utes For the Saloon." The learned gentleman is of opinion that the saloon flourishes not so much se of the poor man's love of drink as because of his love of sociability, and in this he is no doubt right. The pro-fessor repeats, what has often been said before, that the drinking saloon is the poor man's club. In it he finds light, merriment, games and newspapers. A place therefore that would combine the al features without the intoxicating drink feature would constitute the model substitute for the saloon. This is true; still it would not stop the evil caused by too much beer drinking. It is in ing himself with sour, swill-like, chesp beer, "rushing the growler," as it is called, in the daytime, during rests in his working hours, that a good part of the laboring man's wages is spent. Professor Peabody would have to find a substitute for either this beer or the appetite that craves it if he would save the poor man's money. Perhaps if the poor man had more nourishing and ble food for luncheon it would go far to stop the beer guzzling through

The professor is of opinion that if nebody could invent an attractive drink that would not be intoxicating and if the poor man's social instinct could be satisfied at the same time without the accompaniment of intoxicating drinks, a long step forward in human progress would be made. The best social substitute for the saloon ld be a poor man's club, where he could have games, reading, attractive environments, harmless drinks, etc. Attempts to provide such substitutes will be failures in every case if the poor man thinks there is any tang of religion or charity about them.

Exercise For Middle Aged People. There are no old people now except those who voluntarily slump down and take a lazy satisfaction in saying they can no longer exert themselves as they did 20 years ago. They say so because they do not want to exert themselves. most that the spry, up to date per son past his youth will confess is that he is perhaps—well—getting along to be a little middle aged.

One priceless piece of knowledge this blessed last quarter of the nineteenth century has brought to the people who are perhaps getting along to be a little middle aged is that they actually need more physical exercise than young people do. Unless they take it and keep it np year after year they find themselves becoming fat and heavy and lumbering and stiff in the joints. They are less inclined than they were to walk and run and skip about. Yet giving up to this insidiously creeping laziness, for it is othing else, is exactly what makes them become old, useless and decrepit.

Expressly for these persons who feel themselves slow and stiff and heavy r merciful providence seems to have permitted to be designed the bicycle. It limbers the joints and takes off the cumbersome fat as nothing else will. It makes the brain clear, the eye and the hand strong and steady and keeps the heart forever young. After one learns to control it there is not so much danger in riding it as there is in riding in a carriage. The bicycle is a horse that never scarcs and hardly ever runs away. Finally no man or woman alive is too old to learn to ride the bicycle.

to the south pole will leave London next September. The parfy will sail sound ward as far as may be till they are fro sen in at the approach of cold weather. Then they will winter on the edge of the south polar continent and continue their explorations next summer. It is interesting to know that the expenses of the expedition are met by a rich Englishman, Mr. Gilbert Bowick. It is true he expects to reap abundant pecuniary reward from the enterprise in the shape of fors, bird skins, minerals and other valuable goods, but this reward is not clutely certain. It is greatly to the edit, therefore, of Mr. Bowick that he has risked $25,000 on an expedition to which the only certainty attaching is the certainty that it will enrich science. Where is the American millionaire who would do as much?

he Had Beceived It, and the Homanos Was at an Edd. She entered a Third avenue jewelry store with a typical Bowery gait, and walking up to a clerk she handed out a ring and brusquely queried: "What's it worth?"

"Very little," he answered after brief glance.

"Do you call it a diamond?" "No, it's not a diamond." "Didn't cost $500, did it?"

"About 75 cents, eh?" "That would be nearer its value, I think. I hope you didn't buy that for a diamond ring?"

"No, I didn't. My feller gave it to me for an engagement ring."
"I see," said the clerk as be turned his head away to smile.

"Said it was a $500 proof of his "Yes "

"I've been a little suspicious all along, but didn't want to raise a row. Offly glass, ch? Seventy-five cents buys 'em anywhere? Well, the engagement is off, the feller has got the cold throw down, and I'm ready for the next. See? -New York World.

An Orchestral Inspiration.

"We have a good many things to contend with," remarked the man who managed a theatrical company on the road last winter, "but the worst of them all is the orchestra."

"Musicians were never noted as being eminently practical," was the reply. "I know that. But the worst of it is that they insist on trying to be so. They think they have ideas and go ahead trying to put them into operation. I was in a small town and gave the leader the music that goes with our piece. 'We can't learn that,' he said. 'I haven't time to call the men for a rehearsal. I'm too busy. They're busy too. They all work in stores during the day. 'Well,' said I, 'there's only one scene that I am very particular about. It wants something solemn and shivery.' 'We've got all kinds of tunes,' said he. 'Is it the scene I saw on the billboards, where the villain is running the hero into the sawmill and the girl rescues him just in the nick of time? "That's the one. 'Don't you worry,' said the leader. 'I've got the very thing to fit that piece. Wait till you hear it. It'll

"And did it surprise you?"
"Thoroughly. I never was more sur-prised in my entire life. The leading man was tied on the carrier that was to shove him into eternity. The machinery was started. The saw began to buzz, and the leading lady began to batter down the door. And what do you think that orchestra started in to play

A Faithful Porter. "Once when I was stopping at a pio-neer hotel at Alamosa, Colo.," said the ancient major, "I asked the landlord to have a fire made in my room at 6:30 the next morning. He made a note of my request on a book or slate kept for that purpose and told me the porter would attend to the matter.
"The note read, 'Fire 40 at 6:30.'

"The porter was new to the business He came at 6:30, and, having knocked at my door, was admitted. Then he told me to get out. I asked him what sort of a fool he was, and he said he was all kinds, but he obeyed orders just the same. And, don't you think, that fellow tried to throw me down the stairs. He would have succeeded, in fact, had not the landlord appeared in time to save

The Point of View. A certain eminent physician went to concert at his wife's earnest request, est in music. He was rather listless until one of the singers, a lady, rose and be-gan to sing for the first time. Then he brightened up.
"Who is that alto?" he saked.

"Alto!" exclaimed his wife. "That isn't an alto. She's a high soprano, and her name is Jones.

"Hum!" said the doctor.

Lavigne and McAuliffe. Kid Lavigne is now regarded by nine out of ten sporting men as the lightweight champion of the world. Technically the championship is held by Jack McAuliffe, and Griffo, the Australian, is another claimant. McAuliffe has had a long and what may be called a prosperous career, for he won the championship and has spent more money than any other lightweight champion on record. His condition has also been such that he has not been at his best for a number of years. No great inducements have ever been offered him to box Griffo or Lavigne within the last year, and it always requires a big purse to tempt McAuliffe, who is not chean. If there is money enough to be cheap. If there is money enough to be made, McAuliffe will probably accommodate Lavigne and try to get in fit condition for a hard match. McAuliffe detests training, and for a long time he has depended on his natural skill as a boxer and his quick wittedness to win bouts. McAuliffe said some time ago that he would enter into a match with Lavigne as soon as the young westerner returned from London. It will be the most notable match of McAuliffe's career, as it will be of Lavigne's, provided it can be held under Marquis of Queensberry rules without interruption. - New for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paregoric, most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphise?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons !

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child you or your physician know of what it is composed ! Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle? Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined ? Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of ther countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word

"Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense? Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless? Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose !

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts. Chat H. Fletcher. The fac-simile signature of wrapper.
