

Bured Forty-Six Days.

Raleigh Evening Times.

Ely, Nevada, Jan. 19.—After having been entombed forty-six days, one thousand feet below the surface in the Alpha shaft of the Giroux mine, A. D. Bailey, P. J. Brown and Fred McDonald were rescued last night. Whistles all over the camp blew loudly, while crowds cheered in the streets of Ely to the ringing of bells.

"Ah," was the only word of Bailey, the first to reach the outer air. He tottered forward into the arms of comrades, who in a few minutes recuperated him.

"Is that you, Arthur?" queried Fred McDonald, as his brother stepped forward and embraced him after nearly seven weeks of separation.

"By George, it certainly seems good to be out of that hole," he said as he was led away, telling his brother of his terrible experience.

"Somebody give me a chew of tobacco," said Brown, with a laugh as he was led from the mine shaft to the change room of the mine, where the three men were made comfortable.

CITIZENS GREET THE MEN.

The news that rescue was near at hand reached Ely from the mine shortly after 11 o'clock yesterday and many citizens went to the mouth of the shaft to greet the men. Many hours passed while the crowd waited and the entombed men and their rescuers dug vigorously to remove the earth that blocked the mouth of the 1,000 foot tunnel.

Finally the anxious crowd around the shaft heard the bell signal "hoist away," and a loud cheer burst forth. The basket soon rose to the surface, bearing one of the rescuers supporting Bailey. Mrs. Bailey was not present, as one of her children was sick. As soon as Bailey was provided with clean clothes he hurried home supported by friends.

Another shout of joy greeted Fred McDonald, and when the last man, Peter Brown, came out the crowd became almost hysterical, realizing that the long entombment was ended.

SHAFT CAVED IN.

On the morning of December 4th McDonald, Brown and Bailey and two Greeks were working in the bottom of a shaft 85 feet below the surface. The shaft caved in, snapping the shaft and hurling thousands of tons of rock and timbers into the shaft. From the bottom of the compartment in which the men were working to the pumping station, a series of rickety ladders offered the only means of egress.

With falling rocks and timbers streaming down on them the 5 men struggled up these ladders. Half way up falling timbers knocked the two Greeks from the ladders, killing them. Bailey, McDonald and Brown reached the pump station. Its timbered roof withstood the rock and timber that came down the shaft and offered them a safe prison where for a whole day the men crouched, while at intervals, rocks and timbers kept crashing about them, threatening momentarily to crush the deep tomb.

SUSTAINED BY A PIPE.

At first it was thought on the surface that all five of the men had perished, but twenty-four hours after the accident the three buried men managed to make themselves heard by tapping on a six-inch water pipe that reached from the pumping station to the surface. Communication was established with the world above and food and drink were plentifully lowered through the pipe. A large supply was sent down, as it was feared the pipe might be broken before the rescuers could reach the imprisoned men. But throughout the long weeks of imprisonment this pipe was daily used. A portable telephone was lowered and the men were able to talk with people above. This telephone carried from friends news of the world and messages of cheer, and from the buried men reports of nether conditions.

Clearing the debris was slow work, as timbers, rocks and earth were so twisted together that a new shaft had to be cut for most of the 1,000 feet. At no time did the entombed men suffer greatly except for the distastefulness of their forced seclusion.

Takes a Dare and is Killed.

Dan Gregory, a young man, 25 years of age, of near Davidson, this county, is in jail on the charge of killing his old father, Zeke Gregory, with an axe Thursday near Davidson on the Christenbury place, where they lived together.

Incarcerated in jail with Ben Gregory is his wife, who was arrested with him last night at Mooreville.

When seen in afternoon by a News man, both of them denied knowing anything about the matter. They have not as yet employed a lawyer.

Mrs. Gregory said that she left home early in the morning after hearing the old man Gregory and her husband quarreling. Said that she went away from home barefooted, and that her husband caught up with her after she had gone about a mile and a half.

The killing occurred Thursday about 2 o'clock, and immediately Coroner Gresham was notified, and he left for the scene this morning to investigate the matter.

It is alleged by some that after a brief quarrel, that Dan Gregory drew a line across the yard and dared his father to cross it, and that when he did so the son struck him a fatal blow on the head.

The news of the tragedy was heard by Town Marshal Johnson, of Davidson, who went at once to the home of the old man, and found him apparently dead, and no one else at home. He soon found the man's wife down in a swamp wailing, "they done it, they done it."

Marshal Johnson left at once on the trail of the fugitives. He found Dan Gregory and his wife at Mooreville, where they had gone after the killing, and he at once proceeded to bring them to Charlotte and lodge them in jail, and notify the coroner.

