LOCAL RIPPLES.

—The condition of Dr. Mattoon is no better today, and the physicians have little hopes for his recovery. He is suffering from dropsy.

—Geo. Baker, white, and Rhody White, colored, were arraigned before Esquire Severs today for a row in Sharon township. They were fined a penny and costs.

—Jay Gould will arrive in the city, from Atlanta, in his special car, which is attached to the regular train due here at 5:30 o'clock this evening. He will stay here just 20 minutes.

—Col. H. C. Jones and Mr. Geo. E. Wilson left to-day for Dallas, to attend court there. Judge Clarke is presiding. Mr. G. W. Bason and Mr. E. T. Cansler left for Dallas yesterday.

—It has been reported that Col. R. A. Johnston, president of the S. C.'s road, was stricken with paralysis at Blacksburg, S. C. It is stated that there is no truth in this report. He simply suffered for a day or two from over work.

—Mr. Beerman, proprietor of the Kimball House in Atlanta, has leased the Markham, and will run both houses. Mr. Geo. W. Scoville, formerly of the Buford, in Charlotte, will have charge of the Markham, and that's where Charlotte people will stop.

—Rev. Chas. F. Deems, of New York, officiated at the marriage of Mr. Jas. W. Jackson, of Augusta, and Miss Edith Barrington King, in the Presbyterian church in Savannah last night. Among the list of attendants we note "Eli Springs, of North Carolina."

—Miss Emma Juch appeared at the opera house last night before a big crowd who had braved the elements and paid $1.50 each for a seat. The concert was very artistic, but not grand. We have heard some at the Charlotte Female Institute that we really enjoyed more.

A Correction.
THE NEWS' account of the affair on the A., T. & O. Road yesterday was correct in every particular except one, and that was an important one. The injured man was Rev. R. G. Miller, pastor of Sardia church, and not Rev. A. W. Miller, of Charlotte. The mistake was not the fault of the reporter, as could be easily explained, but the object of this paragraph is simply to make the correction.

The A., T. & O. Affair.
The three mountaineers who threw apples at the A., T. & O. train had a hearing before a magistrate in Statesville yesterday, and were remanded to jail in default of $300 bond. Rev. R. G. Miller, who was so badly hurt, went from Statesville to Huntersville to-day.

M. Quad in Town.
Mr. C. B. Lewis, who is known throughout the United States as "M. Quad," of the Detroit Free Press, arrived in Charlotte to-day, and is at the Central. Mr. Lewis is traveling through the Southern States, and is writing some very entertaining sketches of his observations and experiences for the Free Press. He is doing the South good by advertising it in a fair and unbiased manner in the Free Press, a paper that has a tremendously large circulation. He has already visited Raleigh, Wilmington, Salisbury and other points, and now, as he will quickly discover, he is in the "Queen City of the Old North State." During his stay here he will undoubtedly have a taste of the hospitality of Charlotte's people.

Bigney in Charlotte.
A recent row among members of a colored church in this city has developed the fact that bigney prevails to a great degree, and it is probable that Judge Meares will make heavy incursions into the congregation at the next term of the Criminal Court, as E. Lewis Maxwell has issued warrants for several samples. It is said that a colored preacher is mixed up in the affair.

Gen. D. H. Hill.

Gen. D. H. Hill and the Southern Home are figures that will never be forgotten in Charlotte. Gen. Hill is heard from through papers occasionally, and this is the latest which we have seen. It is from Chancellor Boggs: "Where have you been?" asked a one-legged Confederate whom I met at Smithville. "At Milledgeville," I replied. "And what did you see there?" he asked. "Why, I saw General D. H. Hill," I said, forgetting all else for the time. A smile broke over the pale face of my friend as he said: "Well, you saw the best thing in Milledgeville then." I did not deny it. The name awoke memories of the past. The soldier's eye kindled and color came into the pale cheek as he began to tell of his beloved commander as he sat impassive as bronze upon his horse at —, while shells were bursting and minnie balls hissing death-notes. "We were all lying close to the ground," laughed my friend, "and we couldn't help cringing and moving a little at times when the splutter of a fuse told how near a shell was. Not a muscle moved in the face of the old general, but in a voice as calm and steady as if in his tent he said, 'What's the use of that foolishness, men?' You have no idea how it braced a fellow's nerves. Just look at him and hear him," my friend added. "The hero of Big Bethel" is giving his last days to Georgia. Feeble in body from troubles brought on by exposure in the Mexican war, but keenly alive to every interest of the school, present at every recitation, noting the absence of any face at dress parade and asking an explanation, it may be that the brave old soldier is doing more for his country and for his God than when, in his youth, he fought under the "stars and bars" in Mexico, or in later years led the Confederates upon the ensanguined fields of Virginia. The face is wrinkled and the hair gray, but there is tenderness in the old eyes. The boys love him. Every one in the town names him with reverence. "What is his salary?" You must excuse me; I am ashamed to tell you. It is less than an industrious dry goods salesman earns in Memphis—about one-third of the salary of a first-class book-keeper there.

