CHEMICAL SOCIETY MEETS TODAY AT PITTSBURG, PA.

(By Associated Press.)
Pittsburg, Pa., Sept. 6.—Sea-weed kelp, automobile engines, and just plain milk were the widely different subjects discussed at the opening day of the American Chemical Society convention now being held here.

On the platform before the delegates, where usually symphony orchestras perform, a motion picture with "knocking" played the chief feature of the day, while chemists listened, as intently as open-mouthed lovers do to "Carmen" to the effect of the introduction of a chemical compound, invented by Thomas Midgley, Jr., and T. A. Boyd, of Dayton, on the "knocking" discs.
"Chemicals whose action is similar to those known as 'catalysts' even if present only in the most minute quantities," said Mr. Boyd, "can eliminate to a great degree the knocking which is most injurious to engines." The gasoline symphony played on cylinders was to prove his contention.

Sea-weed kelp, which contained iodine and other elements common in sea-water and believed to be beneficial in preventing goiter, was explained to be a necessary part of the diet of those who live so far inland as to be deprived of sea food in quantities.
J. W. Tarrentine, whose activities resulted in the establishment of the kelp industry on the Pacific coast introduced the sea-weed kelp in its new role to the chemists. "The new form," he said, "admits of cheap preparation and preservation, and is easily available for the afflicted people of all countries."
Housewives uncertainty as to the youth or age of the contents of the bottles found with the newspaper on the shelves and nothing is to be done but to buy the brand name in today's meeting. "Methylene blue," a dye, is cleverer and more sure than the nose in detecting the age of milk," said Miss P. Dressler, who demonstrated the action of the dye in discoloring old milk and remaining perfectly clear in new. Even other dyes may be used with equal success, the scientists say.

Conference In Baltimore To End Railway Strike

(By Associated Press.)
Chicago, Sept. 6.—Seven representatives of the striking railway crafts were declared by John Scott, secretary, to be in Baltimore today for a conference with railroad executives on a prepared proposal to end the strike.

Mr. Scott said the proposal, it was hoped would meet the approval of the executives, but he declined to outline its contents.

The conference, he said, was to have been kept secret until the proposal had been passed upon.

New York, Sept. 6.—If any conference is being held in Baltimore as outlined from Chicago by John

Scott, it is entirely without the knowledge of railway shopmen here, and can, therefore be only participated in by a few individual roads and does look to a settlement of the strike on a national basis, it was said here today.

Baltimore, Sept. 6.—Officials of the B. & O. close to Daniel Willard, its president, who could not be seen this afternoon, professed ignorance of the presence here of any delegates of striking shopmen, or of any conference between such and railway executives here looking to bringing about a settlement of the strike.

CHAPEL HILL NOW COMING UP HAS CITY MANAGER

Chapel Hill, Sept. 6.—The University village has fallen in with the modern municipal profession and engaged a city manager. Only he isn't called that—it's a bit of pretensions a title for a community of less than 2,000 inhabitants. His official designation is business manager.

Edward M. Knox is the man. He is 21 years old, a native of Winston-Salem, N. C., and a product of the Engineering school of the University. In recent years he has lived in Norfolk, Va. In addition to what he learned of municipal problems in his engineering studies, he has been taking a sort of informal course of instruction under Robert W. Rigby, the city manager of Durham. There have been a number of conferences between them and the other expert has drawn generously upon his own experience in order to help Mr. Knox.

Part of the new business manager's big jobs will be the collection of the current year's town taxes. The assessed valuation of real property in Chapel Hill is about $2,000,000; the town tax rate, including the levies for interest and sinking fund on school and town bonds, is $1.12 1/2 to $1.00.

Mr. Knox has prepared a budget according to the approved scientific method. An allotment of money is made for each branch of the town's work—police, sanitation, street maintenance and so on—and the regular paying of expenditures makes it possible at any time to find out exactly the town is sticking to its budget schedule.

Besides acting as business manager, Mr. Knox is charged with

BISHOP LINES IN HIS SPEECH AT PORTLAND, ORE.

(By Associated Press.)
Portland, Ore., Sept. 6.—"The church cannot countenance violent methods, or an unfair day's pay or an unfair day's work, or the breaking of agreements but it must never lose its interest nor forget its obligation in the Master's name for the multitude in the bad place of life," said the Rt. Rev. Edwin S. Lines, D. D., Bishop of Newark, in his convention sermon here today at the opening session of the 47th triennial General Convention of the Episcopal church in the United States. "The church must be able to give voice to the aspirations and hopes and desires of this multitude for something better in life for themselves and their children. Out from unspotted homes are to come those who shall maintain the life of the church and the service of the world."

The church has stood for charity and relief mercy," continued Bishop Lines. Emphasis must be put on social justice and fellowship and the Golden Rule, upon duties rather than rights. No one can see the way in which our great cities have grown up with their homes of luxury and extravagance waste and selfish comfort at one end, and mean streets and comfortless homes and indecent conditions at the other end of the town, without feeling that it is semi-paganism rather than Christianity.

"The church must make its own care of the unprivileged people, these who are in hard places in life, of those upon whom the existing social and industrial order presses heavily, while it must stand against injustice and unfairness on all sides."

"I wonder not that the world is in revolt against the old and existing order, whether it be in society or industry or in customs and manner of living. It is largely a revolt against oppression and worn-out customs and traditions and it had to come in a world which was settling down under the impression that money making and selfish prosperity and pleasure seeking are the main things in life. It is a sub-plot for rejoicing that an increasing number of intelligent business men are endeavoring in a Christian way to solve industrial difficulties, seeing the other man's point of view and giving it consideration. We will rejoice that labor is no more thought of as a mere commodity by rigidly minded business men and that the remedy for the world's ills is recognized as moral and spiritual rather than economic."

Bishop Lines declared that the eighth day of prayer, questions and answers, which is observed with reverence in the Episcopal church, was observed here today at the convention which assembled in this city. The devotion was a storm of prayer for the development of church life and the betterment of the world. Bishop Lines said that it was the duty of the church in the fulfillment of its mission never to rest content with what has been accomplished, but constantly to move forward. He drew a vivid picture of the events of the past eight years, which he spoke of as the World in Revolt, and compared with the spirit of the Reformation and said that it is prevalent throughout all history.

NO NEW MOVE YET TO SETTLE STRIKE

(By Associated Press.)
Chicago, Sept. 6.—Leaders of the rail way shopmen and others of the labor union sympathizers interviewed today denied that there is any new move on foot to settle the shipping strike.

The report that B. M. Jewell, head of the shopmen's union, and director of their strike, who has been out of inventing since the injunction against the strikers was granted in federal court here last Friday, had been in Baltimore, in conference with Daniel Willard, president of the B. & O. Railroad, was denied today by Mr. Willard himself.

Vice-president McGrath and John Scott, secretary of the Railway Employees department of the American Federation of Labor, denied today that a call had been issued for a meeting of the Policy Committee of that organization in Baltimore.

In the meantime, strike officials of the shopcraft declined to reveal the whereabouts of B. M. Jewell, other than to say that reports said he had been "beast."

Mr. Scott said he had no report of Mr. Jewell's return to the city and following the denial of Mr. Willard that Mr. Jewell had been in conference with him in Baltimore, Mr. McGrath said he did not believe the shopmen leader had even been in the vicinity of Baltimore.

Meanwhile, federal officers are waiting the return of Jewell to serve the federal writ of injunction on him.
