THE DAILY NEWS.

VOLUME 1. CHARLOTTE, N. C., WEDNESDAY EVENING, APRIL 3, 1889. NUMBER 101.

CRAYON PORTRAITS. Call and see how Fine and Cheap they can be had. FRAMES. I have the largest and best assortment of Frame Mouldings in the State. Canvas and Crayon Stretches made to order. VAN NESS, 21 N. Tryon St.

LOCAL RIPPLES.

—Rev. E. A. Yates, brother to the late Wm. J. Yates, is one of the prominent delegates attending the Sunday School convention.

—Gaston Campbell, of Statesville, has been appointed postal clerk between Charlotte and Taylorsville, in place of Mr. Charlie Torrence.

—Mr. Charles G. Montgomery, of Concord, who buys cotton extensively for the mills in North Carolina and Virginia, was working on the Charlotte market to-day.

—The Catawba river trappers are beginning to catch shad and red horse. A fisherman was in the city today offering fine shad and red horse at $1 per pair. The fish are being caught in the traps, as it is too early yet for the seines.

—An arm chair, made entirely of buffalo and steer horns, highly polished, is on exhibition at E. M. Andrews & Co. It was made in Texas and is priced at $75. The seat is covered with a leopard skin. The chair attracts a great deal of attention.

Delegates Appointed.

A meeting of the Charlotte Academy of Medicine was held yesterday. After the transaction of some private business, the Academy appointed the following delegates to the State Medical convention, which meets at Elizabeth City, on April 16th: Dr. Jos. Graham, Dr. R. J. Brevard, Dr. R. L. Gibbon, Dr. C. A. Misenheimer and Dr. D. O'Donoghue.

European Tourists.

It is now pretty well understood that Dr. A. W. Miller, of the First Presbyterian church, will take a European trip, leaving here in May. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Miller. Messrs. Heriot Clarkson, and Richard Carson are also arranging for a European trip, and will sail from New York in a week or two. Rev. A. G. McManaway takes passage in the Nebraska, tomorrow.

The Cotton Platform.

In view of the recent fires on the cotton platform, the mayor has lately taken extra precautions and the city ordinances regarding the platform will be rigidly enforced. One of these ordinances is that "no person shall loaf, play or sleep, or smoke cigars, cigarettes or pipes upon the cotton platform, nor upon any railroad freight platform in the city of Charlotte. Any person violating this section, shall, on conviction, be subject to a penalty of fifty dollars."

Personal Notes.

Mrs. A. B. Spriggs and Miss Blecker Springs arrived home yesterday afternoon, after an extended visit to friends in Shreveport, La. They have taken rooms at the Belmont.

Mr. S. H. Hearne, one of Albemarle's leading citizens, was in the city yesterday.

President Crowell, of Trinity College, arrived in the city to-day.

Rice, the Baltimore shirt man, registered at the Central to-day.

Rev. C. M. Payne, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Concord, arrived in the city to-day, to attend the Sunday School Convention. He is accompanied by his sister.

The Office.

The pilgrims are getting back home. Mr. P. E. Linnell and Mr. F. A. McNisch arrived from Washington last night, and it was reported that Mr. Arch Brady got in to-day, but if he did he went into hiding, for the reporter was unable to find him either at the Bulford, where he boards, at the bank, or at his room. Mr. Linnell is reported as saying that the Charlotte postoffice question has been settled, but that the new postmaster is not Mr. Brady. If the appointment has really been made, it was not made public in Washington up to 3 o'clock to-day.

Mr. Evans is said to have his papers at court to Collector Ross Craig.

EMBALMING A BODY.

How it is Done Nowadays.—A Night Scene in an Undertaker's Establishment.

The shades were drawn at the undertaking establishment of E. M. Andrews & Co., last night, but a News reporter, who pressed the electric button, was promptly admitted, and was escorted to the embalming room, where a body was being prepared for shipment to the North. The body was that of Mr. William J. Conlin, who resided at No. 95 East 111th street, Harlem, N. Y., and who died on the cars while on the return to his home. He was a young man, 22 years of age, and had visited Aiken in the hope of prolonging his life. Consumption had a firm grasp upon him, however, and the balmy air of Aiken was of no avail. His mother was with him there, and finding that there was no hope for him, she started yesterday morning on the return trip with her boy, hoping to get him home to die. In this she was disappointed. Just as the train reached Blackstock's, the young man expired in his berth in the sleeper. Mr. A. L. Smith, the depot agent here, was notified by telegraph, and an undertaker met the body at the depot. The body was taken from the sleeper and removed to Andrews' undertaking establishment, where it was embalmed. Mrs. Conlin went on to Washington City, where she will await the arrival of the body and accompany it from there to Harlem. The body was shipped on the five o'clock train this morning.

