LOCAL RIPPLES.

—There is still no news from Washington about the Charlotte postoffice. There's evidently a hitch somewhere.

—Col. Richard M. Crocker, the noted New York politician, passed through Charlotte yesterday, on his return to New York, from a visit to Alken.

—Capt. Aaron Griffith, who was in the city to-day, reports that he has corn up and growing finely. All the farmers, he says, are in better shape than usual at this time of the year.

—A meeting of the trustees of Davidson College is being held this afternoon at the Central Hotel. Col. John L. Brown, Dr. J. B. Mack, Dr. Rumple, Mr. S. H. Wiley, and others, are in attendance.

—The new supervising architect has changed the plan of the public building at Charlotte, so that the pitch of the basement floor will be only 7 feet 9 inches, instead of 10 feet, as planned by Mr. Freret.

—The board of county commissioners to-day ordered Treasurer J. H. McClintock to pay the coupons issued by Mecklenburg to the Atlanta and Richmond and the A. T. & O. Railroad Companies, maturing on May 1.

—Col. Wm. Johnston, who left here a few days ago for Mexico, accompanied by his son, Mr. Frank Johnston, is detained at San Antonio by the illness of his son. Mr. Johnston was still confined to his bed at latest accounts.

Personal Notes.

Dr. Joseph Davidson, of Alabama, is in the city on a visit.

Miss Helena H. Horner, of Raleigh, is spending a few days in the city with the Misses Franklin.

Mr. Alex. Trotter, a former well-known merchant of Charlotte, is in the city today.

Congressman Davidson left for his home in Florida to-day, after a pleasant stay of several days among relatives and friends in Charlotte.

Mr. J. W. Burkhead, of Concord, is attending the Sunday School Convention.

The Detectives.

The reward of $200 offered by the mayor for the detection of Mrs. Bryan's burglars has brought a number of detectives to the city. The Deaver Detective Agency, of Asheville, has had several men here for a week past, but what progress they have made is not known. One of them is reported to have said that this is the toughest case he has ever worked on.

The Architect's Report.

THE NEWS returns thanks to Hon. Wm. A. Freret, the supervising architect under Cleveland's administration, for a copy of his report for the year ending December 1, 1888. It is a very comprehensive report, and a most interesting one. Mr. Freret made a record as supervising architect that has never yet been excelled, and his superior will be hard to find. The new architect can hardly hope to excel Mr. Freret.

Mr. Wolf's Address.

The Y. M. C. A. hall was thronged last night with one of the most intelligent and refined audiences ever assembled in Charlotte, to hear the address by Hon. Simon Wolf. In the audience were a number of the ministers of the city, and leading church men were out in full force. It was an oration such as few lecturers are accorded in Charlotte. Mr. Wolf was introduced by Mr. S. Witkowski, who read from manuscript an elegantly conceived address, which was repeatedly interrupted by applause. When Mr. Wolf came forward he was greeted with hearty applause, and after that had died down he proceeded with the delivery of what proved to be a most eloquent, entertaining and instructive lecture upon the Jewish race. Mr. Wolf is a fine orator, and the audience was captivated with his address.

SPRING SHOPPING.

THE LADIES ON THE GO, AND THE STORES THROGGED.

Some Points About the New Styles with Which the Charlotte Stores are Fully Stocked—Styles that will Bloom this Spring.

The beautiful spring weather of the past few days has put the shoppers on the go, and the dry goods and millinery stores of Charlotte are thronged daily with busy customers, not only from the city, but from the surrounding towns, for the Charlotte merchants never hide their light under a bushel, and the fame of Charlotte as a shopping centre is well known abroad. There are no other stores like Charlotte's in North Carolina, and there are but few to equal them in the South. The merchants here carry immense stocks and display every fashion and novelty that can be secured in New York. They are fully abreast with the stores of the metropolis, and that is why the Charlotte stores are such popular trading centres for the people of this section.

One of the city milliners yesterday gave a NEWS reporter some points for the benefit of the fair sex, for who is it that is not interested in the styles. "The colors used this spring," explained the manipulator of hats and ribbons, "are leghorn, serpent, old rose, sage green and brown. The old fashioned brocade ribbons have been revived. The 'La Tosca,' made in the Jane Hading style, is one of the principal styles in large lace hats. Quantities of No. 1 ribbon are used on hats and bonnets, making a new and pretty trimming. Fancy laces combined with crushed roses make a most lovely bonnet or toque. Flowers are used in great quantities. The 'Redfern' is one of the prettiest styles in toques. Lace scarfs are used, and with a spray of flowers make the entire hat and veil. Hats are not trimmed so high as last season."

