GENERAL NEWS.

News Items From All Over the Country Briefly Noted.

It is reported that Chicago has fifteen thousand school children that are starving.

Chicago won the series of baseball games with Detroit last week for the world's championship, taking four out of five games.

Governor Ansel has accepted the National Democratic Committee's invitation to spend ten days in New York State campaigning.

Now is the time to shake hands with candidates for office. If they are defeated they will be too sore to shake, and if they are elected they will be too swelled up.—Los Angeles Times.

Twenty-five thousand people witnessed the sham battle of Guilford Court house participated in by State and United States troops at Greensboro last Tuesday as a feature of the Centennial Celebration.

Unless Mr. Chafin demands and obtains a recount, or something of the kind, people will be unable to decide off hand six months from now whether he was a candidate or a breakfast food, we fear.—Washington Herald.

The anthracite output of about 76,000,000 long tons in 1907 will probably never be greatly exceeded according to Edw. W. Parker, of the United States Geological Survey, as its price must rise so steadily as to make it a luxury.

President Roosevelt will not take the stump. President Roosevelt will take the stump. You can take either end of this and get stumped, the truth being that nobody knows what President Roosevelt will do.—New York Telegraph

Will Graham, the negro who assaulted Miss Pearl Tucker at Concord last week was spirited away from the mob and taken to Salisbury jail for safety. Later he was removed to some unknown point to avoid the danger of the mob going there after him.

To possess $40,000,000 and to be less well known than the Captain of the "Giants" or a Broadway actor gives a more real impression of the "swollen fortunes" of America than do the accumulations of a Rockefeller or Carnegie.—New York World.

Son-in-law Longworth, is going to nominate President Roosevelt for President eight years from now. Somehow or other every member of the Roosevelt family labors under the delusion that there is but one man in this whole country fit to be President.—Chattanooga News.

There's a movement on foot to place a Bible in every hotel room in the United States. Of course they'll be amended to read, "charity begins with the bellboy, and includes the porter, the waiter, the telephone girl and all that are within sight."—Louisville Courier Journal.

Fearful forest fires are raging in North Eastern Michigan. Several farms have been completely destroyed and the inhabitants scattered. Fourteen, mostly women and children, are known to be dead and scores of others are unaccounted for. The last report says the fires are under control.

The Southern States Good Road Congress at Greensboro last week was a most suspicious occasion for this important branch of development in the South, and was attended by many prominent men among them Lieutenant Governor Winston, of North Carolina, M. V. Richards, of the Southern Railway, Governor Ansel, of South Carolina.

It is always a pleasure to hear a man, no matter though his attainments are limited, who has thoroughly prepared himself on the subject he discusses. We are sorry to say that sometimes brethren arise to discuss questions that they know no more about than Judge Peebles knows about Sunday-schools; and they generally put the folks to sleep.—Charity and Children.

The Wilkesboro Chronicle says: "A Baptist preacher and several of his members were shot and killed in the church at Jellico, Tenn., a few Sundays ago, because the preacher criticized a blind tiger still which was running near the church." If this is so what ought to be done with the blind tiger and those that were running it? A few yards of good strong hemp rope could be used to good purpose.

We were of the opinion that ex-Governor Jarvis is too old to engage in a political campaign, and there is not much surprise in the news that he was unable to meet his first appointment, which was for Fayetteville, yesterday. It would be the part of wisdom for the Democratic managers to take Governor Jarvis' will for the deed and let him rest and conserve the strength that he needs in his old age.—Charlotte Chronicle.

Upon the one condition that the Duke of Abruzzi come to America and go to work like any other American citizen, will Senator Elkins consent to the marriage of his daughter, Katherine, to the foreign nobleman. At least this is the latest story in regard to the noted love story. Some members of the Senators family approve of the match, but he doesn't, except on the above condition. He wants his daughters to marry Americans.

At the Nashville convention of Southern Commissioners of Agriculture a resolution from Commissioner Watson, embodying ex-United States Senator M. C. Butler's recent suggestion that the Federal government appropriate twenty million a year for ten years for dirt roads throughout the nation. The resolution will be forwarded to the President with the request that he transmit it to Congress. Commissioner Watson said the resolution will probably be adopted unanimously.

