TOO MUCH HANNA. While there are a few matters of November 3rd, which are not fully settled, as yet, there is one matter that the public is becoming extremely sick of and that is, Mark Hanna.

While Mr. Hanna was unquestionably an important figure in the last campaign, and a most useful personage to the Republican party, now that the election is over the public ought to be given a rest on Hannaniam.

However serviceable Mr. Hanna has proven himself to his party, the country at large is not now interested in him, and the constant prominence he is given in the newspapers, being concerned in everything and responsible for everything, whether it is the price of wheat or the weather, is becoming decidedly stale reading.

The Republican party has won, but it is not considerate or fair that the party should continue to perpetuate Hanna and force him upon a long suffering people.

If Mark Hanna worked as he did during the campaign with the promise of preferment if his party carried the country, well enough, give him his office.

If he worked for the good of his party, without wanting reward, let him retire from public consideration with the plaudits of his own party following him.

But whichever it may be, let there be a surcease of Hanna. The public has a few rights and it is fully entitled to a let up on the too much Hannaniam which they have been forced to endure for months past.

REVIEW. McClure's Magazine will begin publication in the December number of a series of views of the authentic historic places and monuments in Palestine. It is only by very recent exploration and study that many of the more significant of these places and monuments have been certainly identified, and not a few of them have never been pictured until now.

Last spring the editor of McClure's organized a considerable expedition, and accompanied by a photographer specially skilled and experienced in such work made a tour of nearly the whole of Palestine, and took photographs of whatever of importance the latest and most authoritative investigations have definitely connected with Biblical incident and history.

Special attention was given to the great ancient highway leading from Damascus to Jerusalem and on down through Bethlehem to Hebron; and many views were obtained to localities and objects of the first interest that will be entirely new to the public. They have been produced with great care, and will make one of the most attractive features of McClure's through the coming months.

This year sees in the United States not only the greatest corn crop ever raised, but likewise the greatest apple crop. There will certainly be sent to Europe, by the beginning of 1897, 1,400,000 barrels of apples, perhaps more. The heavy shipments last four months, beginning about Sept. 1, a man who has plenty of time on his hands has been calculating how many miles of barreled apples we produce this year. He has found that, if the barrels were laid end to end around the earth and back, there would be 57,000 miles of them, enough to go round the globe at the equator twice, with 7,000 miles to spare.
