MEANS CLOSER RELATIONSHIP.

The settlement of the Venezuelan controversy, a matter which at one time seemed to threaten the peace of the two greatest nations of the world, brings with it not merely the solution of a troublesome international question, but will also bring together more closely the two nations concerned.

The most important point established is that the intervention of the United States was justifiable in this case, which brings out our position as to the right of maintaining and enforcing the Monroe Doctrine.

And this maintenance of our claims, the right to interfere when the territorial integrity of an American government is threatened, places this country in a much stronger position to protest against further aggressions against American governments, and make any claimant leave the matter to arbitration, instead of such a claimant forcing his own case by arms.

But however much the credit may be due to the course pursued by this government in securing a settlement of the Venezuelan question, it is a matter of congratulation that it has been settled peacefully, and that in the peaceful solution of this matter, the two great nations are certain to be drawn closer together, and bound more firmly in a relationship which English speaking people can only enjoy.

Americans must especially feel grateful and proud over this successful arbitration, and both nations cannot but feel a higher regard and greater respect for each other in the future.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury. as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them.

Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Sold by Druggists, price 75c per bottle. Hall's Family Pills are the best.

Poultry Keeping for Profit.

An interesting and complete publication on the above subject is ready for distribution by the Experiment Station. It is written by F. E. Hege, Manager of the Poultry Division of the Station, and is intended for popular reading to give complete information about poultry and poultry raising. It has 58 pages and is illustrated with 40 cuts showing the appearance of all the more important breeds of poultry including ducks. Descriptions with cuts are given of easily made poultry houses, brooder houses and brooders, and of the various appliances found necessary and useful in poultry raising. Cuts are also given showing the changes that take place in the egg during incubation. Complete instructions are given as to the care of poultry with all the more common diseases, and how to avoid these diseases. The subjects of artificial hatching by means of incubators, and subsequent care of the chickens by brooders are fully described. Feeding and care of young chickens are also given.

An important subject which is considered is how to improve the common stock by means of a thorough-bred cock. It costs but little to cure a cold in one day. Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund the money if it fails to cure. 25.

or any more to feed an improved breed or a well selected cross, than the ordinary barn yard fowl, yet the former is far more profitable. How to dress and ship poultry to market is also described. The bulletin will be sent free upon application to Dr. F. B. Battle, Director, Raleigh, N. C. Poultry raising with the proper care can be made more profitable than any other branch of industry, considering the amount of money required. The object of the organization of the poultry division of the Experiment Station is to show how this can best be done, and this is also the object of the above bulletin. Every farmer or his wife should have it.

Pet Squirrels.

To teach a squirrel to become accustomed to handling, however, requires some patience. Every time it is fed it is well to make a little clucking sound, or something he will recognize as a friendly call meaning feeding time. After having tamed him so he will eat while you are watching him, which he will do sometimes in one or two days, get him accustomed to having your hand around the body with a small cord, and take him out of the cage without lifting him by the cord. Take care, for he will bite and sink his little teeth almost through the bone of your finger if he has a chance.

Now take a glove that has been stuffed full of cotton, and stroke him gently with it. If he attempts to bite, which he is almost certain to do, give him a little tweak. Repeat this as often as he tries to bite, and he will soon learn that if he sits still he is all right. Now feed him from the thick glove. In a surprisingly short time he will give up all idea of biting and you can stroke him or pick him up with your hand and carry him about in your pocket. He will grow wonderfully attached to you, and when once tamed thoroughly he will never run away; although he may pay short visits to his mates, he will return to you. But pray remember this, that his deadly enemy is the cat.—Harper's Round Table.

VIROGINIA'S ICE MINE.

It is One of the Greatest Wonders in This Country.

One of the greatest curiosities in the United States, or in the world, perhaps, is the wonderful ledge of ice which exists, even in the midst of the hottest summer, in Scott county, Va. This natural icehouse is situated on the north side of Stone mountain and about six miles from the mouth of a small stream known as Stony creek. The marvel is said to have been known to at least one of the early settlers, a Mr. Dauridge, who, it is alleged, discovered it while deer hunting away back in 1830. Owing to the fact that the land on which it was situated could not be bought, Mr. Dauridge positively refused to tell of the whereabouts of the ice ledge, and only visited the place when it was absolutely necessary to obtain a supply to be used in case of sickness.

The old man died many years ago, and from that time until 1893 the location of Dauridge's ice mine was unknown, the old gentleman having never even taken his own family into the secret.

In a party last mentioned, however, a number of herb diggers visited the unfrequented region contiguous to Stone mountain and were fortunate enough to rediscover the lost ice mine.

During two or three months in the middle of summer the ice is only protected from the sun's rays by a thick growth of moss. The formation of the ice layer is similar to that of a coal vein, being thin in some places and thicker in others, the average thickness being about four feet. Persons of some scientific attainments who have visited the place for the purpose of studying the wonder say that it has the appearance of having been there since the time of the ice age, which the geologists talk so much about. Another plausible theory is that somewhere beneath the bed is situated a great natural laboratory where ether is constantly formed and expelled, and that the process of freezing is now constantly going on. Whatever view is taken it is one of the greatest natural wonders the state affords.—St. Louis Republic.

Miles on the Indian. A champion has risen up for the Indian in the person of General Miles. The Indian fighter has become the most earnest and aggressive of Indian defenders. This fact and an energetic defense of General Custer are the salient points in the Miles memoirs. In his opinion the red man has distinguished himself as diplomat, statesman and warrior and may be good even while he is alive. In speaking of Custer, General Miles says, "I have no patience with those who would kick a dead lion," and he attributes the lion's death in part to general ignorance throughout the army as to the strength of the enemy, and in part to the failure of Major Reno to assume responsibility for the movements of his forces.—Chicago Journal.

