FUTURE OF TOBACCO IN NEW BERNE.

The called meeting for next Monday night of the stockholders of the New Berne Tobacco Warehouse Company, is a meeting of the importance of which is not confined to the stockholders of the Warehouse Company alone, but affects every citizen of New Berne.

The Journal has no question as to the ability of the management of the Warehouse Company, or that next year will see anything but a greatly increased tobacco trade in this city.

The reports of the company's business during its first short season, will undoubtedly go to show that the Warehouse business has been profitable, and that with even the few months experience already acquired, the management will be able to lay such plans for the future that will make next year's Warehouse business not only profitable, but place the company in a position which shall demand an increase of its facilities for doing business, in order to meet the requirements of the tobacco trade coming to New Berne.

The Tobacco Warehouse Company will be able to prove the wisdom of going into business, as its reports will show, for it will be found, first, that even with a short season, with little knowledge, and depending largely upon good fortune in the way of good tobacco crops, in a section which was experimenting in this staple as an important crop, the Warehouse business has paid larger returns than expected.

The Company has also seen demonstrated that tobacco can be successfully and profitably cultivated in this section, which has hitherto been regarded as impracticable.

Therefore the tobacco industry of this section has passed the experimental period, as it is proven to be a profitable crop to the farmer and to the warehouse company.

The committee's report may also show that there are important matters in connection with the Warehouse, which can in the future conducting of the Warehouse, be corrected and result in material benefits to the stockholders.

With its past experiences, and the same courage which prompted this organization to build and operate a Tobacco Warehouse, the JOURNAL feels confident that the future for New Berne as a tobacco market is a bright one, and the Warehouse project having safely passed its experimental stage, its officials will commence at once to plan and execute for next year's tobacco business, so that the farmers of this section may be still further encouraged in their tobacco growing.

Free of Charge to Sufferers.

Cut this out and take to your druggist and get a sample bottle free of Dr. King's New Discovery, for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. They do not ask you to buy before trying. This will show you the great merits of this truly wonderful remedy, and show you what can be accomplished by the regular size bottle. This is no experiment, and would be disastrous to the proprietors, did they not know it would invariably cure. Many of the best physicians are now using it in their practice with great results, and are relying on it in most severe cases. It is guaranteed. Trial bottles free at F. S. Duffy's Drug Store. Regular size 50 cents and $1.00.

Man Who Wore a Daisy

They were giddy girls of the kit tenish age, and being out on a lark without chaperons they spoke their thoughts aloud and made game of every one and everything they saw, on the principle that all was fish that came to their nets.

One passenger on the elevated railroad particularly amused them, from the fact that, although it was the month of bleak November, he wore a white daisy in his buttonhole a fine specimen of the ragged edge variety. It was conspicuous from its size, and the girls regarded it as a legitimate object of sport. Not being deaf nor blind, the man who wore the modest flower with the yellow heart grow embarrassed over the attention he received. At last one of the girls made a discovery. "It isn't genuine," she suggested to the others in a loud whisper. "W-h-a-t!" they trilled in chorus.

"It's a base counterfeit." "No! Never!" "Yes, it's a cloth daisy!"

By this time the man upon whom all eyes were focused was ready to leave the car. Before he went he touched his hat to his tormentors.

"Yes," he said pleasantly, "this is a cloth daisy. My little daughter, who is an invalid, made it and pinned it on. She asked me to wear it, and I had not the heart to refuse her. I hope I have your permission?"

A group of shame-faced girls sneaked out of the car at the next station.—Chicago Times-Herald.

That Was Clear Enough.

"That's one great fault about many of these picture exhibitions," exclaimed Mrs. Hooley as she glared first at the picture and then at the catalogue.

"What is it, my dear?" asked her husband. "I'm afraid you don't understand."

"Nobody could understand this sort of thing," went on the predominant partner of the Hooley household, turning over several pages at once. "There's a picture and no title under it. You've got to look in this book for it."

"You mean that one representing a boy lying on his mother's lap while she makes use of a cane? Well, you can guess the title of that easily enough."

"Oh, I know I'm not so clever as you. What is it?"

"Whirling in Lapland," of course." And Mrs. Hooley looked as if she wished the speaker were a little boy.—Strand Magazine.