The finest Coffee Substitute ever made, has recently been produced by Dr. Shoop of Racine, Wis. You don't have to boil it twenty or thirty minutes. "Made in a minute" says the doctor. "Health Coffee" is really the closest Coffee Imitation ever yet produced. Not a grain of real Coffee in it either. Health Coffee Imitation is made from pure toasted cereals or grains, with malt, nuts, etc. Really it would fool an expert—were he to unknowingly drink it for Coffee. Harrison & Co.

Birds and Weather.

Cleveland Leader.

Wild creatures of the fields and forests can do so many things impossible to men and women, in seeing, hearing smelling, especially in finding their way home by the aid, it appears, of some other sense or source of guidance that it is easy to credit them with foreknowledge of nature which is wholly beyond human powers. The belief that this so-called instinct of beasts and birds is sufficient to read the secrets of the seasons far in advance is quite common among men. It will lead many who hear that robins and bluebirds have been seen in Northern Ohio in the last few days to cherish confident hopes of a very mild winter throughout, an early spring.

But the birds do not know what the weather is going to be. Over and over that has been proved in seasons of abnormal warmth, changing later to intense cold. The song birds of early spring come far north in very open Januaries, only to be killed by blizzards in February or March. The birds follow the weather, instead of foretelling it. They move with the season or the seeming changes of the year. They go where there is food, where the weather is mild enough to permit them to get enough to eat. In localities where there are special stores of cedar berries or animal life all winter, robins sometimes remain through the fiercest cold of Maine or Canada. Many birds go south in the autumn not to escape cold, but to find food.

As Regards Importation of Liquor in States.

Washington, D. C., Jan.—18.—The Senate Committee on Judiciary took up today the various prohibition measures before it and heard Senator Tillman on his bill regulating the importation of liquor into one state from another. He argued that it was competent for Congress to take in hand this question and relegate it to the control of the states as notice power.

Senator Tillman begged the committee not to delay in reporting the bill. "Get it into the senate," he urged and let the senate deal with it." Asked to discuss the wisdom of the measure he declined, saying that "any student of human affairs will tell you that whiskey is the most potent as well as the most prolific cause of crime and misery in operation in this or any other country," and he believed it necessary to invoke the power of federal government to perfect the regulation of traffic in states which already have acted in that direction.

In the town of Hasehmann, Germany, prizes are offered yearly for the men who will marry the ugliest and most crippled women. The money was left by a big financier, who, realizing that beauty is an attraction hard to over-come, made a provision in his will that out of the income of the fund not less than $90 shall go with the ugliest girl in any year, and the cripple shall receive $60.

Any Other Name Would Do as Well.

Everybody's.

A dignified gentleman was trying to read in a crowded railroad train. Among the passengers was a lady with a sprightly little blue-eyed girl with golden hair and an inquisitive tongue. She asked the dignified gentleman numerous questions, played with his watch chain and endeavored to determine by means of the buttons on his waistcoat whether he was rich man, poor, man, beggar man or thief.

The mother fairly beamed upon him. He was becoming nervous and, turning to the lady, said:

"Madam what do you call this little child?"

"Ethel," replied the mother, with a smile.

"Please call her, then."

It doesn't matter what a majority of the members of the Legislature may think of the idea, they are going to vote for State prohibition without submitting the question to their feet by delegations, speeches and resolutions and will be no more their own men than were the voters in the recent prohibition election at Asheville. There will be nobody there to speak for those who do not approve this arbitrary legislation and it will be forgotten that there are any such at home. But there are, and we apprehend that it will be ascertained later that some of these have long memories.—Ex.

Wonderfully Made.

"What makes it fly so?" asked a little Boston maiden as her mother brushed her hair.

"It is the electricity. Don't you know that there is electricity in your hair?" replied her mother.

"Well, mamma, aren't we wonderfully made? Here I am with electricity in my hair and grandma has gas in her stomach."

Marriage is the frequent occurrence with a man in Creglingen, Germany. He has led eleven wives to the altar. His first three wives died young, the next two were drowned, one committed suicide, three died in succession, the tenth was gored to death by a bull, and he has recently married the eleventh, who had a leg cut off by a railway train last year, so that the wedding had to be postponed till now.

Keonsha, Mich., Jan. 17.—Rev. William McPheters, formerly pastor of a Washington, D. C., church, has been dismissed by the Presbyterian Church of this village because he called the women of the church "a flock of cackling parrots."

That remark was the only direct cause of his departure, but his congregation has been offended by many other criticisms contained in his sermons recently.—Raleigh Evening Times.

A telephone company in Indiana recently received a request to furnish and set a telephone at the head of a grave in one of the local cemeteries. The woman who wanted the instrument is a strong believer in Spirituism and holds frequent conversations with the departed relative. As she cannot talk with the dead, unless she is at the grave she conceived the plan which would relieve her of the necessity of making trips to the cemetery.