The production of lemon oil is an important Italian industry which is carried on extensively on the island of Sicily. Three methods of production are used—the two piece method, in which the lemon is cut in half; the pulp removed and the oil extracted by means of pressure within a sponge and the three-piece method, in which the lemon is pared, the skin being removed in three pieces, leaving the pulp with a small portion of the skin adhering to each end, the parings being pressed against a flat sponge for extraction. The use of machines in the production of oil is confined to the province of Calabria, upon the mainland, less than five per cent of the total output being thus manufactured.

CIVIL WAR INCIDENTS.

As Told from Memory by an Old Veteran.

At Cedar Mountain the Regiment was engaged with some of the Federal Cavalry, but suffered no loss. We were also with Jackson Corps at the second battle of Manassas. Members of our company assisted in capturing some cannon or rather a caisson and horses. The writer passed through the battlefield a few days after and saw the Federal dead still lying on the field where they were killed and their dead horses, and the captured cannon still in the same position they were when captured. Arthur Adams is the only one wounded and disabled from Manassas. The army moved on to Centreville and over took the Federals at Ox Hill near Chantilly; where a small battle was fought, and General Phil-Kearney of the Federal Army was killed, which every one regretted so much as he had made such a fine record in the Mexican war. General Kearney by mistake ran into our lines and by a desperate effort he tried to ride back into his own lines and was killed in the effort. The Regiment was resting at the big spring near Leesburg, Va., when the writer came up with his company again. That evening we forded the river at Balls Bluff, where the Potomac is quite deep fording. That night we camped between the river and Frederick City, in Maryland. We had plenty of green corn for our supper and fence rails to cook it with. The next day we camped near Frederick City. We could not see much of the loyalty or disloyalty of its citizens, but were contented to enjoy a rest after a long march. There were a good many left sick in Virginia. Also a good many straggled and were left, and rejoined us when we came South of the Potomac river again. After remaining at Frederick City a few days we marched to Hagerstown by way of Williamsport, recrossed the river, by way of Martinsburg and Charleston. We invested Harper's Ferry, where Gen. Miles had some thirteen thousand fresh troops in a camp of instruction. We surrounded the two towns Boliver and Harpers Ferry on all sides and by aid of our artillery being on the mountains above them, we easily forced them to surrender the next day before ten o'clock. The 22nd Regiment was formed in a line of battle the evening before along a ridge that lead to Fort Boliver and we fully expected to have to take the Fort by storm the next day. Night over taken us still advancing along the ridge toward the Fort. All at once we were fired into by a company of Federals at close range, but no one was hurt. We returned the fire at once and charged, but they left in a hurry. Some of them were shot for we could hear them all night some distance off the hill. We lay on our guns that night expecting to charge the first thing in the morning. The Federals shelled pretty severely next morning, but we lay so closely on the ground the shells did but little damage. We were greatly relieved when the Federals put up the White flag. Company A. was the first company to enter the town after it capitulated. We marched into and through the two towns with plenty of Federal music of the old fife and drum and camped at the armory in Harpers Ferry. We captured eleven thousand five hundred prisoners with quite a lot of contraband negroes who had escaped from their master. Some twelve hundred cavalry broke through our lines that night and escaped capture. Here we rested that day and part of the next, when we were hurried up to Antietam to prevent Burnside from forcing Gen. Lees's right wing and cutting of his base from the Potomac. We got there just in time to save our line and force them back. Here Gen. Eranch was killed but our company suffered no loss, but it was a great battle and historians say it was the hottest contested battle of the whole war.

Fund for Campaign.

New York, Oct. 15.—William J. Bryan's promised announcement of the list of contributors to the Democratic campaign fund was made to-day. It came in the form of a statement over the signatures of Chairman Mack and Treasurer Ridder and shows that, of $248,567.55 received to and including October 9, $90,712.23 came in contributions of a hundred dollars and more, that $115,355.22 came in contributions of less than a hundred dollars each and $42,500 was left over from the convention fund. The statement shows $225,952.88 to have been spent and that the balance in hand is $22,604.67. A plea is made for a hundred thousand dollars additional to carry on the remainder of the campaign. The contributors are estimated at about fifty thousand people and about one hundred thousand of the whole amount came from Democratic newspapers.