As the reporter entered the embalming room, Mr. John Harry was just in the act of completing the embalming operation. The process is exactly the same as that used in the case of President Garfield, and is very simple, but effective. A long, sharp needle is first thrust into the lungs, and through the perforations thus made the embalming fluid is forced into the cavity by an air-pump. This fills the lungs and the abdominal cavity. The left arm is then stretched out and the wrist secured by a rubber band, to hold it in a firm position, when a slot, about two inches in length, is cut just under the muscles. The big vein is then caught up and cut in two, the point of the syringe is inserted, and the vein, over the syringe, is tightly wrapped with thread. The embalming fluid is then forced through this vein to all parts of the body. From one to two gallons of the fluid are generally required for a corpse. In the operation last night a gallon and a half of the fluid was injected before the pressure on the pump showed that all the arteries were full. It should have been atated at another place that, previous to injecting the embalming fluid, all the blood is drawn from the veins by a suction-pump. Less than a teaspoonful was drawn from the body of Mr. Conlin. When he died there was scarcely enough blood in his body to stain a bucket of water. After the injection through the vein in the left arm, a nasal injection was administered, and the process of embalming was completed. The artery in the arm was sewed up, the corpse was dressed in the burial robes and placed in the coffin. The coffin was boxed up and labeled, and an express wagon bore it to the depot.

This embalming process is a comparatively recent thing, and the efficiency which has been attained by the Charlotte professionals in the art is something wonderful. A few months ago a corpse that was embalmed here was sent to a distant Western State, and was two weeks in reaching its destination. The relatives wrote back to the Charlotte undertaker that the corpse was perfectly well preserved, and appeared almost as natural as life. The fluid injected through the veins tends to arrest decay, and preserves the corpse for an indefinite time. The cost for embalming a body varies according to circumstances, but ranges from $10 to $25. Those who once see the operation performed are perfectly willing to testify that the charges are low enough for the work. It requires about two hours time to embalm a corpse. The process described not only preserves the body, but gives it an appearance almost like life.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION.

An Increased Attendance on the Second Day, and Deep Interest Manifested.

The second day of the North Carolina State Sunday School convention opened this morning, with a largely increased attendance of delegates, and the session was attended by a crowded house, the ladies turning out in full force.

The exercises were opened with a praise and prayer service led by Rev. A. N. Ferguson. The programme was changed from the original, and the main business of the morning was the reading of reports by delegates from the various county organizations. The reports in the main made a favorable and encouraging exhibit. Mr. H. N. Snow delivered a very interesting and instructive address on "How to Extend the Influence of the State Convention."

This afternoon's session was devoted mainly to the discussion of certain questions. The attendance upon the convention is large, and the delegates are encouraged in their work by the presence of large throngs of Charlotte people.

Following will be the programme for tomorrow, the closing day of the convention: Morning Session—9:45—Prayer and Praise Service; 10:00—Reports of Delegates from the County Organizations; 11:00—Topic: The Teacher's Training Class; 11:30—Topic: How to use the Blackboard; 12:00—An Address: How to bring Scholars to Christ and how to care for them, by Mr. N. B. Broughton. Afternoon Session—3:00—Promise Service; 3:30—General Discussion: Methods, Finance, Libraries and General Arrangement of the School. Evening Session—7:30—Prayer and Praise Service; 7:45—An Address: Preaching to the Sunday School; Sermons for the Little Ones, Rev. T. H. Pritchard, D. D.; 8:30—Closing Talks.

Teacher's Council.

We are requested to state that the meeting of the Mecklenburg Teacher's council has been postponed from Saturday, April 6th, to Saturday, April 13th. The programme will be: 1. Opening exercises. 2. Talk by Rev. J. Y. Fair. 3. Lesson numbers by Mrs. Durant. 4. Paper by Mr. Kirkpatrick. Subject: Necessity of Teachers preparing for their profession. 5. Classification in country schools and how to secure uniformity of text books. Discussion by Messrs. Irwin, Norwood and Hugh Reid.

Election of Officers.

The annual election of officers of the Hornets' Nest Riflemen was held at the armory in the Davidson building last night. There was a good attendance of members. Capt. T. R. Robertson was re-elected captain. Other elections were: Thad. B. Seigle, first lieutenant; E. L. Keesler, second lieutenant; L. A. Blackwelder, color bearer; J. W. Jamison, secretary; J. H. Wearo, treasurer; Rev. A. G. McManaway, chaplain; Dr. R. L. Gibbon, surgeon; Heriot Clarkson, solicitor. Capt. Robertson appointed H. A. Fortman first sergeant. Mr. Christian, Stonewall Jackson's son-in-law, is a member of the Hornets.

The Richmond Office.

The News & Observer today says: "The Charlotte News says the salary attached to the Richmond office is $10,000 and adds: 'If Mr. Jackson is to have any office at all, that's the kind that should be given her.' We heartily agree to this last but our Postal Guide makes the salary at Richmond $3,400. At Charlotte it is $2,400. The two offices may be legitimately worth somewhat more than is thus indicated, but the salaries are as we state them."

Three thousand four hundred looks mighty small for Richmond; however, the News & Observer and the Postal Guide may be right. We got our information verbatim from a gentleman who is generally well posted.
