State Drainage Convention In Session Here

Goldsboro Accords Characteristic Hospitality to The Notable Gathering

Mrs. Geo. W. Vanderbilt and Daughter Recipients of Social Attentions

The 12th annual convention of the North Carolina Drainage Association met for its first session in the court house in this city this morning at 10 o'clock with its president, ex-Congressman Hon. Jim. H. Small, of Washington, N. C., presiding, who on calling the session to order invited Rev. G. T. Adams, pastor of St. Paul M. E. church to make the invocation, after which Col. Geo. K. Freeman, on behalf of the city and Mr. Edw. M. Land, on behalf of the Chamber of Commerce, both in cordial terms and graceful words welcomed the convention to Goldsboro.

President Small, in his characteristic happy manner and appreciative words acknowledged the well come extended the convention by the city and the Chamber of Commerce, and then addressed the audience and the purpose—the achievements and the hopes of the Association that he has done so much to inaugurate, encourage and promote through the years until today it is recognized throughout the State and the nation as perhaps the most potent factor in the reclaiming of waste and cut-over lands and the increment of the agricultural productivity and consequent wealth of the State.

Mr. Small stressed the necessity and benefits of commensurate drainage of the neglected lands of eastern North Carolina—and the feasibility of bond issues for the purpose. He said that property rights as based on and recognized under the old English common law allowed the owners of property to have their day in court on the question of taxation, and by their own free will they could pledge their property under a cooperative agreement to the integrity of bonds issued by them for improvement of such property, and he argued that the Supreme court had always upheld the legality of such bonds.

He said that already by this cooperative bond issuing measure more than 600,000 acres of waste lands in this State had been reclaimed and made productive lands from which everything of value had been cut away in the form of timber and left barren. These lands, he said, now have an earning power that is yielding not only profit to the owners, but also large returns to the State government in the volume of taxes.

The achievements of the N. C. Drainage Association, he said, are already such as should bring the highest satisfaction to its promoters; but he asserted, this Association has another task ahead of it there are yet many hundreds of thousands of acres of land in North Carolina in dire need of drainage lands that apparently are well cultivated and productive, but which fall utterly if seasons go away. The crops look good in May and may even appear promising in June as well cultivated, but if rains come in excess July and August bring dejection to the owners and dwarfed harvests in the fall destroy their profits and puts them in debt for the cultivation, whereas capillary drainage would have brought different results.

The application of the drainage law, he said, is just as essential where lands are under cultivation as

Senatorial Candidate Withdraws from Race

To the Democratic voters of Wayne county:
Desiring the Bill will of no one and considering the present a unity of all of whom are efficient in their duties, my friends, I decided to withdraw from the race for State Senator hoping that some suitable candidate will be selected to carry out my proposed reforms for the benefit of the overburdened tax payers of Wayne county, both city and county.
What I did to stimulate the interest in both mass meetings was not from selfish motives, but for the general good, and I have no doubt that my labors will bear fruit for times to come. I did not announce my candidacy on my own volition, but the pressure brought upon me by my former friends caused the determination of my formal announcement after a month of careful deliberation.
My platform is approved by the masses and I hope will stimulate others to take up the work where I left off. Henceforth I shall devote all my time for the study of economic questions and whenever needed the public can rely on my cooperation, as in the past, I shall have their interest at heart.
Possessing too much of an independent spirit, I am above the vote buying habit, the tactics now prevailing among various candidates. Furthermore, I am above the situation of politics, and after this brief but profitable experience, would not accept the best office within the gift of the people.
Sincerely and cordially,
ARTHUR ROSCOWIER

EX-PRES OF FRANCE DEAD

Important Meeting Chamber Commerce

All of the business men in Goldsboro who are interested in Goldsboro's tobacco market for 1922, are urged to attend a meeting at the Chamber of Commerce Rooms, tonight at eight P. M.
Co-operative marketing and the auction system of selling tobacco will be discussed; and an active energetic campaign for members must be taken or we must get busy and get a warehouse and buyers under the auction system.
If we sit still longer we will lose both. If you are interested in Goldsboro's Tobacco Market for 1922, be at this meeting.
Chamber of Commerce.

The future of Goldsboro as a tobacco market is in the balance. This fact was brought out most strikingly yesterday at a meeting of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce. As a result the whole situation will be laid before the business men of the city tonight at a meeting of the Chamber the official call for which appears above.

In Goldsboro to go in with the Co-operative Marketing movement fully or only partly? In other cases, what is she going to do to maintain a tobacco market at this place? It is a decisive hour and the decision to be made largely involves the future of the city. The time is passing rapidly and a decision must be reached immediately. This is the purpose of the meeting tonight.

