PERSIAN RULER'S JEWELS.

Who has not heard of the Persian Jewels—their glory, their number, their priceless worth? When the doors were unlocked and I was taken into the peaceful throne room, I found myself surrounded by a mass of wealth uncounted in the world. Nowhere are such treasures, nowhere also is there such an accumulation of rubbish. I will, however, describe the rubbish and refer only to the treasures. Down each side of the room were chairs entirely covered with studded gold, and at intervals were tables of gold, mallet, and studded to meet, with the commonest of black-headed ticks.

At the far end of the room was the wonder of the world, the peacock throne. Whether it is one of the seven thrones of the great mogul and was brought from Delhi I don't know, but it is certainly the most costly ornament of any of man can look upon. It is entirely of silver, a great canopy bed structure, but modeled in lovely designs. It is incrustated from end to end and from top to bottom with diamonds.

At the back is a star of brilliant that makes you blink. The rug of which the shaft sits is edged with precious stones, and the pillow on which he reclines is covered with pearls. I could keep on writing about the dazzling beauties of the throne of the king of kings, but I never could get beyond declaring it to be a superb jewel. Some people have valued it at $5,000,000. Its real value is between $3,000,000 and $3,000,000.

But, though the peacock throne is the magnificence of the Persian court, it is by no means the most magnificent of the other treasures. When I attempt, however, to recount the number of jeweled arms, the royal arms, the flashing aigrets, the trays piled up with cut and uncut stones and the bowls filled with pearls that you can run through your fingers like a handful of rice? Every one has heard of the Darla-Nur, or Sea of Light, sinter diamond to the Kohinor, or Mountain of Light. Every one has also heard of the Globe of the World, made by the late Shah of 76 pounds of pure gold and 51,886 gemstones—the sea of emerald, Persia of turquoise, India of amethysts, Africa of rubies, England and France of diamonds—and valued at $247,000.—Illustrated Magazine.

ALMOST CAME TO BLOWS.

An interesting illustration of Chicago Language and Theatrical Posture.

The other evening those dropped in to the gallery of a photographer who has long made a specialty of taking the pictures of theatrical celebrities a big stepping western man who came to see his friend the photographer. The young woman behind the counter, who knew the caller, had just been reading in a newspaper a savage "roast" of his native city of Chicago. She handed the paper to the westerner to read, expecting to get some amusement out of his comments. The Chicagoan was in the midst of his reading, sitting with wrath, when the husband of a well known actress entered the room. A framed portrait of the actress, taken several years ago, stood on an easel in a corner. The husband walked up to the picture, and after contemplating it for a few minutes said:

"My wife is certainly a remarkable woman. That picture was taken all of five years ago, yet she is younger looking and handsomer today than it is."

Just then the westerner finished the Chicago story.

"Well, I don't think," he exclaimed loudly and emphatically, throwing the paper down upon the counter.

"What right have you, sir, to think anything about my' domestic life?" retorted the actress angrily.

"Who gave you control over my thoughts?" retorted the astonished westerner.

"Think what you please to yourself, but you shan't insult my wife, sir," shouted the husband.

"You're right. Where is she? Are you a husband?"

"No, sir, but you are a big bully," cried the husband, dancing with wrath.

The little woman behind the counter, who had been convulsed with laughter, tried to explain the mistake, but the indignant husband refused to listen. Nothing but an apology would satisfy him, and he made a dramatic exit from the gallery, saying that the westerner would "hear from him again." He went home and wrote a letter to the photographer saying that he had been insulted and threatening to withdraw his wife's custom if the apology was not forthcoming. The photographer was obliged to write several letters before he could calm the troubled waters. Meantime the Chicagoan went home, firm in the conviction that he had narrowly escaped hitting a crazy man.—New York Sun.

THE SECRET OF LONGEVITY.

Nineteen Commandments Which, if Kept, Will Insure One Hundred Years.

Sir James Smythe, a well known physician of Birmingham, England, has been confiding to an audience in that town the secret of longevity. Keep the following 19 commandments, and Sir James sees no reason why you should not live to be 100:

1. Eight hours' sleep.
2. Sleep on your right side.
3. Keep your bedroom window open all night.
4. Have a mat to your bedroom door.
5. Do not have your bedstead against the wall.
6. No cold tub in the morning, but a bath at the temperature of the body.
7. Exercise before breakfast.
8. Eat little meat and see that it is well cooked.
9. (For adults) Drink no milk.
10. Drink plenty of fat to feed the cells which destroy disease germs.
11. Avoid intoxicants, which destroy those cells.
12. Daily exercise in the open air.
13. Allow no pet animals in your living rooms. They are apt to carry about disease germs.
14. Live in the country if you can.
15. Wipe the floor. D's—drinking water, damp and drains.
16. Have change of occupation.
17. Take frequent and short holidays.
18. Limit your ambition.
19. Keep your temper.

NEW ALASKAN INDIAN TRAP BEARS.

William B. Otis, who has been all over the world on one of the ichthyologists in the employ of the government, speaking of his experience in Alaska, said:

"Strips of whalebone are folded into the shape of the letter 'N', enveloped in 'hunks' of fat and frozen that way. The fat thus prepared is left in promising spots for great white bears to devour. Along comes one of the monsters, gulping a lump down whole. The gastric juices melt the fat and eat away the strings of tendon with which the whalebone is bound, the whalebone springs out straight across the animal's stomach, and presently it dies. Next day Mr. Eskimo comes along and gathers in a bear-skin worth several quarts of whisky."
