INPELICITIES OF JOURNALISM.

The lot of the country newspaper editor is a happy one and he has a goodly heritage. Rea the napular belief that he spends all his time supported till they were grown, the upon flowery beds of ease or promenading along the primrose paths of dalliange is not stric ly and accurately correct: He does, doubtless, have a good time and sees good days. But occasionally he is set in slippery places and his joy is turned into heaviness for a season.

We noted not long ago the trou-Comberland News. Our friend be- is the senior partner of the firm of P. We some times fight hard, but always fair."

And so it will be seen that while, as a rule, the ways of the country editor are ways of pleasantness, all his paths are not paths of peace .-Baltimore Sun.

A Wat Incident.

At Salisbury just before the clos the war the confederate govern nent released a large number ners. One, however, had the desire but not the strength to go home He left the prison and got to the cars just as the train was pulling out of the depot, his hand was on the rail but he did not have the power to get aboard. As he lay at the depot a lady said to a gentleman now living in Charlotte if he would get this poor fellow to her house she would look after him. He was taken to her home where he was kindly nursed until he dled. The lady baried him in her garden.

After the war relatives came to Salisbury to look after the body of the dead soldier. They asked the lady what family she had, she told them she had two little girls. The children were placed in a Female Seminary at the North where they received splendid educations and $50 per month for life, for her kindness to prisoners.

The young ladies married well and were still living at last account the writer had of them.-Charlotte
