraseology of the game, the trouble is known as a "glass arm," and to a ball player a glass arm generally spells the end of his career on the diamond. Take the old Cleveland pitcher, George Cuppy. He had trouble with his wing and tried all the famous specialists in vain. Finally he made a trip to Youngstown and consulted "Bonesetter" Reese. That eminent bone and muscle expert gave Mr. Cuppy's arm several twists and enabled him to secure a major league job and work another year, but the cure was only temporary. The arm finally became so weak that the least effort to throw would result in Cuppy's arm becoming practically lifeless.

Another prominent sufferer in this respect was Hughie Jennings, the present manager of the champion Detroit. Jennings' career as a star was ended long before his time because his arm played out. Today Jennings could probably play the short field as good if not better than many men now holding that position in the big league if he only had his trusty wing back.

Two years ago Clark Griffith while manager of the New York Americans secured Joe Doyle from the Wheeling team. He started his big league career by shutting out Washington and followed this feat by blanking the Clevelanders. In a few weeks Mr. Doyle was the talk of New York. Now Gotham has forgotten there was ever such a pitcher simply because something went wrong with Doyle's arm.

In a game with Detroit last year while delivering the ball to the batter Doyle's arm fell lifeless to his side. He had to leave the game. The best specialist in the east treated him. To try him out he was sent to the Newark team, but he couldn't hold his own in the Eastern league. He was returned to New York. Believing that the climate in the south might help him, he was sent to Atlanta, but the Southern league was too fast for a pitcher who only a short time before was regarded as the sensation of the American league. He has started this season with the New Yorks, with hopes of making a good showing, but it looks very much as if Doyle at the age of twenty-six is through as a player. Truly the life of a ball player is mighty uncertain.

The question naturally arises, What causes young players to lose their throwing arms? Some players contend that exercising the arm to the limit in practice, as was the custom of Jennings and Turner, brings about such accidents, while other players take the opposite view.
