FEDERAL PRISONERS.

To be Put in State Penitentiary.

Governor's Mansion For Stable Purposes. Cotton Mill Business of State. New Fertilizer Rates. Suit For Damages Teaching Without License.

JOURNAL BUREAU. RALEIGH, N. C., Jan. 21. The penitentiary board authorized its chairman Claudius Dockery, to make an agreement with the Federal authorities to have the federal prisoners put in the penitentiary here, instead of sending them to different parts of the country.

Governor Russell has been planning to convert part of the basement of the mansion into a carriage house, and stable, but before actually doing so he, strange to say sought the opinion of some one else, and was shown the utter absurdity of such a thing and so gave up the idea.

Governor Russell was asked yesterday to wire the New York World the prospect for further cotton mill extension in the South--and the increase within the last five years. Commissioner Hamrick gave the answer that in 1886 there were 89 mills and 4,071 looms with 109,433 spindles. In 1897 there were 210 mills with 1,410 knitting machines 24,517 looms and 1,044,383 spindles. That even with that number, the prospect for a rapid extension of the cotton mill industry in this State, is fine. All the mills are in excellent condition and are declaring from 5 to 15 percent dividends on the capital invested. Many of the mills run day and night. North Carolina has fine water power facilities and the cotton is grown here and can be manufactured without the cost of shipping elsewhere. The request for information from "The World" was because the New England mill men attributed the great strike here to the rapid development of Southern competition in the cotton milling industry.

Blasting at the rock quarry for street improvements here was begun yesterday.

Governor Russell is invited to attend the 5th annual session of the South and West Commercial Congress at Tampa Fla., Feb. 8, 9, 10. Its object is to promote the interchange of all merchandise etc., between the South and West, and to promote the movement of grain, etc., from the West to Southern ports for export. Governor Russell will probably appoint delegates.

The board of trustees of the State University will meet here Thursday the 27th.

The new Fertilizer rates, a reduction of 10 per cent on the rates last year, went into effect yesterday. It refers to only car load lots that the railroads do not have to load or unload.

There will be some important matters before the Railroad Commission at the meeting next week. Major Wilson appears before it on Tuesday. W. J. Creswell of the Southern Express Co. is to appear on Friday.

A mad dog was shot and killed early this morning by a policeman near the capital.

The wife of mail agent Benton, who was killed last spring in a collision with the Southern for $50,000 damages. Her lawyers say she will get the heaviest damages ever awarded in a North Carolina court.

J. W. Melver who for 21 years has been a penitentiary official, retires.

An effort is being made to get the Farmers Alliance out of politics.

The Attorney General decides that public school teachers are not liable to indictment for teaching without a certificate or license.

A TIGHT REIN.

Necessary to Keep The House From Declaring For Cuba.

The Pressure May Influence the President. Senate Very Slow on Hawaii. Months May Elapse Before Action. Bond Resolution.

JOURNAL BUREAU. WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 21.

Cuba had an inning in the House this week, and for a time things were quite lively, and in doubt. Speaker Reed succeeded in holding his party solidly together and consequently in defeating the numerous efforts of the Democrats to add Cuban legislation as a rider to the Diplomatic and Consular appropriation bill, but it was not an easy task, and owing to the existence of a strong Cuban sentiment among the Republicans, it would have been well nigh impossible had the rules of the House not also been at stake. It was realized by the Republican leaders that if the rules of the House were overridden in this matter all control over legislation would be lost. If the question of the recognition of Cuban belligerency could be gotten before the House as an independent proposition, no power on earth could prevent its going through by a large majority. It is thought by many that this week's occurrences in the House will be taken as a hint by President McKinley as to the necessity of some action towards Cuba.

If the Senate does not get ahead faster in its debate on the Hawaiian annexation treaty, it is more likely that three months will pass before a vote is reached than that the vote will be taken in a month, as Senator Davis has said he thought it would be. The feeling between the advocates and opponents of the treaty, both in and out of the Senate, is daily growing more bitter. It is openly charged that the sugar trust is using fraudulent methods to make sentiment against the treaty among those interested in the sugar beet industry. To counteract the Secretary Wilson has in a communication to the Senate said that annexation would not injure the sugar beet industry.

At a meeting of the executive committee of the American Bimetallic Union, held this week, in Washington, arrangements were made to start a sharp literary fire upon the Gage financial scheme, as represented by the bill prepared by Secretary Gage, and to reply to the report of the Indianapolis Monetary commission. The committee was enlarged by providing for one member for each State and Territory and the District of Columbia.

The calling up of the resolution declaring all U. S. bonds to be payable in silver dollars, at the option of the government, by Senator Vest, and his notice that it would be pressed to a vote is probably more of a move in the Presidential game than to secure legislation, and everybody knows that while it can be easily adopted by the Senate, it cannot even reach the point of being considered by the House. There are western Republican Senators and eastern Democratic Senators who are not anxious to vote on this resolution, but the silver Democrats are determined that they shall either vote on it or openly dodge the vote when it is taken. This is all a part of the tactics that have been adopted by the chairman of the National Committee of the three parties that supported Bryan and silver in the last Presidential campaign, for the purpose of uniting all of the friends of silver in the Congressional campaign of this year, as the first step to a similar union in 1900. They will use this resolution to force every Senator to declare either for or against silver or to acknowledge himself a dodger. Twenty years ago Senator Allison voted for this identical resolution, but he is not likely to vote for it this time.