At the meeting of the directors of the Chamber yesterday, Mr. George A. Norwood, president of the Tri-State Tobacco Growers Co-operative Marketing Association laid his views before the gathering. It being a local situation, Mr. Norwood spoke primarily as a business man of Goldsboro, and spoke frankly. He said that the time had come when the business men of Goldsboro must take a position and decide what they are going to do if they expect to have a tobacco market here this year.
He said that as a member of the Association he would prefer that all the interests of Goldsboro go wholeheartedly in the Co-operative movement and see that enough tobacco in this section is under contract to bring all the tobacco of this section to Goldsboro. In case the Goldsboro business men do not wish to do this then they must get busy and provide an auction house and buyers. The interests that have heretofore been active in securing buyers, Mr. Norwood said, were now with the Co-operative movement and this left it to others to provide a local market for unsigned growers if it is proposed that there shall be an independent market.
"With only sixty per cent of the business men opposing the cooperative selling of tobacco, Wilson, Kinston and Greenville, the three big towns nearest Goldsboro, are fighting cooperative marketing with every means within their power.
"Yet with ninety per cent of the business people of Goldsboro estimated to be in favor of Co-operation no active work is being done in its behalf. Not a day passes that Wilson, Greenville and Kinston do not send out some advertising matter opposed to cooperative marketing. Yet Goldsboro's ninety per cent in favor of cooperative marketing sit idle and let their opponents come into Goldsboro tobacco territory and spread false reports about cooperative marketing without doing a thing to stop it or clear up the situation. We need not get out and back up the cooperative plan for this is clearly the time for Goldsboro to become the leading market in this great movement which is bound to be successful. It can't be stopped. We can help it along and help ourselves but we can't stop it even if we wish to. If we are for it we ought to back it up.
"The amount of tobacco which Goldsboro will market will be dependent upon the number of farmers in the cooperative movement. This is

MASONIC BANQUET HELD LAST NIGHT

Last night was most pleasantly celebrated last night by Wayne Lodge No. 112 and Goldsboro Lodge No. 634 with a banquet held in the W. P. Rose warehouse. The hall was charmingly decorated with green pines and evergreens and the long tables were made attractive by candles and bouquets of red roses. Each guest was presented with a red rose boutonniere placed on the program of the evening. Over three hundred and fifty Masons with their wives and friends were served with an appetizing supper by the ladies of First Baptist church.
The toastmaster, Capt. Nathan O'Berry, sounded the keynote of the occasion urging each guest and host to take part in the evening's entertainment. As a start all arose to sing in unison "America." The invocation was made by Rev. G. T. Adams of St. Paul Methodist church. Col. A. C. Davis in well chosen words welcomed the ladies and Mrs. E. E. Griffin most ably and graciously responded for the guests. The toasts of the lodges were made by Mr. G. W. Waters, Jr., for Wayne Lodge No. 112 and by Dr. C. F. Strossinger for Goldsboro Lodge No. 634. Dr. Strossinger emphasized the uplifting features of Masonry and spoke of the hope for a future home for Masons. Rev. Zeno Wall responded in a witty and interesting talk to the toast, "Meaning of Masonry."
Mr. Pat King, the oldest Mason, gave a bright speech and was loudly applauded.
Mr. M. N. Epstein presented the Masonic Emblem, a gift of Past Master Daugherty, and Mr. C. O. Baird made a short speech of acceptance.
The speaker of the evening Mrs. M. A. Ashb-Peck, Grand Matron of the Eastern Star, was enthusiastically received and furthered the cause of the Eastern Star by an interesting account of the work done by the lodges in the orphan homes, old peoples homes and hospitals in the State.
Interspersed with the speeches and toasts were selections by the orchestra, an artistic violin solo by Prof. K. E. Hurst and several songs by a quartette which were greatly appreciated.

Card of Appreciation

The Annual Council of the Diocese of East Carolina has passed into the history of our home city, leaving many pleasant memories of gracious hospitality, renewed friendships, new and delightful acquaintances, as well as a deep store of inspiration for the great work which the church has before it in our beloved state. St. Stephen's parish people, one and all, outdid themselves in their efforts to lighten the burden of the Committee of Arrangements, while our neighbors of other communions vied with each other in housing and providing for the comfort and pleasure of the many guests to the council. To all these, to the courtesy of the Goldsboro press, to the officials of post office and telegraph companies, railroads, clubs and lodges, our thanks and praise are due. We can never forget all these acts of kindness.
In addition to these things our chairman personally wishes to express his appreciation for the labor and services of St. Stephen's Guild, and all the other parish workers and friends whose assistance contributed so largely to the success of the barbecue which he gave to the members of the Council and Congregation.

BOBBED HAIR WORKS HAVOC

(By Associated Press.)
Leominster, Mass., April 28.—Bobbed hair is blamed for the increasing number of unemployed in this town, according to an address here today by Edw. J. Driscoll, president of the local Chamber of Commerce.
He said that the mania for bobbed hair had spread so throughout the country that combs, hair pins and bar pins had about gone out of use and the manufacture of these articles had been the chief industry of this town, and consequently the short trade of such factories had thrown many out of employment here.