Notes. It is a somewhat singular fact that the rarest of all noses is that found where one would naturally expect to find it—in the middle of the face. Taking 100 heads at random, one will not find, on an average, more than three in which the bridge of the nose descends perpendicularly from a straight line drawn exactly between the eyes.

Caged monkeys are tolerably certain to give an indication of coming bad weather, being then more ill natured and quarrelsome than at any other time.

X-Rays and a Ruby. Elizabeth Banks, a journalistic writer in England, took her pocket book to be photographed under the X-ray process, in order to see whether the picture would reveal the presence of the coins within it. This it did, and as she was counting the disks shown through the leather, she perceived a small black point of familiar outline. Then she exclaimed: "I have found my ruby!"

CANINE FRIEND IN NEED.

How the Greyhound Saved the Little Spaniel.

"Talk about the sagacity of dogs," remarked Jenkins as he scanned a survey of the records of the good deeds done by canines in general. "Why, I saw something one day which beats the world—something which, in addition to proving the reasoning power of dogs, showed also that some of them at least possess a great capacity for affection for their own kind. A friend of mine up town owns several dogs, among the lot being a magnificent greyhound and a diminutive spaniel, the two dogs, notwithstanding the disparity in size, being warm friends. One summer day the dog catcher wagon was making the rounds and, as usual, was missing the curs while corralling the animals which are well taken care of. It happened that my friend's front gate had been left open, and the two dogs mentioned escaped into the street just as the wagon turned the corner. There was a great cry on the part of the catchers, who grasped their nets and made a scramble for the little spaniel, not seeming to like the idea of tackling the big hound. The poor little spaniel realized her danger and attempted to escape. She flew like one possessed in every direction, only to be headed off by the men with the nets and a score of small boys. She finally halted, panting, in the middle of the street, and one of the men approached her with his net. It seemed that the little thing's doom was sealed.

"Suddenly there was a fierce bark, and the big greyhound came leaping into the crowd, scattering the small boys and compelling the catchers to take to the wagon. The hound reached the side of the spaniel and, taking in the situation, reached down, grasped his wee companion in his capacious mouth and was off down the street like a shot. He didn't stop for the gate, but with a great graceful leap, was over the fence, and then, gently depositing the spaniel on the ground, stood wagging his tail, as if knowing that he had discomfited their enemies, while the spaniel gambled and made the welkin ring with her shrill barks. If that wasn't a great thing, I don't know."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

NOTICE OF SALE, Of Large Body of Valuable Timber and Valuable Tracts of Land.

Pursuant to a judgment of the Superior Court of Jones county, in that certain action in special proceedings entitled C. E. Fox, Administrator, Plaintiff, vs. Frank M. Jenkins and others, Infants, and L. M. Hadnot guardian for said infants, by which judgment the said C. E. Fox administrator was appointed Commissioner to sell said timber and lands. The undersigned commissioner as directed by said judgment, will on Monday the 14th day of December 1896, at 12 o'clock m. sell to the highest bidder for cash at the Court House door in Trenton, all the timber of every kind standing above 100 feet in height, measuring above 10 inches at the base, when with a Blackbutt line S 80° West 104 poles to a Blackbutt line, just above the head of Wm. Munroe Branch in a fit, then S 23° W. 43 poles to a stake in the run of the Branch, then down the various courses of the said Mundine Branch to White Oak river, then down the said river to a stake at the South end of the Stevenson-Manly, some times called the compromise line, then N 78° 12' E, East 308 poles to the Mulberry, the beginning, containing 333 acres more or less.

Now. One other tract in the said county of Jones, beginning at Gibson's bridge, running with the main or public road up to Amos Heath's line on said public road near the Trenton road, and thence with the various courses of his line to the river known as the Roberts Low grounds, also another piece or parcel of land beginning at Smith's Mill bridge, running up with the Polkville road to Buck Savannah road to Amos Heath's line, thence with his and Lewis Bynum's—Mrs. R. C. Oldfield's, Eugenia M. Oldfield's lines to the river, thence down the river to the beginning. The two last described tracts being the lands allotted to the heirs of B. Jenkins in the division of the lands belonging to Bynum and Jenkins (Lewis Bynum and Basil Jenkins deceased), said two tracts containing about 742 acres. Also one other tract near White Oak river about 44 miles from Newville adjoining the lands of F. P. Hutcheson on the West and Mansel Collins on the North and East, being the same conveyed to B. Jenkins by Simon Dixon by and dated July 4-12—containing 30 acres more or less.

And at the same time and place the undersigned Commissioner will sell to the highest bidder for cash the lands above described less the timber standing, growing or otherwise there on measuring above 100 feet in trees when cut. The timber yet to be cut and like-wise the land will be sold in tracts. This November 12th, 1896. C. E. FOX, Commissioner, H. L. GIBBS, Attorney.

Opening the pocketbook, she searched in the space indicated by the black point on the photograph, and there, tucked in between two folds of leather, she discovered a small ruby which she had lost some time before and could nowhere find. It had slipped from a ring which she wore at a moment when she was taking something from the pocket book, and had glided in between two thicknesses of leather. There its presence was altogether unsuspected, and would have remained so until after the pocketbook was worn out and discarded if this extraordinary method of photography had not revealed it.
