GOVERNMENT BY INJUNCTION.

The Raleigh News-Observer's editorials which have appeared in that paper during the last Assembly, and which have had for their subject the question of the North Carolina rail road lease to the Southern Railway, are now being freely circulated or slips and sent to newspapers in this State, probably also to the press of other States.

It is hardly possible that the News Observer is doing this of its own accord, and the circulation of these slips taken from a professed Democratic newspaper, and sent broadcast in the interest of a Republican State Executive, will appear a singular proceeding, if judged from a political point of view.

The News-Observer, always a political prude when passing upon the politics of others, appears to be in a position to be severely criticised for its own politics, if any one cared to past upon it, and its protestation in the name of Democracy, in behalf of Governor Russell and Senator Marion Butler, are sufficient to place serious doubt upon its political character, especially upon its claim of being the organ of the State Democratic party.

The cry in these editorials, of the esteemed News-Observer, of "Government by Injunction," and the "Rights of the People," when applied to the question at hand, namely, the annulment of the North Carolina railroad lease to the Southern Railway, has a strangely populist tone and one very far, if the JOURNAL might be pardoned for saying so, from the principles of Democracy the esteemed contemporary was supposed to represent.

The "Government by Injunction" in this lease matter seems to be nothing more or less than the effort of Federal judge and railroad corporation to determine whether a State has the right to repudiate a contract made and entered into in good faith by the said railroad company.

The protest made against this effort on the part of the railroad company to protect its rights under the contract which it has made, has a true sound of Democratic principle, for there can be no idea of repudiation in honest Democracy, and the object urged by the News and Observer under the specious plea of "rights of the people" is nothing less than the repudiation of a contract entered into by the State, through its representatives, and the Southern Railway Company, which was made in good faith by both parties to the contract.

Under this contract there can be no question of the invasion of State's rights, or a doubt thrown upon State sovereignty. There is no defiance of the people's rights, for they are not invaded, nor attempted to be invaded; rather it seems to be an invasion of the rights of a railroad corporation, by the sovereign powers of a State, which the State seeks to destroy.

This being the case, the News and

Observer ignores every argument, except its own shouting, and defies that sacred provision in the constitution which forbids a State to impair the obligation of a contract, which if it did would put itself beyond the line of any moral or legitimate defence.

The individual and State come under the same Code of laws; repudiation in one is no worse nor less reprehensible than in the other. They are both guilty of repudiation, if they do so, and there is no good plea which can be urged for the repudiation of any just contract, entered into with good faith by all parties concerned.

ONE IN A THOUSAND.

One summer, several years ago, while railroading in Mississippi I became badly affected with malarial blood poison, that impaired my health for more than two years. Several offensive ulcers appeared on my legs; and nothing seemed to give permanent relief until I took of Botanic Blood Balm (B. B. B.), which cured me entirely. M. D. LANE, Deveraux, Ga.

Never too Late to Learn.

A remarkable student named Borysik has just passed the final examination at Warsaw University qualifying him to practice as a doctor of medicine in Russia.

Borysik was born in 1822, and was educated at Suralki Higher Trade School with a view of becoming a doctor. After passing his matriculation, lack of funds prevented him from at once proceeding to the university, and he was compelled to work as a tutor for twenty years in order to save enough money to enable him to continue his studies. At the end of that time, he presented himself at Warsaw Medical Academy, and passed the entrance examination with distinction.

Before he could begin his studies, the Polish rebellion of 1863 broke out, and Borysik, who was now forty-one years of age, threw himself into the movement with all the enthusiasm of a youthful revolutionist. The revolt was suppressed, and Borysik was exiled to Siberia, where for thirty-two years he underwent hard labor in the silver mines. In 1895 he received a free pardon, and returned to Warsaw.—London Mail

CHURCHING IN ICELAND.

Each Country Folk Who Travel May Find it Worth While.

John Ackerman, in her articles on "Three Women in Iceland," in The Woman's Home Companion, tells how she attended a country church in the northern part of the island.

"The Sabbath day was full of interest, for we had not attended service in the rural districts. In the early morning we betook ourselves to the front of the house to watch the country folk assembling. In the distance we saw them fording the river in a long line, and in another direction men, women, and children rode slowly over the mountains down to the farms. What the Sabbath day means to these people few can realize. Some of them never see a face besides those of the members of the family from one church day until the other. What wonder, then, that they began to assemble fully two hours before church time? A peculiar form of salutation prevails outside of the cities. With this we had not yet been made familiar, and our astonishment can well be imagined when we saw the men dismount, embrace and kiss each other. I learned later that this is the usual form of salutation among men in the inland districts.

"The hour of service arrived, and, in company with the preacher, who wore a high silk hat, a loose, flowing gown buttoned from chin to hem and a great white Elizabeth ruff around his neck we entered the church. From the back seat we had full view of the congregation, and, not being familiar with the language, the time was passed in meditation on the situation.

"In the pulpit the pastor was assisted into a long white robe, which fell over the black one, and down his back hung a large surplice of bright velvet, upon which a golden cross was wrought. On the altar two great candles about a yard long and three inches thick shed a dim light. These were the especial charge of an official who gave out the hymns and between times snuffed the candles with an old time pair of snuffers. After church the worshippers dispersed, and many of them did not reach their homes until night."

HANK WAS ALL RIGHT.

But the Squire Was Doubtful About His Integrity Being Unimpaired.

"I never took to a man as I did to Hank Stuffer. He moved in here without making no noise about it, and the main't no better neighbor in th' county."

It was Farmer Waddy that was doing the talking, and the squire of the town ship only interrupted to ask whether the farmer had ever missed any chickens or shot before Hank settled in the vicinity.

"No, I never did," admitted Waddy "but I never lost nuthin of th' kind afore you got that man of yours. I'd trust Hank Stuffer with my life squire."

"Don't be too confidin," insisted the squire. "Many's th' apple I've seen figgered perfe' on th' outside, but rotten at th' core. Hank seems all right but I wouldn't be surprised no day if he fetched up afore me. Thing hasn't right in this community since he jined it."

"That's so, but there's a millin' things happened outside of Hank's comin. His folks couldn't eat all th' things what's stole, an he don't see autin."

"Watch him," insisted the squire. And he took his leave with a fine imitation of the man who looks after the morals of the entire neighborhood.

Farmer Waddy did watch, and he hired others to help him watch. If th' were factin, it would be the squire's his new man who was trapped. But th' truth is an exacting mistress. It was worthless fellow living in a log barn that was doing all the stealing. I hasn't the slightest bearing on the case that he was selling all the plunder to the squire at half price.—Detroit Free Press.

A Wonderful Mathematician.

Zerah Colburn, born in 1804, was the most remarkable natural mathematician every known. He was able to raise 1 to the sixteenth power, this comprising 16 figures, and was right in every particular. Once he was requested to name the factors which produced the number 347,483 and immediately gave the correct answer. He was asked the square root of 106,929, and before the figure could be written down he gave the answer.
