COTTON SALES.
Friday, 107 Bales 4 1/2 to 5c.

Rev. Edward Bull has left for Wilmington to canvass there for the Standard Dictionary which he is representing. A little later he will take his annual tour in the interest of the East Carolina Fair.

The Naval Reserve Minstrels, about 30 strong, "rolled up" into the composing room of the JOURNAL last night, after partaking of a lavish supper at the Chatawka, and favored the foreman with a cheerful song entitled "Au-re-voir," and then dispersed for their respective homes as happy as if Democracy had swept the country.

Rev. B. P. Peterson, col. of Raleigh, is in the city in the interest of the exhibition of the State Colored Fair which will be held at Raleigh, beginning Tuesday, Nov. 13, and ending Friday, Nov. 16. He solicits exhibits for the various departments, distributes premium lists and advertising matter and does whatever else, and secures sub-agents to carry on the work after he leaves. Among the attractions at the fair will be trotting and bicycle races.

A Card.
The Naval Reserve Minstrels desire to thank Mrs. T. A. Green for the beautiful wail of flowers which graced the stage last night.

NAVAL RESERVE MINSTRELS.

The Performance Last Night a Success in Every Way. To be Repeated.
The Naval Reserve Minstrel entertainment at the Opera House last night was one of the best amateur entertainments ever presented on the New Berne stage and it was one that would have done credit to any stage.

The first part presented to the audience fifteen of New Berne's young men in a semi-circle, the six end men hideous and comical to behold with burnt cork, red paint and ludicrous costumes while the nine centre ones were in gay court attire. Mr. Albie Powell was the interlocutor and Messrs. W. T. McCarthy and John Matthews the end men of all. Every one knows Mr. McCarthy's address at anything of this kind--that he was "good" goes without saying, and Mr. Matthews likewise took off his part to perfection. The jokes were not "cheats" by any means, and eleven songs with which the jokes were interspersed took well with all, especially "The Newsboy's Chorus" by Masters Tommie Roberts, L. L. Tolson and Fred Thomas. They came in with a rush properly "made up" and acted as well as sang--very well indeed. The supporting end men were Messrs. Henry Winfield, Chas. J. McSorley, Tom C. Daniels and Ed. Bangert, and they were all O. K.

Mr. McCarthy as a negro orator "took the cake."

John Matthews' impersonation of a negro society dude, a "sixteener" with a song and dance was a stunner. He had to "come back" before the audience had enough of it.

The tumbling and ring performing by the McSorley Brothers, T. C. Daniels and Clifton Waters was remarkable for young men not professional acrobats. The same can be said of the contortion acts of Mr. Waters. He is a veritable limber jack. It would be hard to tell at which he was best at this or at playing clown.

The little one act comedies "Herman Outdone" and "Trial by Jury" were side splitters. The latter had seven active characters besides the juryman, &c.

Mr. Jas. Gaskill in his slack wire walk did very well; although new hand at the business he was not awkward at all.

The "Pullman Car Porters" was a novel exhibition of Physical Culture exercises. It was a lantern drill by five of the young men, the motions being the same as if the lanterns were Indian clubs, all other lights were turned out and the effect was beautiful. It was pronounced "the prettiest thing yet."

The house held all it would hold everywhere, and they were all delighted in the highest. The boys need not fear to present the entertainment before an audience in some neighboring town if opportunity offers. The performance will be repeated here.

WHERE THE BLAME LIES.

Everybody Has an Explanation.
Some Attribute Democratic Defeat to One Cause Some to Another--Cleveland Comes in For Probably the Largest Share of Blame--Congress Gets a Large Portion Also--The Difference Between the National Defeat and That in North Carolina.

The Republicans have got the country; the Democrats have suffered such a defeat as no member of any party dreamed of prior to the election. What were the causes and what of the future are the questions that now present themselves for consideration.

