WASHINGTON NEWS.

The Tariff Bill the Most Talked of Thing Now.

Rivalry Between Old and New Senators. Broker Chapman to Serve a Term in Jail. The Bimetallite Commission Senate Committees.

JOURNAL BUREAU, WASHINGTON, D. C., May 7.

The Dingley tariff bill, which was this week reported to the Senate and which will be taken up by the Senate on the 18th inst., is the most absorbing topic of conversation in Congressional and administration circles. The Senators who amended the bill kept their secrets well and the amended bill contained many absolute surprises, not only for the public but for Senators and Representatives. One who had never been in Washington when an amended tariff bill was reported to the Senate might suppose from the cyclone of disapproval that it was in danger of an early death. But the old stagers know that these shouts of disapproval from members of the majority party are regular accompaniments of every amended tariff bill reported to the Senate. It is only when a tariff bill has been reported to the Senate that the hardest tariff fighting begins, and the hardest fighters are always a rule members of the party that will have to be responsible for the tariff. The gentlemen who are now talking most against the Dingley bill do not expect to vote against it; only to get certain schedule changed in the interest of their constituents. The retroactive clause of the bill has been dropped and one inserted making the new duties take effect July one. The duty of 10 cents a pound on tea and the internal revenue tax of 44 cents a barrel on beer, ale, porter, etc., in addition to the existing tax of $1 a barrel, are to be only imposed from the date the bill becomes a law until January 1, 1900. Senator Allison says these two items were put in to raise revenue to offset the loss of revenue caused by the large importation known to have already been made of goods upon which the duties will be increased. No statement has yet been prepared showing the estimated revenue that the bill as it now stands will produce, but Senator Aldrich has promised to make one the day the bill is taken up.

Senator Gorman and Foraker had a little talking scrap this week that served to show how much alive the old idea still is, in the heads of veteran Senators that new Senators must be seen and not heard. Mr. Foraker offered an amendment to the left over Sundry Civil Appropriation bill which was under consideration in the Senate, appropriating $400,000 for the improvement of the Tennessee River below Chattanooga. Whether it was the appropriation itself or because it was offered by a new Senator is immaterial, but Senator Gorman proceeded to lecture Senator Foraker's party for its reckless extravagance and other things, including the newly reported tariff bill. Senator Foraker promptly accepted the challenge and proceeded to defend his party in a vigorous five-minute speech. Then Mr. Gorman got in a few sneering remarks about Mr. Foraker being new to the Senate, but the latter went back at him assuring him sarcastically that the new comers would look to him for the guidance. At this point Senator Allison asked Mr. Foraker to withdraw his amendment and he did so.

The U. S. District Attorney has notified the counsel for the other parties indicted at the same time that broker Chapman was for contempt in refusing to answer questions asked by members of the Senate committee that was investigating the Senate sugar scandal, which originated while the Wilson tariff bill was being considered by the Senate, that he will call their cases up for trial on May 17, and Chapman's counsel has been notified to bring him to Washington to serve thirty days in jail, in accordance with his sentence. Efforts are still being made to get President McKinley to pardon Chapman. The other parties under indictment are Henry O. Havemeyer and John E. Searies, of the sugar trust, John O. Schriver and E. J. Edwards, newspaper correspondents, and A. L. Seymour and J. W. McCartney, brokers.

President McKinley's three special envoys, Senator Wolcott, Hon. Adlai E. Stevenson, and Gen. Paine, have started for Europe upon their bimetallic mission. They carry the good wishes of men of all shades of opinion in Congress, but there are few who believe that they will accomplish anything tangible by going.

The vacancies in the Senate committee have all been filled but there is considerable dissatisfaction among the new Senators over the assignments given them by the committees of their respective parties. This was unavoidable, simply because there were more Senators than there were desirable committee places to give out. Of course every Senator who failed to get what he wanted has an idea that there was favoritism in the distribution, but there is no doubt that the committees which made the assignments did the best they could, and their work was approved by their party colleagues.

The free homestead bill, which passed the Senate at the last session and died in the House with the expiration of the Congress, has again been passed by the Senate. All of the Republicans in the House and thirty odd democrats voted against a resolution instructing Speaker Reed to appoint the House committees.

GREEKS RETREAT

Pharsalia Abandoned by Prince Constantine and Taken by the Turks. A Battle of 15 Hours. LONDON.—The Greek army has retreated from Pharsalia to Domokos, some thirteen miles nearer Athens. This movement was made, it appears, in consequence of Ethem Pasha's success in breaking through the Greek line which extended from Pharsalia to Velesino. The Greeks under General Smolenski, at Velesino, being separated from the main body, retired to Yolo, where they will be protected to some extent by the Greek fleet. The larger fraction of the Greek army under Prince Constantine retired to Domokos to avoid capture by an overwhelming force. It is not yet clear which section of the Greek army Ethem Pasha will first give his attention to, but it is thought to be likely that he will attempt to rout the already weakened and demoralized army at Domokos. It appears that there was severe fighting for fifteen hours in villages in front of Pharsalia, with results unfavorable to the Greeks.

According to special dispatches received from Athens this evening the news of the evacuation of Pharsalia has caused unqualified despair at the Greek capital, and the irritation is finding vent against the powers for non-interference and threatens to become so strong as to compel M. Ralli, the Greek premier, to ask the ambassadors to intervene. Special dispatches say that Prince Constantine has occupied entrenched positions at Domokos, dominating the plain. Greece, the dispatches add, is willing to accept an armistice.

A special dispatch from Athens asserts that the losses of the Greeks in the fighting at Velesino and Pharsalia yesterday were certainly one thousand killed and wounded, while the Turks lost fully six thousand killed and wounded.

A Genuine Air-Ship.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., May 6.—Professor Arthur Bernard, physical instructor of the Young Men's Christian Association, of Nashville, made a successful trip in an airship constructed by himself. He started from the Tennessee Centennial Exposition Grounds. The ship moved off in perfect order, and passed out of sight in a few minutes. Mr. Bernard returned with his airship tonight. He says he has perfected a machine which will fly under ordinary conditions.

Capt. M. B. Rowe, of Fredericksburg, Va., has in his possession a most remarkable war relic. It consists of three bullets joined together. They were plowed up on the Bloody Angle battlefield, near Spotsylvania Courthouse, where bullets flew thick and fast during the fierce fighting at that point in May, 1864, and it is supposed that these bullets met in mid-air during the thickest of the fight and became welded together.
