Solicitor Poo Says Democrats will Sweep the State.

Applicants for Pensions. That Babb Voucher. Raleigh Street Improvement. Good Shooting Season. Arranging of Public Documents.

JOURNAL BUREAU. RALEIGH, N. C., October 30. As yet there has been no frost here. This is phenomenal. The result has been the opening of all the cotton. The crop is certainly larger than the farmers will admit.

The Auditor says there were about 1,200 new applicants for pensions this year, of which something like 300 passed but quite a number were dropped from the roll, owing mainly to deaths. This is particularly the case as to widows.

Superintendent John R. Smith of the penitentiary says his son, Dr. Kirby Smith will return from New York in about six weeks. He says there is nothing in the statement that Gov. Russell will make requisition for Kirby Smith, as he could not do so until the latter had been indicted.

Clerk Wimlish of the penitentiary did not relish the publication of his queer letter to Rev. Dr. T. W. Babb, in which the latter was gently dismissed as penitentiary chaplain. But the latter, the treasury officials plainly told him, was attached to and filed with Babb's voucher and hence was a public document. The fact is the treasury did not relish paying out the $900 to Babb for preaching any more than he did the $132 for whiskey, which was covered by the preceding voucher.

The officers of the colored State fair, which begins here next Tuesday, say that the exhibits will be very creditable. The only colored military company in the State, that of Capt. G. S. L. A. Taylor of Charlotte, will be in camp at the grounds with its full strength, 43.

Durham people have a new treatment for tramps who refuse to work out costs. Yesterday one was chained to a wagon by an ankle, his hands were tied behind him and he thus made the tour of the town on foot.

State Chemist W. A. Withers returned today from Washington, where he attended the National convention of chemists. He says the chief question discussed was that of pure food and food adulteration and that the question of good laws on this most important question will be more widely discussed this coming winter than ever before, all over the country.

The fact that reports are in hand from no less than 204 gold mines in this State shows a very remarkable and rapid development along that line, when the status of gold mining ten months ago is taken into account.

Reports to the bureau of labor statistics from 115 of the 185 cotton mills in this State which spin and weave show a daily consumption of 1,137 bales, or 335,686 a year.

The railway commission certainly gives to Gov. Russell's attorneys the cold shoulder. In fact it does not recognize them at all. The attorney general, whom it does recognize, is the quietest of all the State officers.

The petition for a change of route of the Raleigh Gaston railway at Gaston brings up again before the railway commission that matter. The conditions were made such that last winter the road dropped the project.

A veteran Republican remarked today, "The Russell rats are deserting the ship." By this he referred to the men who a year ago posed as friends of Russell and who now repudiate him.

No time should be lost in macadamizing the streets here. It is strange but true that some of the worst are those around the Capital square, one being equal to any in a country town for mud and irregularity.

As yet work has not begun on the hand some quarters for the Capital club. The building which occupied the site has been removed.

In nearly all the counties in the State the partridge shooting season begins next Monday. Birds are very abundant and well grown and there will be more sportsmen from other States than ever before.

The returns on the wool industry in this State, as made to the labor bureau, show 5,080 spindles in operation.

Solicitor Poo of Johnston was here yesterday. He says that if an election were to be held now the Democrats would carry that county by the largest majority in its history. The fact is that many of the Republicans recognize that the Democrats will sweep the State at the election next fall.

Solicitor Poo was attacked in the last issue of Senator Butler's paper for not sending to the grand jury of Wake county bills against the railways and against Dr. Kirby Smith. He says the writer of the article is either an ignorant or does him an intentional injustice. It is the custom for clerks of court to keep presentments sealed until they are ordered by him for the purpose of issuing subpoenas for the witness. At the last term of court the presentments were not made until the grand jury came into court to be discharged. Solicitor Poo says he is under no obligations to any railways, and never appeared for one in his life, but never attempted to make political capital by abusing them unfairly. He says he would think himself contemptible if while trying to build up waning political fortunes by abuse of railways he was at the same time riding free on their roads. He adds that it is just possible Senator Butler, editor of the Caucasian, will have to give up his passes. He concludes by saying: "The press should not try cases in advance of the courts."

The work of arranging the documents in the Auditor's office shows their confusion; due to the fire which destroyed the old capital and to the removal in April 1885. The need of a special fire proof building for the storage of document and records is most apparent. The capital building is small and too cramped for such uses.

THE COTTON SITUATION.

Market Still Discouraging to Owners of the Product. Trade Demand Light. Foreign Stocks Small.

In their Weekly market letter review, Macy and Pendleton, Bankers and Brokers, New York City, have the following on the Cotton situation.