The reasons advanced are various--some of them have foundation; others would not stand the test of thoughtful analysis. Almost every reason involves as a chief contributory, the depression in business, and the popular tendency to hold the party in power responsible for it regardless of the fact that it came on under Republican laws, and as a natural sequence of the squandering of all the public money by the preceding administration. Plenty of people are hot against Cleveland, talking as if he did it all, while others bring in the slowness of Congress in enacting whatever changes in their law that were to be made, for a very large share of the blame.

The leading Illinois Democrats load all the blame upon the President's shoulders. They bring forward the fact that speedily action was urged by party leaders upon the President even prior to his inauguration and the while making no promises he gave them to understand that he would urge the settlement of the tariff before asking for any silver legislation. But instead of doing so, he did just the other thing, and just what the people had voted for in 1892 they did not get in March, 1893, or for months and months afterward.

The Chicago Herald fixes the blame in this fashion: "If Cleveland had had a proper appreciation of the fact that was to be encountered when the Democratic party set out to destroy the protective tariff rollers of this country, he would have summoned Congress in March, 1893. If that had been done, the mandate of the people, as given in the elections of 1890 and 1892, would have been far more potent than it was in 1894, when Congress tardily got to work on the Wilson bill, and many who this year sulked or held back or openly traded with the enemy would have been in line, doing loyal service in the cause of reform. The almost inconceivable folly and stupidity of that delay was the fault of Grover Cleveland alone. Nearly all of the other blunders by the Democratic party grew out of this one fatal mistake. It started wrong--it went wrong, and at every turn it was given a further impetus in the wrong direction by some mischievous utterance from the white House."

The leading causes assigned seem to be the industrial shut-down; the tariff bill; the President's letters; the letters he did not write; Wilson's London banquet speech; the lack of cohesion between House and Senate; the delay in the passage of the tariff bill; disapproval at the President's general policy, disapproval of office-seekers; lack of cohesion of financial questions; fickleness of the constantly increasing independent vote; ignorance of a large popular element and their stubborn incapacity to deal with economic questions; rottenness of State and municipal government in New York and the stern determination of the substantial and thoughtful Democrats to correct it at any cost.

A Charlotte Observer Washington correspondent quotes "a prominent North Carolinian, who holds a two thousand dollar position" in Washington as saying: "We were overwhelmed in my judgment, chiefly because, first, our party is a silver party and we don't get free silver; second, our party is a revenue reform party and when a revenue reform bill was passed the President not only refused to sign it, but actually, in a published letter, stigmatized as perfidious the action of some of the men who framed it."

The Observer enumerates the reasons given in the two preceding paragraphs and remarks upon them truly that the injustice of some of them is perfectly apparent but they have wide circulation and many believe in them.

In their expectations from the Democratic party when it was restored to power the voters did not rightly appreciate the difficulties that had to be met. The Republicans turned the finances of the country over to them in an awful fix. The tremendous surplus that had accumulated under Cleveland's first administration was by them swept out of existence. They spent all that money, all the revenues of the Government that came in while they were in power, and left the

THE CHANGE OF MANAGERS.

Mr. Everett Departs and Major D. C. Smith Takes Charge of Hotel Chatawka.
Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Everett left on the steamer New Berne yesterday. They again make their home in Ohio and Mr. Everett will as he has done heretofore, travel during the winter for a commercial firm and run a summer resort hotel during his season. Mr. Everett, while in charge of Hotel Chatawka, made a very pleasant impression upon the guests of the hotel and our citizens and numbers are sorry to see him depart.

Major DeWitt Clinton Smith, the new manager, arrived by the morning steamer and took charge. Major Smith is a hotelist of twenty-five years experience and of more than usual note in that calling. For the past five years he has been running Hotel Clinton, which was named for him in Minneapolis, but he made up his mind to move South. His son will remain in charge of that hotel for the present. Major Smith is an elderly, affable gentleman, and we believe the Chatawka has been fortunate in securing his services, not only on account of his experience in the business but on account of the influence he will exert in bringing northern visitors to spend their winters here.

