THE TARIFF FIGHT.

Its Humorous Side from Senatorial Standpoint.

Wanted an Appropriation for Self Protection. Question of Sugar Speculation. That Currency Commission.

JOURNAL BUREAU, WASHINGTON, D. C., June 4. The public sees very little of the tariff fighting, as up to this time every schedule has been adopted just as it was recommended by the Republican steering committee. But a comparison of the schedules which have been adopted by the Senate with the same schedules in the amended bill when it was reported to the Senate shows that there has been hard fighting behind the scenes. All of them are different, and nearer what they were when the bill left the House.

The public is getting just a little bit tired of the exhibitions in the House. It was all well enough for the minority to register a protest against the action of Speaker Reed in declining to appoint the committees, but after that action has been repeatedly endorsed by the votes of the majority, a continuation of the protests is regarded as about as senseless as the act of the fool who wrote letters threatening Speaker Reed's life if he did not allow the Cuban resolution to be adopted by the House. The whole theory of this government is that a majority shall rule. That is precisely what is being done in the House. The minority have the right of appealing to the voters, who can turn the majority out if they do not approve what they have done, but if they keep on as they have been going they will disgust many who would naturally be inclined to act with them. There are a lot of fools, but no careful observer can doubt that common sense is the ruling power in this country, in politics as well as in everything else.

The tariff is by no means a humorous subject, but the dulness of the debate is once in a while relieved by attempts of Senators to inject a little humor. One of these times was when the schedule containing glass used for spectacles was under discussion. The Democrats claimed that the duty was excessively high and tried to ridicule Senator Aldrich into backing down from the committee amendment. Senator White started the ball by saying: "I can well understand why you want to prohibit the wearing of spectacles. It is because you don't want them to read this bill, but at the same time you ought to have some consideration for the people who like to read the proceedings of this body and other less interesting things. It does not make any difference to me, because I do not use glasses, but it is rather hard on those who do have to use them." At this point Senator Caffery said: "And it seems to me that the Senator from Rhode Island ought not to undertake to say what sort of spectacles people are to use." Then Senator White added: "A spectacle will be made of this bill by the time these amendments are adopted," and everybody laughed. If the reader fails to perceive the hilarious humor it must be set down to his not being a Senator.

Representative Lewis, of Washington, was very frank with the House, in connection with his attempt to add an amendment to the Government Printing Office deficiency appropriation, passed this week, making $10,000, out of money already appropriated for public work on Puget Sound immediately available. It was such an extraordinary proceeding that Representative Cannon said Mr. Lewis surely was not serious about it. Mr. Lewis replied: "I certainly am. It is a serious matter with me and the House is likely to be deprived of the pleasure of my company in the future, unless this matter is taken care of." The amendment of Mr. Lewis, was, of course, declared to be out of order, as everybody knew it was; but he says his constituents need the work the money would give them, and care nothing for parliamentary points of order.

The positive denial of Senator Smith, of New Jersey, of the charges that he had speculated in sugar stock, and of Senator Aldrich of the charge that the sub-committee, of which he was chairman, had been influenced in any manner by the sugar trust or any of its agents while engaged in preparing the sugar schedule of the tariff has had the effect of making some Senators who had favored a sugar investigation change their minds. But Senator Tillman, the author of the resolution ordering an investigation, isn't one of them. He says that Senator Smith's denial has merely raised a question of sanity between him and the newspaper correspondent who charged over his own signature that Senator Smith had been speculating in sugar stock.

Secretary Gage's statement that the continuation of the appointment of a currency commission by the President is a part of the program for the entire session of Congress has brought out the fact that the silver men in the Senate, while not opposed to the idea of a commission, will oppose allowing the President to name all its members. As the silver men see the majority in the Senate their votes will not be in demand, so they will not be nominated. A proposition to have a commission of the same number of members as the President's.

the President, the Senate and the House respectively, is now being discussed by the silver Senators, and their final agreement is likely to be something on that order.

THE COTTON MARKETS.

June 4. New York cotton market closed at 7.18 for August. J. E. LATHAM.

New York, June 4th, p. m. Macy & Pendleton, Bankers & Brokers, in their cotton market review say:

"Cover shorts in cotton. Last year the Government Bureau report June 10 gave the acreage as 28,118,154 and the 'Chronicle' report was 29,056,545. The Government acreage increased 14.8 per cent, and the 'Chronicle' reported increase 33.9 per cent. The condition was reported by the Government 97.3 and the proportion planted May 1 as 87.9. All official accounts indicate this year's June report will show increased acreage and generally good condition of the crop, but we are coming to the conclusion that even with the confirmation of the reports there is reason to doubt their having much effect on the market. Our reasons for changing front in this matter are based on the probable better demand for cotton goods and consequently a more lively appreciation of the very small stocks in sight. We cannot see our way clear to earnestly advise purchases of cotton except on very sharp breaks, but we feel that short selling may easily prove to be injudicious and result in losses."

Weyler May be Recalled.

WASHINGTON.—Weyler's recall from Cuba is the first action confidently expected by this Government from the change in the Spanish Ministry. It is understood that Spain will make every effort to induce Martinez Campos to undertake the pacification of the Island. Strong feeling exists in Madrid that a good deal of the present war in Cuba rests on Weyler personally more than on Spain. Serious charges have been filed at Madrid against Weyler, which will probably have to be met in court-martial.
