WASHINGTON LETTER.

MORE CONFIDENCE IN THE BRYAN CAMP.

Still figuring on the Electoral Vote. Blackburn and the Hebrews. Butler and Tom Watson. Night-gan's Vote. No Betting.

JOURNAL BUREAU, WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 2.

There has been a marked increase in the confidence of the Bryan men since the conference this week, which was participated in by most of the campaign managers and Messrs. Bryan and Sewall. Whatever the foundation for the assurances made at that conference, there is no doubt they have carried cheerfulness into the silver camp. Among these assurances was one from Senator Gorman that Maryland would be carried for Bryan, notwithstanding claims to the contrary by Republicans and gold Democrats; one from Senator Blackburn that all the efforts of Secretary Carlisle and the Republicans could not prevent Kentucky casting its electoral vote for Bryan, and one from Senator Faulkner, saying that the visit of Mr. Bryan to West Virginia would give him a hold upon its electoral vote that it would be impossible to break.

It is not surprising that the confidence of the Bryan men is increasing their efforts, especially in those States which are by general consent placed in the doubtful column.

Mr. Bryan passed through Washington again this week, on his way to West Virginia. He gave orders when he went to bed on the sleeping car that he should not be awakened until he reached Harper's Ferry, W. Va., so nobody saw him in Washington during the few minutes his train remained.

Senator Blackburn may discover that his sneering reference to the Hebrews in his speech in New York, this week, was not good politics, as the McKinley managers will see that the attention of every Hebrew voter in the doubtful States will be called to it, and there are no more sensitive people in the world than the Hebrews.

The relation between Tom Watson and Senator Butler, chairman of the Populist National committee, and between the latter gentleman and the Democratic National committee is puzzling lots of people. Since the closing of the Washington branch of the Democratic National Committee headquarters, Senator Butler's only participation in the campaign has been to help along the negotiations for fusion between the Democrats and Populists and to arrange dates for the Populist stump speakers. Tom Watson has publicly stated his opposition to fusion in any State, unless Sewall is withdrawn, yet Senator Butler leaves no doubt in the minds of those he talks with that he is in sympathy with Watson's attempt to supplant Sewall, and he is now arranging dates for Watson to stump several States after the Georgia election. Senator Butler says he will shortly issue an address to the Populists. That may clear up some things which are now somewhat hazy.

Neither of the Congressional committees have given out any figures on the political complexion of the next House, but individual Republicans are claiming that they will have a majority of not less than fifty in the House, regardless of how the Presidential election goes. It would be what sporting men would call "a good thing" to bet that the party that elects a majority of fifty in the House will also elect the President. There have been exceptions, but as the rule the party that wins in the Presidential election gets control of the House, and it is safe to bet that it will be so this year.

The Bryan men are putting up some stiff claims on carrying Michigan, and most Republicans admit that the State is doubtful although few of them will go so far as to admit that it will be carried for Bryan. Senator Butler has made public a report received by him from the Michigan State committee, which says: "In the last Presidential election the Democratic vote in Michigan was 302,296, and the Republican vote was 228,705, showing a Republican plurality of 73,591. The Prohibition vote was 29,857, and that of Peoples Party 14,931, showing that on the whole vote the Republican party was in a minority of 90,770. In the present campaign there has been a thorough consideration and fusion between the Democrats, Populists and a silver Republican organization, and the leaders and rank and file of the latter group are for free silver and Bryan, although they have not yet withdrawn their ticket."

There is much talk of election bets in Washington, but up to this time very little money has been put up.
