Musical at the Training School by Noted Artists April 28th

A musicale program of unusual interest and quality will be presented by the Edgar Allen Poe Literary Society of the Teachers Training School on Tuesday evening, April 28th. In order to procure artists of the highest type, the society has incurred heavy expenses, and asks the people of Greenville to give to this generous patronage.

The artists engaged for the concert are Mrs. Sara Storm Crommer, dramatic soprano, Miss Ethel Lee Cellist, and Mr. Iseral Dorman, violinist. Mrs. Crommer of Baltimore, delighted the audience last year by her singing, and needs no further introduction. All who heard her then will wish to hear her again.

Miss Ethel Lee, cellist who will be remembered from last year's concert, has been studying in New York this winter, and will bring us a delightful repertoire of new and beautiful selections.

Mr. Iseral Dorman of Baltimore, the violinist has never been with us before. He represents the finest type of musician, combining wonderful temperament with superb technique.

Besides giving selections of great brilliance and power, he will render many familiar favorites.

Prof. C. W. Wilson Is Temporary Superintendent Until Place Can Be Supplied

The County Board of Education is looking carefully into the selection of a successor to the late superintendent W. H. Ragsdale, in order that the splendid progress of the county's educational system under his administration may be carried on. For that reason the board will not act hastily, but will take time in making a selection so as to obtain the best man possible for the position. The board once hoped that Prof. C. W. Wilson, of the Training School faculty, might be secured for it, but his duties at the school are such that he felt he could not give the county superintendency the time it would require. As there are some important matters, however, before the board that cannot be attended to without the assistance of a superintendent, he has consented to serve as acting superintendent until the board can make a permanent selection.

The selection of a postmaster at Ayden has been submitted to a primary which will be held next Saturday. There are several candidates and the primary promises to be a lively one.
