Extending the time of holding our Fair to two weeks meets with favor among some of our business men. The scheme is a new one of course, and not attended without some risk, but what business is there that can be enlarged and expanded upon without some risk. We must reach out, and there is no more inviting field than is offered through the Fair.

One of the losses from the Kinston fire is the injury to the land stone monument in memory of Gov. Caswell, the first Governor of the State after the separation from Great Britain and who was re-elected several times, and who was also a member of the convention which formed the Federal constitution in 1787. The monument is badly cracked and is considered ruined.

Chicken Thieves at Work.

Chicken thieves have begun to ply their calling lively with renewed activity. They seem to have been operating near the depot with more frequency than elsewhere.

Two places in the neighborhood, have each been raided twice within a week and there have been some thieves in some other parts of the city.

A little over a year ago chicken thieves became quite troublesome and did not cease their operations until shot at by some of our watchful citizens as they were in the act of committing their depredations.

These Lawyers Had Manhood.

At Tampa, Fla., C. G. Woodall, a merchant of Baltimore, came near being lynched for insulting three prominent ladies. Woodall addressed them on the street, and followed them home, where he was arrested.

A crowd gathered and wanted to lynch him, but the officers prevented. No lawyer would defend Woodall, and he gave a cash bond and left town to escape the relatives of the ladies.

THE GREAT KINSTON FIRE.

Damage About $225,000; Insurance About $90,000.

List of the Losers, With Their Amounts and Insurance.—Looking to the Future.

From the account of the terrible Kinston fire published in the Free Press extra of Saturday we take the following extracts:

About 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon, Feb. 28th, fire broke out in the stables in the rear of Messrs. Oettinger Bros. stores and Loflin's opera house. The fire spread very rapidly, and in a few minutes the great mass of wooden warehouses and the large stables of B. N. Fields, S. H. Loflin, Oettinger Bros. and Pridgen & Cox were a solid flame of fire. The heat was intense, making it utterly impossible for anyone to attempt to extinguish it.

The fire is thought to have originated in the stables of Oettinger Bros. or B. N. Fields. However, no one seems to know. It was reported that small boys with cigarettes caused this terrible loss.

WHAT WILL BE DONE?

Some lost all they had and were without any insurance at all.

It is a heavy blow to our beautiful town—the heaviest it has ever received—in fact no worse fire, in proportion to the size of the place, has ever occurred in the State, we believe. But, though our business men are bound to feel very sad (we feel that way, too), there is no wisdom in despairing. Our town must be rebuilt—we believe that it will be—the natural advantages surrounding the town are too great for it not "rise from the ashes." Some of our business men will rebuild at once; others do not contemplate rebuilding, but in a few years we hope to see most of the burned district again covered with buildings.

AN EXCURSION TO KINSTON.

By Regular Train at $1.00. For the Round Trip To-morrow.

To-morrow the A. & N. C. R. R. will have round trip excursion rates to Kinston for the benefit of those who wish to visit the town to view the effects of the great fire.

The regular train will be used as it runs just right for it. It leaves New Berne at 8:30; arrives in Kinston at 10:08 and starts back at 4:30, arriving in New Berne at 5:50. This gives nearly six hours in the town at small cost.

There will be arrangements on the train to take care of all lunch baskets that any one may want to carry.
