A FLYING START

National Democratic Committee in Fine Shape.

Dozens of Delegations and Hundred of Visitors at Seagirt Daily Confer With Governor Wilson.

New York, August 17.—Heretofore the leaders of the National political campaigns have been well satisfied if their organizations were in good running order by the first or second week in September.

In the remarkable campaign that is now before the American voters there is one incident that the old line politicians are marveling over and that is the condition of the National Democratic Committee.

For more than a week on the fourth and fifth floors of the office building at 200 Fifth Avenue, the National Democratic Committee has been playing in midseason form. The bureau have been organized and manned in each detail. The corps of employees have fallen into their respective duties like old timers.

The average voter who is being appealed to, perhaps does not realize the vast amount of work required to educate him to the views of the respective leaders.

If there is anything in a flying start, Wilson and Marshall have certainly secured that start.

The Republican papers of New York City have commented daily on the scenes of activity around Democratic Headquarters and the deathlike silence that pervades at Republican and Progressive Headquarters. But the Roosevelt Headquarters are showing more activity than the Taft headquarters, but it must be remembered that the "Bull Moosers" are trying to organize a new party and have been unable to launch their campaign plans.

The temporary illness of Chairman W. F. McCombs might have caused a slackening upon the activity of the ordinary day.

But this remarkable campaign man had looked far ahead and the Bureau Chiefs have gone rapidly ahead perfecting their various details.

Vice-Chairman V. S. McAdoo has taken up the duties of Chairman McCombs and will fulfill them for the next week, as Chairman McCombs has been ordered to take a complete rest. His illness was brought about much by the pre-convention contest and then he insisted on giving all his time to the completing of the organizational details at National headquarters.

While Democratic victory is "in the air," none of the various leaders is taking anything for granted. They are organizing and planning to contest every State, every Congressional District, every township.

Senator T. P. Gore of Oklahoma, slowly rocks back and forth in his rocking chair, quietly giving his orders on organization to a score of able assistants. The blind Senator has a cheering word and a smile, or a word of advice, for everyone.

Henry Morganthau, Chairman of the Finance Committee, and Treasurer Stella Wells, have scoured each Department for any false movements, until they have the headquarters organized on a thorough business basis.

The quick start of the Wilson and Marshall forces has resulted in a surprisingly large number of small contributors to the campaign fund. Never in the history of the party have the contributors displayed a greater willingness and enthusiasm than in the present campaign. Contributions as a rule are small, varying from one dollar up, but they are nevertheless welcome to Treasurer Wells.

Down at Sea Girt, Governor Wilson is daily meeting dozens of delegations and hundreds of visitors who are promising him their loyal support. His preliminary speeches of the campaign show his clear grasp of the vital questions before the voters.

"It is not a question of winning now or ever," said Josephus Daniels, Chairman of the Publicity Bureau, "but it is a question of how large and how impressive our victory will be. And here many people say that the Democrats have a better chance this time. We know that. We also know we are going to win. And we also know that we have a surprise for the Republicans and "Bull Moosers" in demonstrating that not a slight majority, but an overwhelming number of people favor Wilson and Marshall."

WITH MRS. HENRY WEIL

AN EVENING OF RARE SOCIAL ENJOYMENT AT HER HOSPITABLE HOME.

Last evening, at her home on Chestnut street, Mrs. Henry Weil entertained a number of young people in honor of her daughter Miss Janet Weil.

The guests enjoyed several delightful hours in social conversation and in musical pastime, after which they were served cream, cake and candies.

Those in attendance were: Misses Amy and Viola Joseph, Florence Nussbaum, of Baltimore, Lou Norwood, Holloway, of Enfield, Allie Freeman, Greenboro, Lou Ola Tuttle, Eunice Bizzell and Janet Butler; Messrs. Paul Garrison, Spicer Holmes, Z. T. Brown, Willie Jenkins, Herndon Tuttle, Lawrence Morgan, Franch Creech, Harrison Yelverton and Thomas Norwood.

THE SILENT SERVANT

Practical Demonstration of the Copeland Automatic Electric Range.

The First Electrically Prepared Banquet Ever Served in the State of North Carolina, tendered to Our City Government.

There was a large crowd present at the first cooking demonstration of the "Silent Servant" at the Southernland-Brinkley building yesterday afternoon and last night which is being held under the supervision of the Carolina Power and Light Company.

The demonstration clearly shows the advantages of cooking with electricity, and points the way to solve the "servant question," which is foremost in the minds of the housewife today—and most perplexing.

This "Silent Servant" cooking apparatus is automatic, and does the work with almost human intelligence.

