OUR NATIONAL CONVENTIONS.

The closing up of the Silver and Populist National Conventions, last week, in St. Louis, ends a series of wonderful exhibitions of so-called intelligent gatherings of representatives of the people of this country.

Our National political Conventions of today have become vast gatherings of unwieldy proportions.

The securing of these Conventions by competitive bids from cities has become a speculative business, and the different political parties through selling the privileges of their Conventions to these competing cities realize funds which help to meet campaign expenses.

The size to which these political Conventions have grown make them cumbersome affairs, and instead of transacting their business in an orderly manner, they have become this year, as in previous years, the scenes of the most wild and extravagant horse play.

There is no reasonable excuse for such displays as have been witnessed at the conventions held at Chicago and St. Louis.

The delegates have been sent to make nominations and platforms for their parties.

Like school boys they arm themselves with flags, banners and various instruments of noise. Everything done in convention is greeted, not with applause of a dignified character, but with shrieks, yells and waving hats and flags.

Why should the reading of a platform be provocative of ear splitting noises and pandemonium, when its general character is already fully known before-hand. Then every speech, nominating candidates, is received with whistles and shrieks of joy, and the nominations are followed by pandemonium indescribable.

And yet this is supposed to be an advanced age of civilization, and the Americans a practical people.

And woman is permitted to enter these conventions, and sad to relate, not to make them more attractive, orderly and dignified, but to encourage the disorder, by leading in the demonstrations of noise and disturbance.

All the political conventions this year had their work pretty clearly defined before they met, yet they spent hours and days in unnecessary arguments, speeches and confusion.

Of course some one pays for all this, and it is not those who attend the conventions.

It must be easily demonstrative that our National Convention system should be changed.

They should be smaller in their list of delegates, and all visitors should be kept out. It is undoubtedly largely to this gallery influence that much of the present disorder is due, and the doing away with the visitors will make a material difference in the behavior and course of proceedings of the conventions.

At present, instead of orderly gatherings given up to practical work, our National Conventions are wild meetings, and the effect of their actions is felt throughout the country, and gives a political license which is a curse to the country.

As long as our National Conventions are scenes of disorderly conduct and unrestrained political license, just so long will political freedom of speech mean a political action based more upon sentiment than upon common sense.

language of Dr. Kingsbury of the Messenger.

The JOURNAL does not attempt to controvert Brother Joe's word that the "boys" needed ozone in their systems, and that the day's outing was a good thing for them, nor must brother Joe deny the fact that the members of the Association made it possible that no business should come up on the regularly appointed day for transacting the Association's business.

The Press Association of North Carolina, was organized for mutual benefits of its members along business lines and not as a pleasure party.

And while the sight of the brethren sporting in the ocean waves, stowing away vast quantities of oysters, or "hitting" sundry cold beers, is an exhilarating spectacle, and a very pleasant one to the active participants, themselves, that is not the first object of the Association.

If the Association has no business of importance which ought to bring and keep its membership together for two days in the year, it is clearly out of order to pretend to be what it declares itself, and should resolve itself into a Leisure Hour Organization, upon a platform declaring for Personal comfort, only.

Not Productive of Ills.

According to the best medical authorities changeable weather, or what is known as "unreasonable," is not so bad in its effects as generally supposed. It applies to summer, but especially to winter.

"Whenever the temperature during any of the winter months rises to an endurable height," says the Medical Record, "and it is not possible for one to go out of doors without acute suffering, we always hear prognostications of sickness and death which are sure to result from a green Christmas and an open winter. But the truth is, it is the 'good old-fashioned winter,' the 'seasonable temperature,' that kills. The incorrectness of the popular idea is well shown by the vital statistics for the first quarters of 1895 and 1896 in England and Wales, which we find summarized in the British Medical Journal of May 16. These two periods of time 'formed a great contrast in so far as the general temperature of the air was concerned. In the former year the mean temperature of three months was 35.2 degrees Fahrenheit, which was 3.7 degrees Fahrenheit below the average, which in February it was no less than 9.9 degrees Fahrenheit below the mean of that month. In 1896 the temperature of the three months was 42.3 degrees Fahrenheit or 3.4 degrees Fahrenheit above the average. The public health fully reflected these noteworthy differences in temperature. In 1895 the deaths in the first quarter amounted to 170,501, and the death rate was 23.8, or 1.1 above the average. In 1896 the deaths in the corresponding period numbered 136,809, and were in the proportion of 17.9 deaths annually per 1,000 persons living, which rate was 3.9 below the average.

The increased mortality in 1895 was chiefly among persons aged 60 years and upward, of whom 60,454 died, giving a death rate among such persons of 10.90, or 15.4 in excess of the mean. In 1896 39,208 persons aged 60 and upward died in January, February and March, and the death rate was 69.2, not less than 26.3 below the average. These statistics furnish fresh evidence of the killing power of frost and of the beneficial influence of a mild temperature. But popular beliefs are not to be overthrown by statistics, and if we are blessed next winter by a mild atmosphere and absence of snow there will be plenty of physicians whose surprise will be equalled only by their disappointment that there is not more for them to do."