Louisiana is solid for Democracy. All six of her Democratic congressmen are elected by majorities ranging from 5,000 to 10,000, but all the same Republicans say they will make contests when the fifty-fourth congress meets and attorneys have been engaged to handle the cases. They are hopeful of getting in three of their men.

THE TRANSIT OF MERCURY.

This Interesting Event Occurs To-Day--What It is Expected to Determine--An English Astronomer Comes to America to View It.
The Rev. Samuel Charlesworth, a well known English amateur astronomer, arrived in New York last Saturday, having come to this country to observe the transit of Mercury, which occurs next Saturday.

Mr. Charlesworth is 78 years old, and came to this country especially to make these observations. He will send the results to the London Times. In speaking about the transit of Mercury, Mr. Charlesworth said:

"The transit of Mercury, which occurs on Saturday, has a special interest to all astronomers, whether scientific or amateur, residing in the United States, because there is no country in the world where it can be so advantageously seen. Over the greater portion of England the sun sets about twenty minutes after the commencement of the transit, which begins at 8 hours, 54 minutes, 40 seconds p. m., but along the coast line of the United States the transit will be visible throughout its whole course, varying as to its local time in its commencement from about 10:30 to 11:30 a. m., and occupying five hours and eighteen minutes, each degree of longitude, west or east, adding or diminishing four minutes. In England the question is still a mooted one whether or not Mercury has a companion planet, given but brief, unsatisfactory opportunities for observation when the planet sparkles morning or evening in the sun's rays for a brief period, as a slight crescent or full orb. Its greatest distance from the sun is roughly 44,000,000 miles; its least distance 20,000,000. It is the swiftest of the planets in its average speed of twenty-nine miles in each second of time, also the most eccentric in its elliptical orbit.

"After it first impinges on the sun's disk until the whole surface passes within the circle, 103 seconds of time are occupied, being just the planet's diameter, or 103 multiplied by 29. The same, reversed, occurs at the egress. This transit, as seen from the United States, affords an opportunity for deciding once and for ever whether Mercury does or does not possess a satellite. If there be one, it should be apparent on the sun's disk, above or below, before or behind the planet. If none such be seen, then the negative conclusion is equally certain."

The Charlotte Observer says that Carroll, chairman of the Republican Executive committee in conversation Wednesday with a good Democrat said the Pope had kindly turned the State over to the Republicans and now they could go to sleep. "There'll be no fusion there but plenty of partying." It says more over that there was no demonstration on the part of the Pope over the victory.

THE CHANGE OF MANAGERS.

Mr. Everett Departs and Major D. C. Smith Takes Charge of Hotel Chatawka.
Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Everett left on the steamer New Berne yesterday. They again make their home in Ohio and Mr. Everett will as he has done heretofore, travel during the winter for a commercial firm and run a summer resort hotel during his season. Mr. Everett, while in charge of Hotel Chatawka, made a very pleasant impression upon the guests of the hotel and our citizens and numbers are sorry to see him depart.

Major DeWitt Clinton Smith, the new manager, arrived by the morning steamer and took charge. Major Smith is a hotelist of twenty-five years experience and of more than usual note in that calling. For the past five years he has been running Hotel Clinton, which was named for him in Minneapolis, but he made up his mind to move South. His son will remain in charge of that hotel for the present. Major Smith is an elderly, affable gentleman, and we believe the Chatawka has been fortunate in securing his services, not only on account of his experience in the business but on account of the influence he will exert in bringing northern visitors to spend their winters here.

Louisiana is solid for Democracy. All six of her Democratic congressmen are elected by majorities ranging from 5,000 to 10,000, but all the same Republicans say they will make contests when the fifty-fourth congress meets and attorneys have been engaged to handle the cases. They are hopeful of getting in three of their men.
