THE SOUTH CAROLINA PLAN.

For Enslaving White Supremacy by Constitutional Negro Desfranchisement.

Governor Evans of South Carolina recently spoke at Branchville that state E. J. Watson in the Florence Messenger gives a synopsis of the speech and comments thereon from which we take the following:

FULLY DISCLOSED THE SCHEME.

As follows: "I have given a great deal of thought to this matter. The 15th amendment is an insuperable bar to a permanent and lasting arrangement. Any scheme that may be adopted can only be temporary and will be largely dependent on white unity, as it is upon the administration of the law rather than in its language we must rely."

"QUESTION OF UNDERSTANDING."

"If he cannot, it is easy to see that the negro could not understand, while the white man would. This is natural as the whites are the more intelligent race. Couple a provision forbidding registration after conviction for crime, and require the applicant to be also possessed of a good moral character and you can see how many thousands of negroes will be disfranchised without fraud or without infringing on the 15th amendment of the United States Constitution."

THE "MEAT" OF THE PLAN.

"Another safeguard would be to provide that no illiterate person failing of the necessary requirements for registration will be eligible after the first election, and that after five years the requirements for registration be the ability to read and write pure and simple. This would act as a spur to men of both races to fit themselves for the suffrage and would not perpetuate the confessedly obnoxious but necessary provision of trusting to the judgement of the supervisor. The charge that such a system would perpetuate dishonest elections is false."

Continuing Senator Tillman said: "If this scheme is not adopted, then, so far as I can see, there is nothing else to do but have qualified woman's suffrage and hide behind the 15th amendment. I am perfectly willing to give the women of South Carolina the right to vote when they ask for it, but I don't believe they want it, and until they do ask for it, I prefer the other plan."

cover the all important matter. It may be added that this being the scheme the ingurgitator of the Reform movement advocates, it will be almost certain to be adopted.

STONEWALL JACKSON.

Something About His Convictions and a Story Not Before Told in Print.

Mr. George W. Cable relates the following story of Stonewall Jackson, which was told to Mr. Cable by Mr. George H. Moffett, of Portland, Ore.:

"Stonewall Jackson," he said, "openly deplored, as did so many other great leaders of the south, the institution of slavery. Yet he was firmly convinced that its existence was not only guaranteed by the national constitution, but sanctioned by a divinely-inspired Scripture. I heard him say as much in the only political speech he ever made. It was at a meeting held in Lexington, Va., in the election campaign of 1860, his voice coming unexpectedly from a seat in the rear of the house, where he had risen in support of an aggressive resolution."

"He was then Maj. Jackson, a professor, as every one knows, in the Lexington military institute. He was a frequent visitor in the house where, as a college student, I boarded, and I had more than once heard him express in private conversation the same convictions which he, on that one occasion only, declared in public."

"My acquaintance with him was only such as a boy of sixteen would have with a man of mature years. Our only point of intimate contact lay in the fact that I taught a class in the now famous Sunday school which he had organized in connection with the Presbyterian church of the town. But I believe this Sunday school of negro children, of which he was superintendent, lay closer to his heart than any other object on earth except his home and family."

"In the war, though much under legal age, I became a private cavalryman. Sometimes I saw Gen. Jackson. In August, 1862, the day before he met and drove back Pope's army in the battle of Cedar Run, I was riding down the road leading north from Orange Court-House, on my way from brigade headquarters to join my regiment on the Rapidan, when I overtook a division of infantry on the march, going to meet Culpeper. The active movements of our forces indicated the sharp work that was near at hand."

"When I reached the head of the column I found Gen. Jackson, his cap drawn down over his forehead, riding alone and apparently buried in deep meditation of his strategic plans. I rode by with a silent salute, but he recognized me, called me to halt, and, riding up by my side, began to talk about the colored Sunday school in Lexington. It was a great gratification to him, he said, that the school was being kept up in his absence. So we parted, and he rode on to bloody victory."

"And once again, it was the afternoon of the first day of the second Bull Run battle, and one of the most critical moments of Jackson's whole military career. He had come round through Thoroughfare gap, putting the Bull Run mountains and Pope's whole army between himself and Lee. Pope had turned, closed in upon him, and brought him to bay. The battle had been raging for hours, and though Longstreet had come to Jackson's aid, no one could yet say that Jackson's hard-pressed left would not be overwhelmed. Our battalion of cavalry under Maj. Patrick had been halted near Groveton—almost in the center of the field of battle—and sharpshooters were deployed to meet the enemy, who were coming down the Warrenton pike."

"At this moment Gen. Jackson rode up. There was hard fighting everywhere. He conversed for a few moments with Maj. Patrick, and then turned and spoke to me. He said that certain of our men on an eminence above the road were needlessly exposed, and bade me ride to them and call them in. I had started to obey, when he suddenly stopped me with—

"'Oh! I had a letter a few days ago from Dr. White, and he tells me that our Sunday school is still kept up.'"

"That was all. I went my way to execute his command, and he rode back to his infantry. I never saw him again."—Century.

WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENCE

A Variety of News of the Town and Neighborhood.

Capt. A. W. Styron whose energy and enterprise is seldom equalled, and never exceeded, came up from Lake Landing last week and spent a few days.

The Capt. has been running out of Lake Landing canal with his steamer. He has demonstrated that the Mattamuskeet Lake is navigable. Has taken corn from Fairfield to and down the canal; he is preparing to build a light draught steamer for that route. The new mill of the Eureka Lumber Company is now in full operation and is one of the best arranged mills of its size in the country.

Large numbers of people go down to Curacoek each Saturday night. The Turboro Military go down on Steamer Aurora on Tuesday night. There is some sickness in town. A day or two since Mr. Ed. Leam, the engineer on the Coast Line was taken suddenly ill; Capt. Ellsworth brought the train in next morning, another engineer was on hand and no delay was caused.

Material is being collected at the buoy wharf to put it in thorough repair. Arrangements are being made to complete the race track here, and to have a fair ground in connection therewith.

Mr. Geo. T. Leach, for several years Supt. of the Alleghany Co.'s mill at Scranton, Hyde Co., has cast his lot here, and he will be felt, as he is a hustler. He is President of the Eureka Lumber Co.

There appears to be a probability of our having a telephone exchange and electric lights, as outside persons are becoming interested in the matter.

The O. D. S. S. Co. are to build a steamer for the Tar River route; Mr. Myers will build it and that is equivalent to saying that she will be built right. Mr. Myers also has on the stocks another large, eight car transfer barge.

The John L. Roper Lumber Company are cutting off their timber near this town and having it towed to Belle Port, taking it from there by rail to their mill at Ropers.

The Messenger is waging war on the cows that run at large on our streets. It deserves the hearty cooperation of every one who has to walk, and who does not like the odor of the cow pen. Cows and hogs are a nuisance, goats are banished by fines, but cows are privileged.

FOR MAN AND BEAST! Mexican Mustang Liniment.
