WASHINGTON NEWS.

One Thousand Amendments for the Tariff Bill.

Civil Service Law Getting Heavy Blows. McKinley Defers All Measures to the Tariff. Color Line in Augusta. A Long Term as Justice.

JOURNAL BUREAU, WASHINGTON, D. C., May 3. Tariff history is repeating itself. The Senate made the McKinley tariff, by attaching about 800 amendments to the original bill; the Senate made the Wilson tariff, by attaching a few less amendments than it had put upon the McKinley bill, and if the Dingley bill becomes a law in anything like the shape in which the Republican members of the Finance Committee have submitted it to the full committee, the Senate will have another tariff bill to its credit, notwithstanding the Constitutional provision that all the revenue bills shall originate in the House. In the number of amendments added the Dingley bill breaks all records, the number exceeding one thousand. No date has yet been agreed upon to report the bill to the Senate, but unless something not now expected shall occur to prevent it will be reported in the course of ten days. It looks now as though the hottest fight over the tariff would be between Republicans, instead of between Democrats and Republicans.

The civil service law is being attacked from all directions and a very noticeable attack was made by Representative Corliss, of Mich., in a speech made at the annual banquet of the alumni of Columbian University, of which he is a member. He started out by saying that the prosperity of the University was largely dependent upon the number of young men who come to Washington as Department clerks, and take up courses study after office hours, but that the civil service law was shutting on this supply and filling the Departments with a lot of work done by human machines. He then said: "In my judgment the civil service is a system devised by some ingenious minister under monarchical government to protect the king against the wrath of the people. Under such governments the long continued distribution of the political patronage made the people envious, and this system was no doubt devised to prevent revolution, but in a republican form of government where the voice of the people is supreme, this civil service law becomes a most obnoxious and arbitrary restriction of human liberty. The House of Representatives is the most direct representative body of the people in this country. If the civil service law is wise why not apply it to this branch of our government? How many of the older members of Congress, now holding the most important positions because of their long service and experience, could successfully pass a civil service examination for the position of messenger boy? In my judgment there is not one of them who would not retire rather to private life than to submit to such humiliating examinations."

While it is known that President McKinley favors the annexation of Hawaii and believes that it will be accomplished during his administration, there is no probability that any steps towards annexation will be publicly taken by the administration until after the tariff bill gets through Congress, unless it becomes necessary to hurry up annexation in order to forestall any efforts that Japan may feel disposed to make for the purpose of building Hawaii. Mr. McKinley has fully determined that so far as his control extends nothing shall get before Congress that would be likely to detract attention from the tariff bill until that measure has been disposed of.

Should Justice Field live until the 16th day of next August, and the present state of his health indicates that he will live much longer, he will have served longer on the bench of the U. S. Supreme Court than any other man ever did. This it has been his ambition to do, and it has kept him at work some years after he was eligible for retirement on full pay. When that date has been passed he expects to retire.

It has often been remarked that opposites are attracted to each other, and many examples of its truthfulness have been seen in the Senate, but none more striking than the close personal friendship that has grown up between Senator Tillman, of S. C., (the pitchfork man), and Foraker, of Ohio. They spend much of their leisure time together, although their political opinions are as wide apart as those of any two men could possibly be.

The color line may be sharply drawn in the Senate if President McKinley insists upon standing by the nomination of J. W. Lyons, a colored man, to be postmaster at Augusta, Ga. The entire Georgia delegation in Congress protested against this appointment and it is said Postmaster General Gary stands with them in opposition to Lyons, who is the Georgia member of the Republican National Committee.

Treasury officials say they feel no uneasiness concerning the new outflow of gold to Europe, which last week started off with over $7,000,000. They say that it is nominal and point to records for some years past to prove it, but there are prominent members of the administration who do not like it, and who will watch the outflow with more or less alarm.

THE STATE CAPITAL.

Quiet Election. Supreme Court Adjourned. A Memorial Chapel. Photographs as Evidence.

JOURNAL BUREAU, RALEIGH, N. C., May 3. Today the city election is in progress, but there is very little chance of a change in the city government. Never before have we had so competent and conscientious management in all the departments and the Republicans and negroes in many instances will vote for the same democratic government.

The public printers have about finished the printing of the new laws except the index. That will be done and the work ready for distribution early next week. The council of State, to whom was left the appointment of a State printer, have taken no steps looking to this. Stewart Bros., the present printers term expires July 1st.

The Supreme Court adjourned on Saturday and all the judges returned to their homes until the fall.

The Teacher's Assembly program has been completed and it is a specially fine one.

The Odd Fellows of this State yesterday celebrated their 78th anniversary. President Kilgo of Trinity College preached the anniversary sermon.

At the death of Mrs. E. G. Reade of this city some months ago she left $500 to the Soldier's Home in memory of a brother. Mr. Stromach the Superintendent of the Home decided to use the money to erect a chapel at the Home. It is nearly completed and will cost $250. It will be called the "Reade Memorial Chapel."

The Naval Battalion of this State will probably join South Carolina and Georgia battalions in their naval drills this summer at Port Poyal S. C.

The fine rains of the past few days have been gladly greeted by the farmers. Prof. Von Hermann of the U. S. Weather Bureau yesterday told me that the outlook was for a cool summer.

Secretary of State Thompson Saturday paid into the treasury $15,851 which was his office receipts during April for seal fees, sale of Supreme court reports, land grants, insurance taxes and licenses. The receipts in March were over $20,000.

The Supreme court holds that photographs can be used as competent witnesses in trials for homicides, railway collisions, etc. It is the first decision in this State that a photograph can be admitted as evidence. The court sustained in the appeal about two-thirds of the decisions of the lower court.

The revenue collections in this district for April were as follows: Spirits, $14,975; cigars and cigarettes, $12,912; snuff, $240; tobacco, $50,741; with a total of $78,850.

Judge Hoke says he has paid an income tax on his salary in excess of $1,000. The treasurer tells him a judge's salary is exempt.

FIRE AT PITTSBURG.

The Most Destructive Known in This City Since 1845. Total Loss at Least $2,000,000.

PITTSBURG, May 3.—The greatest fire that has visited this city since the memorable one of 1895 started shortly after midnight in the immense wholesale grocery establishment of Thomas C. Jenkins on Penn avenue and Liberty street.

Three large blocks, extending from Liberty to Penn avenue and from Fifth street to Sixth street, have been reduced to smoldering ruins.

The loss will exceed $2,000,000 and is well covered by insurance. Among the buildings destroyed are Jenkins' wholesale grocery establishment, Horne's six-story dry goods establishment, Horne's office building, the Duquesne Theater, and the Methodist Book Concern.

The fire started in the cellar of the Jenkins Building in a pile of barrels filled with waste paper. The flames were discovered by watchman William Hunter while making his rounds on the third floor.
