In addition to this the JOURNAL has constantly pointed out that Senator Butler was no friend of Democracy and could not be trusted, that he would lead the Democrats into political quagmires, from which they could not retreat with honor, and through which it would be impossible for them to pass.

The JOURNAL has no criticism for the Committee, at this time; in time of war suggestions or advice may be given, but no harsh words should be used whick might weaken the hands of those who have endeavored to work out Democratic success.

Wistever mistakes may have been made in the campaign, have been made, and it should be the wish of all Democrats to act together from now until the polls close on November 3rd.

"FORCING" THE DARDANELLES

The rather elaborate dispatch concerning the orders given for the use of the little Bancroft on her arrival at Smyrna printed in several paper yesterday morning is not confirmed It is, of course, on the face of it extremely absurd to suppose that the Bancroft or the entire Mediterran can fleet of the United States could "force" the Dardanelles -that is could overcome the resistence which the Turkish defenses could offer. No such movement, therefore, would only with positive, absolute merit. The be undertaken unless with the active fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla has stood its support and co-operation of a pow- ground against all competition, and its erful European fleet. This, as things now stand, could be had only from the British Navy. If the rumored understanding between Russia, and France, and England were actnal, then the ships of either or all these powers could be relied on.

It is not inconceivable that the powers might agree, if the United States Government were willing, that this country should take the initiative in a scheme of active intervention in Turkey, and such an arrangement would have one advantage: The Utilted States could not be suspected of any selfish purpose in whatever policy it undertook. But this advantage is apparent rather than real, and at best would be fleeting. The serious difficulty in the way of intervention in Tur-BRRNE, N. C. Oct. 18, 1896 key is not in doing whatever the powers may agree upon, it is in agreeing to do anything. To put the United States forward as the agent of the joint resolution of the powers would only postpone the difficulty, not remove it. After the beginning had been made by a Government innocent of ulterior de sign, the work of the other powers would remain and would be as bothersome as ever. Moreover, any scheme that could thus be started could equally be started without any help from the United States.

On the whole, it is not easy to see what part the United States can take in the settlement of the Turkish question, except to seek to defend the rights of its own agents and citizens in Turkey. We are not directly or indirectly responsible, as England is and as in some degree ell the powers are, for the peace, order, and securiety of the Sultan's sion or dismemberment of Turkey. We have no interests and no duties it is primarily for the Government The Journal has constantly at Washington to decide .- N. Y.