Conflicting Emotions.

Cured of Blood Poison After Fifty-two Doctors Failed.

Blood Balm Co., Atlanta, Ga.

GENTLEMEN:—In 1872 a small pimple broke out on my leg. It began eating and in four months I was treated by a physician of Talladega County, Ala., where I lived eighteen years. He relieved it for a short while. In six weeks it broke out again in both legs, also on my shoulder. Two small bones were taken out. It continued until 1876 in this time I had twelve different physicians. They told me the only remedy was amputation; that it could never be cured. For six months I could not walk a step. I went to Mineral Wells, Texas, spent $300.00; came home; went to Hot Springs, Ark., staid nine months—all failed to cure me. In 1887 I came back to Birmingham, Ala. I was advised to write you, which I did. You wrote me that B. B. B. would cure me, and I could get the medicine from Nabors and Morrow, Druggists, of our city. I bought ten bottles and before I had finished my fifth bottle my legs began to heal, and in less than two months I was sound and well. That has been nearly two years ago, and no sign of its return yet. I have spent in cash over $400.00, and B. B. B. does the work that all the rest failed to do. You have my permission to publish this. I have traveled so much trying to get well that my cure is well known. Fifty-two doctors have treated me in the last 17 years. All they did was to take what money I had, and done me no good. I am now a well man.

The Coming Women who goes to the club while her husband tends the baby, as well as the good old-fashioned woman who looks after her home, will both at times get run down in health. They will be troubled with loss of appetite, headaches, sleeplessness, nervous or dizzy spells. The most wonderful remedy for these women is Electric Bitters. Thousands of sufferers from lame back, and weak kidneys rise up and call it blessed. It is the medicine for women. Female complaints and nervous troubles of all kinds are soon relieved by the use of Electric Bitters. Delicate women should keep this remedy on hand to build up the system. Only 50c per bottle. At F. S. Duffy's Drug Store.

ENGLAND WANTED WAR.

Hold Back From Fighting France In 1893 by the German Emperor.

The Gaulois in Paris, recently related in considerable detail that during the Siamese imbroglio of 1893 England was on the verge of declaring war against France. The power that opposed the war most vigorously was Germany. In fact, said the Gaulois, the war was prevented by the German emperor.

"At that time," said the Gaulois, "Emperor William was at Cowes with his yacht. He had won a regatta prize from Lord Dunsraven's Valkyrie and the Prince of Wales's Britannia. He appeared, literally as well as figuratively, to swim in English waters. It was as he sat at dinner in the house of the Royal Yacht Squadron that he received from Count Hatfeldt the news that the English government intended to declare war against France. The emperor rose from the table, laid aside his napkin and sent a dispatch empowering his ambassador in London to protest against Lord Rosebery's programme. Moreover, he took himself at once to Osborne House to announce to his grandmother that he never could approve such a course as regards Siam."

Sometimes Paris newspapers publish articles on European politics that lack all foundation in fact, and the amazing story told by the Gaulois might have been dismissed as one of them had it not been confirmed at once by the Koelnische Zeitung, probably the most trustworthy journal on the European continent. The Koelnische Zeitung's Paris correspondent was at Cowes with the emperor in 1893. As soon as the Gaulois had made its statement be corroborated. Among the influential Englishmen at Cowes, he said, it was then common talk that the German emperor was England's ally against Siam and France. Lord Dufferin, then English ambassador in Paris, had come to Cowes to conclude the negotiations for an alliance, but had been met with the emperor's blunt refusal to take the active part that England wished to assign him. The Koelnische Zeitung's correspondent asserts that the correctness of this statement is absolute and beyond question among the initiated who were at Cowes during the German emperor's sojourn there.

HOPE!

Victims of malignant Blood Poison and Scrofula were formerly looked upon as lost. Fearful of contagion, their friends denied them companionship and medical ignorance denied them hope. Their life was worse than death and their only relief a grave. Many such cases were formerly sad from the fact that the sufferers contracted disease by accident or heredity and through no fault of their own. Modern civilization looks with sympathetic consideration upon all cases of blood poisoning, and medical science, after groping for centuries in darkness, has finally evolved a cure. Despair vanishes like an evil spirit. Hope shines forth like a glorious sunrise.
