I keep mine on the bottle until they have passed their second summer and you nevtil you see them.

Never churn your milk until it is firm clabber. Don't let it go to whey or get too warm, but see to it that your buttermilk is fresh, smooth and thick. Just before the butter comes add about one-half teaspoon of soda to about two gal lons of milk mixed in some water. This makes the butter gather and prevents colic. Pour the milk up in crockery ware. Don't use tin, and don't by any means add sugar to the baby's milk. Cane sugar is like so much poison to infants. Just put the pure milk into a cle in nursing bottle and hold the bottle in a vessel of water just hot enough to bear your hand, shaking constantly, until it is hardly milk warm tnen give baby all he wants.
