EXTINCTION OF PATRIOTISM.

The original meaning of patriotism, the following of its litera meaning in deed and action b those of former times, both in way and civil life, and the application e patriotism today, seems so widely divergent as to cause many to doub the existence of patriotism, in it true sense, and its being extinct.

Perhaps this seeming extinction of patriotism in the affairs of today is altogether due to the peculia situation of our material matters the absence of any issue that ap peals to our natures, as would : foreign invasion or interference with American citizens or their rights. Instead our conflict; and creatures to bathe in. There was those over every day questions, the usually a trouble between them as struggle for a temporal existence. and the clash with others in thi fight drives away those better emo tions which should animate us, and make patriotism as much a factor it our civil life, as it would be if thin conntry was in conflict with a foreign 100.

If patriotism should become : reality in our every life what a difference it would make in the world. and yet in living a life of charitable ness, there is found a wonderfu amount of patriotism, but few there are who would apply it in the struggle for a financial or social supremacy, or the gratification of personal ambitions.

In the financial fight of today. every effort of the contestants is for not merely the success of self, but the overthrow of others.

The political campaigns of today are filled with a mixture of patriotism and personal greed, patriotism. being served to the shouting crowdbefore election day, and being en-outlook, the appearance of a world which seems to seek self alone, there Biliousness is a latent patriotism. The time is not here for its urgent display, but some day it will burst forth, glorilying its surroundings by its appearince and arouse' mankind to onse of its duties.

There is more Catarrh in this section of he country than all other diseases put to Pin gether, and until the last few years was apposed to be incurable. No greater opportunity is fur nished any one to-lay than is that offered the politician to act the patriot. In success, he may subor dinate self interest, the gratification of which may lead to discomfort of his town or section, and looking first to the promotion of the best interests of his community, secure these even if his personal designa may not receive all that heart could desire.

It is in this atter lack of true love of people and section, which so pervades our civil life, as is most strongly exemplified in our politicians, that causes the cry "patriotism is dead," which is so frequently heard.

The extension of one man power in the control of finance, society and government in this country in leading to the extinction of patriotism. It is not the thought of others which first enters the mind, but it is the gratification of personal intercate and ambitions, and in the struggle to satisfy these all else is forgotten, time rolls on and selfishness, to the exclusion of all else, predomi-Dates

The world is by no means full up yet Queensland has still an area of 430,000, 00 acres to a population of about 450, 000 people. Its government has lately been offering more tempting condition: to settlers, who may now hold ordinary land for 20 years at a rental of threepene per acre, while "scrub land" may be se lected in areas up to 10,000 acres and hele for 30 years at an average rental peacre of very much less than a penny

This cught to be good news for many struggling for a bare living in the moth er country. Of course the climatic conditions in many portions of the colony are trying, but so they are in western Australia, which at the present time is adding 750 per week to its population, and the revenue of which has been increasing at a rate far outstripping the calculations of its treasurer. But this may be only temporary, and it may be that Queensland will be the home of millions of our fellow countrymen after the golden age in the west of the colonial continent has passed away.-West minster Gazotte. Ancient Wills.

The antiquity of legal methods is euriously illustrated by the recent discovery of the oldest will extant. This unique document was uncarthed by Professor Petrie at Kahum, Egypt, and is at least 4,000 years old. In its phrascology the will is singularly modern in form, and it is said that it might be admitted to probate today.