"The stock of cloths at Fall River and Providence is now 1,486,000 pieces against 2,146,000 pieces a year ago. The price drags at 23 cents per yard, or around the lowest ever known, but a premium is paid for forward deliveries. The importations of cotton goods since January first still aggregate a value nearly twenty per cent. in excess of that of the imported goods during same period in 1893, and the enormous importing operations in wool and woollen goods in anticipation of the new tariff doubtless keeps the shelves of merchants clogged with low priced wool fabrics to the detriment of the cotton trade. The port receipts from September first to date are about 2,680,000 bales against about 2,260,000 bales in corresponding time last year. The exports from September first to date are about 1,175,000 bales against about 1,200,000 bales same time last year. New York stock is low and so is that of Liverpool and entirely out of line with the bear sentiment prevailing. From a Journal of Commerce report of foreign conditions, it appears that Great Britain exported cotton goods in 1893 representing 3,412,000 bales of raw cotton or about 290,000 bales more than all spinners in the United States consumed, which is another way of saying that if American spinners can compete with British spinners for their present available foreign business, there is a chance to double American production, because we can certainly take all their trade if advantages of having cotton at the doors of our mills and water power to drive spindles with, are of any account.

Our market and perhaps others became rather oversold as a necessary consequence better foreign cables have assisted somewhat in stopping the otherwise discouraging downward movement. There is still talk about a ten million bale crop and some enthusiastic bears, both South and North, are talking five cent cotton, basing it on the theory that as the season advances receipts will run to extraordinary proportions and drag the market downward in the absence of any considerable speculative or spinning demand. It is now conceded that European spinners are working under extraordinarily difficult circumstances, the trade falling below expectations in almost every particular. The stock over there remains very low and extremely so as compared with some previous years when cotton was selling much higher. The receipts on the whole are rather more free for the season than expected by the bulls and yet may not be necessarily taken as indicating a crop of over nine million bales. The discouraging feature appears to be lack of speculation or demand and is not easily overcome or changed. Many commission houses are now advising buying on a scale, believing that if there is any further decline, courage and a little patience will result in a profit.

A frost in the cotton belt would help the tone of the market."

ALL WANT IT.

Each Candidate Lays Claim to the Henry George Vote.

His Son Nominated to Fill the Place. George Could not Stand the Strain. A Picturesque Figure. A Poor Man and an Enthusiast.

New York, October 29.—Tammany men profess to believe that Mr. George's death will lead a large number of his Democratic supporters to vote for Van Wyck and will insure the election of that nominee. On the other hand, Mr. George had often stated on the hustings that if he could not win he would desire the election of Seth Low, as they both represented the principle of opposition to bossism. Low's supporters say that on this account their candidate will receive large accessions from the George ranks and will win.

The executive committee met in the afternoon and substituted the name of Henry George, Jr. for that of his father on the ticket.

Newspaper men who have followed Mr. George's campaign have felt that he was undergoing a strain which was sure to end in a rapid breaking down. At times he has been incoherent. His whole temperament underwent a complete change. His speeches, delivered by the half dozen each day, were often rambling, though their trend ever faithful to the voters, whose devoted champion he has been all his life.

Henry George was the most picturesque figure in the New York campaign. His nomination for first Mayor of the Greater New York by the Democratic Alliance meant that thousands of workmen would vote for no machine nominee but would have joyfully gathered under his banner.

He was a poor man, a clean man, a simple man, a philosopher, a leader, who aroused the widest enthusiasm, though he always remained outwardly at least, as calm and methodical as a chess or mathematician.

In consequence of the disastrous news of the Arctic whaling fleet, whaling has risen to $1 a pound in this market. There is to be no contest of the Pull man will, in consequence of their receiving only $3,000 a year so both sides of the dead palace car magnate declare.

Dispatches from Yarmouth, in the Arctic Ocean, off Finmark, the most northerly part of Europe, says it is established there that a whaling ship sighted Professor Andree's balloon floating on September 23 near Prince Charles Promontory, Spitzbergen. The news has caused considerable depression among the friends of Andree.

Great excitement prevailed at Athens on Monday. Several hundred volunteers invaded shops of that city and seized clothing and food. The shopkeepers resisted, some of them using arms in so doing. This caused a panic; all the shops in town were hurriedly closed, and finally, the rioters were dispersed by strong patrols of troops, who succeeded in arresting the ringleaders.

President McKinley will formally lay General Woodford's cablegram giving a synopsis of Spain's reply before a meeting of the Cabinet, but it is not expected that any action will be taken until after the President returns from Ohio at the end of this week, if, indeed, anything is done then.