To have this flawless cooker explained is to realize the truth of the advertising statement, claiming that "you can get breakfast while you sleep, dinner while you shop and supper while you call."

It is a practical truth, and we are pleased to know the housewife of today has this able assistant in preparing the meals for the family.

Mrs. Price, the demonstrating economist, baked biscuits and cakes that were delightful to look upon and delicious to the taste. She prepared the finest candied yams, grits, and other edibles too numerous to mention. All these were prepared for the benefit of the public, to show just what could be accomplished with the "Silent Servant," while the visitors were present, and all deeply impressed.

It is the policy of the Carolina Power and Light Company to hold demonstrations of this sort from time to time to educate the public to the proper use of electricity.

You owe it to yourself, to see this

THE CASE FAIRLY STATED

A Manufacturing Enterprise of Merit in Our midst.

Why Not a Home Exposition Presenting the Manufactured Outputs of Goldsboro's Factories and Emphasizing Our Possibilities.

For some time the Argus has been debating with itself the feasibility of the output of our own factories and the handicraft of individuals engaged in industrial avocations. Such an exposition would be both attractive and instructive to visitors from a distance and would prove nothing but a startling revelation to our own people—more so than to the visitors, for Goldsboro is already regarded abroad for the excellence of its industrial enterprises and manufacturing output; it is only here at home that the town is underestimated. And this, too, to our own detriment, not only as a hold back to our greater community progress, but to individual employment and consequent thrift and affluence as well.

For instance, we have in Goldsboro branch mill No. 5 of the Durham Hosiery Mills, owned and operated by the Messrs. Carr, of Durham. Its output at present is 750 dozen hose a day. The capacity of its present equipment is 1,000 dozen hose a day, a difference between capacity and output of 250 dozen hose daily. This what this loss of 250 dozen hose daily means to the working people of the city alone! And yet we have plenty of unemployed women and children in Goldsboro who could readily find pleasant, profitable, healthful, respectable, clean employment in this mill week in and week out the year round, and supplemented with a profit-sharing fund that stands and grows for the benefit, to shield them from privation in case sickness overtakes them during their service in this mill.

Why is it that the mill does not carry a full output?

Those present were: Misses Taylor, Janet Weil, Amy and Viola Joseph, Lou Norwood, Lou Ola Tuttle, Eunice Bizzell, Florence Nussbaum, of Baltimore, Emma Nelson, of Winston, Allie Freeman, Nellie Witherington, Annie and Margaret Smith.

A feature of last night's demonstration was an "aftermath," so to speak, and one that again characterizes Goldsboro as a leader in big things. It was the first electrically prepared banquet ever served in North Carolina and was tendered by the Carolina Power and Light Company complimentary to His Honor Mayor Higgins the Board of Aldermen and the Board of Public Works, and was one of the most elegant social functions our city has ever known, and its make-up and service marked Mr. J. C. Hoyt, the local manager of the company, not only a born entertainer, but one who adds to his splendid business ability and talent for initiative the genius of adapting himself to any environment and holding the ready interest and responsive good will of all with whom he comes in contact. We say responsive, for he himself impresses you at once with his sincerity of purpose and his capacity for doing things—and doing whatever he undertakes well. He is already proving a valuable adjunct to the business and social life of the city and we feel sure that he will be a live wire in promoting a Bigger, Brighter Better Goldsboro.

Last night's banquet was called at 10:30 o'clock, after the demonstration was concluded for the evening, and was presided over by Mayor Higgins.

played young women and children boys and girls, of Goldsboro must answer for themselves. But the fact remains and the marvel stands that this fine mill is unable to secure capacity help in the community, and has to seek elsewhere for much of its working force.

The Argus is serious and in earnest in bringing this circumstance to the consideration of its many readers among the working people of Goldsboro.

Here is a mill that is constructed on the most approved lines of architecture: It is well lighted, well-ventilated, commodious in its floor capacity as as to obviate crowding of operatives; wash rooms and toilets so arranged that there is absolute privacy and every convenience for both male and female help. The character of the work is light and clean. The employees are required to be respectable and self-respecting before they are engaged, and the personnel of the mill is kept up to this standard; so that to be an employee of this mill means a standing in the community that is unquestioned and lucrative.

This mill is owned, operated and supervised by the Messrs. Carr Brothers, J. S. Carr, Jr., and Clarkborne Carr, of Durham, sons of Gen'l J. S. Carr, who is himself a stock holder in the Durham Hosiery Mills, of which this mill is No. 5, and this fact gives
