TUESDAY, MARCH 18, 1913.

The three University students who were tried at Hillsboro last week for causing the death of young Rand, by hazing last summer, were found guilty of manslaughter. Judge Peebles gave them the lightest sentence possible prescribed by law for such a crime, four months in the county jail. He added a proviso permitting the county commissioners to hire the boys out and this will be done, their parents hiring them for the time specified and paying the costs of the case. Thus the case has been disposed of to the satisfaction of all parties concerned as far as we have been able to learn. The boys got off light and it is to be hoped their experience will be a lesson to all others, not to follow their example, but to stop the barbarous practice of hazing in all the schools.

The storm of last week did much damage in various parts of the country particularly in Georgia and Alabama. Many parts of this state suffered much worse than we of this favored section. We can congratulate ourselves that we always get off lighter on such occasions than other parts of the country. The protection of our grand old mountains from severe winds and other disastrous weather disturbances is not fully appreciated by the people of this favored section.

Some members of the medical fraternity are shouting "quack" and "fakir" at Dr. Friedmann, the German physician who recently came to America to demonstrate a cure for tuberculosis which he thinks he has discovered. The attitude of the physicians who would discredit Friedmann is a result of the in-born jealousy in the medical profession which too often rises up to discredit it. Friedmann's cure may not be a cure but that is yet to be demonstrated and it is to the credit of the medical fraternity, generally speaking, that the German doctor is being given an opportunity to show what he has. He does not profess to work miracles; he does not profess to cure every case. But if he has discovered something that will in any measure reduce the progress of this most terrible of all plagues, the world will be his debtor; and the doctors who are endeavoring to discredit him before a thorough test of his serum is made are discrediting themselves and their profession.—Landmark.

All over the country thousands of victims of tuberculosis have turned to the alleged cure of Dr. Friedmann as eagerly as the dying Israelites turned to the brazen serpent in the wilderness. They have flocked to New York by scores and have besieged the government with petitions for help. The pity of it! The serum has not yet been thoroughly tested and only a few of the many applicants can be treated. Some in the last stages of the disease who made the trip to New York with the hope of being cured, died there.—Landmark.

EDITORS ARE HUMAN.

(The Union Republican.)

Editors are appreciative creatures and the Local Editor is not an exception. For forty years he has been enlisted on the city press, beginning his reporting work as a boy in the office of the old People's Press, Salem and then for a time on the Western Sentinel but for twenty-odd years past a part and parcel in making The Union Republican what it is as a newspaper. From time to time some special article attracts attention and there follows a return of thanks by word or letter in the way of appreciation, which to say the least is very acceptable, for editors, after all are human. It is like a highly esteemed citizen, prominent in our local religious life, told us some time ago. We listened to one of his well conceived sermons and took occasion to send him a note of appreciation. His reply will never be forgotten. "When I was young," he said, "such evidences were quite frequent. Now that I am old, evidently my efforts are taken as a matter of course—my duty and bouquets are seldom thrown my way." On another occasion the Local Editor congratulated a local Sunday School Superintendent upon impromptu talks which he had been making every Sunday, at the close of school, upon the lesson of that day. They were short and practical and as full of logic as an egg is of meat. He remarked "And so you appreciate them" (these talks upon the lesson) "well I am glad to hear it. For some years I have put my best thought into them and you are the first man to ever mention them to me." And this leads to a concluding suggestion. Be more appreciative to those with whom you associate, at home, at school, in church, in business or socially. Give a word of appreciation and encouragement now and then. The effort will cost you nothing and will not only cheer up and encourage, but may often be the means of inspiring greater efforts on the part of those who labor and faithfully struggle on, wondering if what they are doing meets acceptance or even passing recognition by those for whom it is done.

Doings At Davenport College.

Very beautiful and impressive were the exercises attending the graduating exercises of the "Legion of Honor Teacher Training Class" on last Sunday night. Possibly no more fitting ceremony ever took place within the historic old walls of Davenport College, than that which sends into various parts of the Old North State, and other States as well, twenty-two young women, thoroughly and fully equipped to teach the Master's word, and to work in his vineyard. The cry in almost every church in the land is for more and efficient teachers in the Sunday School, and much credit should go to the institution that seeks to give to the world, proficient and finished instructors, in the noble cause for which Jesus came into the world. The remarks by Hon. J. L. Nelson, Pres. of the Board of Trustees, of Davenport, were beautifully appropriate, and could not fail to leave lasting impressions for good in the minds of the young women composing the class. The address by Pres. J. B. Craven, was a very masterly one, and delivered in his forceful and emphatic style, went straight into the hearts of all the young women, not only of the graduating class, but of the entire student body. This sermon will be a sweet and lingering memory always in the hearts of the graduating class. The talk by Miss Beatrice Bulla on the subject, A plea for Better Teachers, was indeed a most interesting one, and one that could not fail to inspire all those who heard it to increase their efforts to do more and better work in the future. Miss Bulla is possessed of a manner and charm that immediately finds its way to the hearts of her hearers, and makes captives of them. Miss Tommie Brooks Baber gave a beautiful record of the class, and also read the names and addresses of the young women composing the newly organized class. The Bible Readings by Miss Emily Fuller, of Georgia, and Miss Hallie Gibbs, of Marion, N. C. were beautifully and impressively rendered. Miss Clara Horn, of Rutherfordton, N. C. played an original composition of, Nearer My God to Thee, and Miss Baber, Miss Mabrey, and Miss Lettge and Mr. Birmingham sang Come Thou Fount. The Class Record, will appear in our next issue.

Col. Henry Watterson On Taft.

Under the caption "Hats Off" Henry Watterson delivered the following farewell to President Taft in the Louisville Courier-Journal, March 7th:

Hats off to William Howard Taft. The president who goes out today surely did find Jordan a hard road to travel.

He that journeyed from Jerusalem to Jericho found not a harder.

"Injms on the upper way,

And death upon the lower."

Every mile beset with peril; the tariff sink holes; the Balling or morass; the Pinchot ambulance, though of pop guns, exasperating if not murderous; the yawning chasms and impassable gulfs of progressivism, as still surviving, he came down the home stretch, the Jersey steep-chaser forging ahead and finding a bridge of the bodies of the slain piled up in the ditch which Roosevelt made.

Hats off to William Howard Taft.

He was called to answer many sins not his own. There are some things worse in this wicked world than defeat dishonor. All the Teddies on top o' dirt can not lay that cross of humiliation upon the back, nor the cross of shame upon the brow of William Howard Taft. Hell is full of desecrated friendships, broken pledges, unexpiated sins and unescapable mistakes, but heaven has still one halo left for him.

"He done his duty as he seen it" writ all over in letters of living light.

Hats off to William Howard Taft.

Long may he live to show what an ex-president ought to be. Nature herself may stand uncovered and exclaim:

"Behold a man!"