The dress goods are in beautiful styles, and some of them are given below:

Wool Novelties—It was decreed last autumn that fancy borders were to be in favor for this spring. "The dress trimming department objects, for the elegant borders in robes and by the piece, of which so many are now in stock, supply a perfectly harmonious and complete trimming. Some of the robes have borders of silk, others of wool, others silk and wool; the designs are in flowers, palms and conventional patterns; the variety of colors is beyond description, and the combinations most bewildering to think of. Other robes have striped panels or ironets for the skirts, and some have besides narrow bordered decoration for waists. The novelties are not all in robes. There are many sorts in the piece, with stripes and borders, and at prices various.

Trimmings—Here's richness. In the galeons, especially oriental colors; both sides of the world join hands to give the last artistic touches to the costume. Tinsel treated as if it were the most tractable fibre in the world. Twisted, woven, run back and forth as a thread of silk might have been. But its tinsel just the same! You can only half guess the effect. Nothing but eyesight can fairly tell the story.

Fringes—Fringes for everything. They whiz at sash ends. They drape and decorate. And the craze has come all at once. Black silk fringes lead and are followed closely by the jet. Only in black, but if you say colors, you must learn the order. We'll have it made up in quick time whatever tryst you want. It's the only way.

Silks—There never was such a line shown, in such new combinations. 'Twill be a great silk season, and the variety of weave and color mixture is gorgeous.

Alpacas and Mohair—These fabrics, after a long banishment, have returned, and are to be seen in all their pristine beauty. They were so pretty and serviceable that it is no wonder they have become popular once more.

Buttons—Big buttons are again the proper thing. Indispensable for some styles of dress—notably the popular directoire and empire costumes. Buttons as big as the "cart-wheel pennies" of grand-father days. Works of art in color and cutting. They add to the sparkle and dash of any costume.

Popular Shades this Season—Among the leading shades this season you will find, old rose, burnt rose, reseda, sea gray, ox blood, mandarine, absinthe, mahogany, "cafe au lait."

Evening Drapery—Among the many pretty novelties, perhaps the most beautiful are to be found in this line. White Teulle, with dainty stripes of the same material. White Teulle, with most delicate chenille embroidered into its soft texture. Silk draperies as delicate as the spider's web in pink, cream, lavender, black and white.

Embroidery Flounces—These are very elaborate, but simple in design. Small pin cords and checks, the Irish point, being a great favorite. The novel feature of them this season is that at the bottom of the flounce and below the embroidery, they are most beautifully finished with a hemstitched border. Done on swiss, pique and Hamburg.

Parasols—They are all in long handles of carved wood and oxidized silver and remind one of an Alpin-stock. Some have the ribs decorated with pretty bright ribbons.

Blouses—They are much worn and are made of striped flannel. They are in very delicate colors and pretty stripes and checks.

Beaded Wrap—Looking at the manufacturer's samples one would think the world would be put in jet wrap.

Rev. T. H. Strohecker.

Rev. T. H. Strohecker, who has been in charge of the Lutheran church at Lancaster, Ill., for several years past, has returned to North Carolina to locate. He has bought a lot at Barium Springs, (the new name for the Poison Springs, in Iredell county,) and will locate there for the present. Mr. Strohecker formerly had charge of churches in this State. He was married to a daughter of Mr. A. B. Davidson, of Charlotte. The Lutheran Observer, of Philadelphia, contains this reference to Mr. Strohecker's pastoral work at Lancaster: "Rev. T. H. Strohecker, our pastor, recently resigned, has gone South by order of his physician. We, the council, desire to express, by unanimous vote, our regret, and to testify that, by an almost imperceptible process, our church debt was lifted, and our benevolent contributions to Synod raised from $30 to over $200 per year. We pray God's blessing to follow him, as our hearts do follow him in love, and spare his life to the Master's cause and to his family."

A Fight Over an Account.

A difficulty occurred on South Tryon street this afternoon between Mr. Henry Lederer and Mr. Albert Myers in which blood was drawn. They had a dispute about an account, when the lie was passed and they went for each other. They were separated before much damage had been done. Shortly afterwards, while Mr. Lederer was standing on the pavement, he was suddenly approached by Mr. Myers who struck him a couple of blows over the head with a stick. The parties were arraigned before Mayor McDowell. Myers was fined $5 and Lederer $1.

Hunting for His Wife.

Frank Moore, one of the blackest and ugliest darkies that have struck the town in ages past, came in today from Wintboro, S. C., in search of his wife, Jane Moore, who ran away with a colored Lothario named Jack Gibson. Frank says that this is the third woman Jack has enticed away from Wintboro. Esq. Maxwell issued a warrant for Jack, but the constables were unable to find him.
