SHOW CONFIDENCE BY ACTING

The mere saying that New Berne has the location and every natural advantage for developing into a good manufacturing city, unless such an expression is put into visible force by its citizens building these manufactures themselves, all such talk is worse than worthless.

Every place which has become a city has not become so except by the efforts of its citizens, who have shown their faith by works, and who while boasting of their city have also given their time, money and individual effort and support to every home enterprise which would further the interests of their city.

The JOURNAL published in its Saturday's issue a brief sketch of a thriving industry in this city, which has advanced from an insignificant beginning into an industrial plant of fair proportions, all accomplished by the effort of a single person, who believed in his project and steadily kept at work until he has demonstrated by his success the correctness of his views.

Never has New Berne been in greater need of industries to give work to its laboring classes, and never was the time more propitious for the building of industries in this place than it is today.

Mere talk will not accomplish these results, but a combination of those whose interests are at present languishing, namely, the house holders and those whose property is unproductive, can be formed to secure for this city the industries which will employ its labor, and give a certain value to real estate, improved and unimproved.

The present conditions among the New England mills, which shows their business to be in a most demoralized state, owing to Southern competition, indicates what might be done in interesting some of that capital, now unproductive, in New Berne, where it may be made productive.

But however much capital there may be, idle and seeking investment, it will not seek a section or community whose people have not, and will not show a confidence by investing their own money in home enterprises.

It is most unreasonable to expect for a moment that capitalists will come to New Berne, build mills or establish industries of anything, unless the citizens here first say, here is our money, we will put up as much or more than you want to build a mill in this city.

By doing this, outside investors would at once be convinced that the assertion that New Berne was a good point to establish a mill, was not mere talk, but was true.

In making this visible expression of their confidence in New Berne, its citizens will realize benefits, which a go easy policy of letting things drift this way will never bring.

And this action of confidence, by backing it up with money, is not one of philanthropy but is one which is demanded in order that those who have property investments may be protected in them, and that this property may have some certain value, and be productive.

Cataract Cannot Be Cured.

Cure of Blood Poison After Fifty-two Doctors Failed.

Blood Balm Co., Atlanta, Ga.
GENTLEMEN:—In 1872 a small pimple broke out on my leg. It began eating and in four months it was treated by a physician of Tallapoosa County, Ala., where I lived eighteen years. He relieved it for a short while. In six weeks it broke out again in both legs, also on my shoulder. Two small bones were taken out. It continued until 1876 in this time I had twelve different physicians. They told me the only remedy was amputation; that it could never be cured. For six months I could not walk a step. I went to Mineral Wells, Texas, spent $300.00; came home; went to Hot Springs, Ark., staid nine months—all failed to cure me. In 1887 I came back to Birmingham, Ala. I was advised to write you, which I did. You wrote me that B. B. B. would cure me, and I could get the medicine from Nabors and Morrow, Druggists, of our city. I bought ten bottles and before I had finished my fifth bottle my legs began to heal, and in less than two months I was sound and well. That has been nearly two years ago, and no sign of its return yet. I have spent in cash over $400.00, and B. B. B. does the work that all the rest failed to do. You have my permission to publish this. I have traveled so much trying to get well that my cure is well known. Fifty-two doctors have treated me in the last 17 years. All they did was to take what money I had, and do me no good. I am now a well man.

Millions in a Banking Office.

New York Correspondence Pittsburgh Dispatch: One of the most unpretentious looking banking offices on Wall street is just now the centre of attraction. It has about $80,000,000 of net deposits. Last Monday its gross deposits amounted to $111,000,000. Although several millions of dollars in actual cash are kept in the vaults of the institution, the larger proportion of the bank's gold and greenbacks, has been converted, as a matter of convenience, into certificates issued by the Sub Treasury. Conservative bankers are viewing with deep interest the remarkable concentration of capital in this plain abode of Mammon. Some of them predict that it will some day disturb the conditions governing the business of other financial institutions.

Case of Big Boy.

In reply to criticisms upon its course with regard to Hayti the German government will undoubtedly say that it must protect its honor from the attacks of weak nations as well as strong ones. And that contention will be conceded. Allowing that Lueders was illegally and unjustly imprisoned by the Haytian authorities, his government could not afford to submit to such an injustice merely because Hayti is not a first class power. But it is equally certain that in dealing with first class powers no such haste—not to say precipitancy—would have been displayed. The matter would have been fully investigated before an ultimatum was presented. Four parlers and diplomatic notes innumerable would have been exchanged before a hostile squadron would have been dispatched to Toulon or Liverpool, for example. So that after all it is a case of the big boy bulldozing the little boy. Had the little boy been bigger he might have been humiliated just the same, but he would have been likely to bloody the other boy's nose during the proceeding. —Chicago Chronicle.

THE MODERN MANGLE.

Ironing Machines With a Daily Capacity of Many Thousands of Pieces.
Mangles in one form and another have been used for hundreds of years, but the steam mangle of the present day is essentially a modern machine. Steam mangles are made of various sizes, with rolls ranging in length from 48 inches to 120 inches. One of the rolls is of hollow steel and heated with steam. The auxiliary rolls are of iron, covered with cotton cloth and blankets or felting. Steam mangles are made also with two hot rolls. In ironing such things as sheets and tablecloths by hand, it is customary to iron one side only. Steam mangles with a single hot roll iron in that manner. With two hot rolls the steam mangle irons with a smooth finish on both sides.

Mangles are used only for flat articles; for things without buttons or buckles; for sheets and pillow cases, tablecloths and napkins, towels and handkerchiefs, and so on. Mangles of the largest size will iron of a hotel's washing, taken just as it comes, 14,000 pieces in a day; of small pieces, such as napkins, they will iron four times as many pieces in a day.

From the washing machine the things go to an extractor to be dried. The extractor revolves at a high speed, and the moisture is whirled out by centrifugal action. From the extractor, just damp enough to work well, the things go to the mangle. Such things as sheets are fed into the great ironing machine by two men, each holding a corner. There is a fixed table, as long as the rolls, attached to the machine on the other side. Two men receive the sheet there and fold it. In ironing small pieces like napkins and towels on such a machine they would be fed in by a row of girls standing on one side and be received by another row of girls on the other side. On the largest machines there would be six or eight girls on each side. American steam mangles are used not only in this country, but they are sold in all the countries of Europe as well.

A great many mangles are made with wood rolls of polished maple. Such mangles are sometimes operated by power, but commonly by hand. They are used in hotels and laundries and restaurants and for household work. Mangles with wood rolls are exported to the various countries of Spanish America and to South Africa and Australia. —New York Sun.

HOPE!

Victims of malignant Blood Poison and Scrofula were formerly looked upon as lost. Fearful of contagion, their friends denied them companionship and medical ignorance denied them hope. Their life was worse than death and their only relief the grave. Many such cases were especially sad from the fact that the sufferers contracted disease by accident or heredity and through no fault of their own.
Modern civilization looks with sympathetic consideration upon all cases of blood poisoning, and medical science, after groping for centuries in darkness, has finally evolved a cure. Despair vanishes like an evil spirit. Hope shines forth like a glorious sunrise.
