A Borrowed Umbrella Returned.

The latest and biggest umbrella story is told by one of Farmington's merchants. Four years ago he loaned an umbrella to a lady, who failed to return it. (as usual,) and in time the loan was forgotten. One lay quite recently, however, the lady walked into the store with an umbrella and said: "Mr .- , here is na umbrella which I borrowed of you some days ago. I thank you ry much, and I guess it is all laht." Suiting the action to her words, she opened the umbrells and band the covering torn, and said, Well, I guess I better fix this efore I return it," and, in spite of saything the merchant could say, umbrella was sent to the city ere it was newly covered and an returned in due form to the er.-Farmington (Me) Chron-