A Colored Preacher in Jail.
Rev. Daniel H. Avery, a colored divine, was sent to jail this morning by Esquire D. G. Maxwell, in default of $50 bond, on charge of larceny. Rev. Mr. Avery is from Columbia and came here as a missionary for the Evangelical Methodist Episcopal Mission. He found nobody here who belonged to his mission, and after knocking about for a while, he enlisted as a waiter at the Mansion House. Yesterday he went into Mr. F. R. Durham's grocery store and bought five cent's worth of tobacco, and as Mr. Durham turned his back, Rev. Mr. Avery stole three packages of snuff. The snuff was found in his room. At first he denied taking it, but afterwards confessed that he did take the snuff, but mistook it for his tobacco. He had in his pocket a license that permitted him to preach until August 11th.

Stricken with Paralysis.
A letter has been received in the city conveying the news that Mr. Wm. Ritterhoff is in a serious condition at his home in Seattle, W. T., from a stroke of paralysis recently received. Mr. Ritterhoff formerly kept a confectionery store in Charlotte, but went to Seattle four or five years ago and engaged in business there. He was very successful and quickly amassed a snug fortune.

Prohibition Again.
The prohibitions are that there will be another prohibition election in Charlotte next June. The movement for the election is being headed by Mr. R. H. Morse, who is preparing a petition for signatures calling the election, as required by the provisions of the new prohibition law. Mr. Morse has not yet started out with his petition, but those who want to sign will not have to hunt for him.

A Coming North Carolina Celebration.

The annual Guilford Battle Ground celebration is to occur this year on May 4th, and preparations are already under way to make it a great affair. Judge Schenck, the president of the company, and its most enthusiastic worker, has acted wisely in commencing operations so far ahead of time, for it requires time to get up a big celebration. Among the features already decided upon and provided for is, first of all, an oration by Senator Vance. A full company of militia will be dressed in Continental uniforms with knee breeches, buff vests, cocked hats and plumes, and will be armed with ancient flint and steel muskets. The uniforms have been ordered. David Schenck, Jr., will be in command of this company.

Thirteen young ladies, in costumes of stars and stripes, mounted upon richly caparisoned horses, will represent the thirteen colonies. There will be baseball, glass ball shooting, etc., and on the grounds will be restaurants sufficient to meet the demands of a crowd far greater than the one that was present at the first celebration. At least 500 State militia, under command of Adjutant General Glenn and staff, will take part in the exercises, and reduced rates on the railroads have been guaranteed. It promises to be a great affair.

A Suggestion.
New York is preparing to make the coming celebration of Washington's inauguration the biggest thing in the way of a celebration ever held there. A number of interesting features have been devised, but THE NEWS believes that still another feature could be added that would heighten the general effect. Why not collect up all of Father George's old nurses and give them a place in the procession? It would certainly add length to the procession, and it would be a most pathetic spectacle to see these time worn old "mamas" hobbling along in honor of the great man whom they dandled on their knees in his infancy. North Carolina can furnish at least three hundred of 'em.

Personal Notes.
—Mr. H. S. Puryear, of the Concord bar, is at the Central today.
—Mr. J. H. Mills, of the Thomasville Orphan Asylum, is at the Central.
—Mr. J. S. Bundy, one of Laurinburg's leading citizens, is at the Buford.
—Mr. J. Lichtenstein, of Salisbury, came in on the noon train today.
—T. T. Hay, of Raleigh, W. S. Turner, of Monroe, and J. P. Lockwood, of Chester, are at the Buford.
—W. E. Holt, of Lexington, and Col. B. S. Guion and B. H. Sumner, of Lincolnton, are at the Central.

A Musical Event.
—Prof. Gaertner's concert at the Y. M. C. A. hall next Friday evening, for the benefit of the Lutheran church, is to be the event of the week. The programme was given in THE NEWS yesterday. The pupils of the Charlotte Female Institute will attend in a body, and so great is the demand for tickets that the hall will certainly be taxed to its fullest capacity. A good treat it is store for our people, and they are evidently well aware of this fact. The tickets are on sale at the Haberdasher's.

A Scrap of Paper Saves Her Life.
It was just an ordinary scrap of wrapping paper, but it saved her life. She was in the last stages of consumption, told by physicians that she was incurable and could live only a short time; she weighed less than seventy pounds. On a piece of wrapping paper she read of Dr. King's New Discovery, and got a sample bottle; it helped her, she bought a large bottle, it helped her more, bought another and grew better but, continued to use it and is now strong, healthy, rosy, plump, weighing 130 pounds. For further particulars send stamp to W. H. "ole druggist, Fort Smith. Trial bottles of the wonderful Discovery Free at Burwell & Dunn's drug store.
