FUNERAL OF ENSIGN BAGLEY

Great and Impressive. The Last Sad Rites to the Gallant Officer.

Special to Journal. RALEIGH, May 16.—The funeral procession of Ensign Worth Bagley this afternoon was the largest ever seen in this city.

The ceremonies were very imposing. A very handsome casket contained the dead Ensign's body. It was borne upon the shoulders of six soldiers. Flowers in great profusion covered the casket.

Volleys were fired across the grave when it was reached and the notes of the bugle ended the sad ceremonies. The imposing procession was led by Col. Thos. S. Keenan.

The body of Ensign Bagley reached the city early in the day. Contrary to the first accounts the face was not disfigured, but wore a smile. The funeral exercises by order of the Secretary of War were equal to those carried out in honor of a Brigadier General of the army.

THE STATE CAPITAL.

Ensign Bagley's Immense Funeral. Butler and Skinner Preparing For Convention. Rain, Hail and Thunder Storm.

JOURNAL BUREAU.

RALEIGH, N. C., May 16.

There is much discouragement at the slowness by which the Second regiment is recruiting. It seems almost impossible to get enough men to form the regiment. The 1st, 2nd and 3rd regiments of the companies from the State Guard recruited up to the required number.

There seems to be nothing definite as to the moving of the regiment to Tampa. The negro companies will probably go to Fort Macon, off Beaufort, tomorrow.

The man who was arrested as a Spaniard and who was thought to have poisoned the water supply of Camp Bryan Grimes has been released. He was a half Indian. The water was chemically examined, and pronounced pure.

Many of the soldiers in camp here have contributed to the "Worth Bagley Monument fund which has now reached $450 and subscriptions to the fund continue to pass into the committee.

Raleigh has welcomed many large funerals, but never such a one as Ensign Bagley's this afternoon. It was a strictly military funeral. When the body reached here it was met by a detachment of soldiers and carried to the home of his mother, where it remained until 1:30 p. m., when it was placed in the rotunda of our beautiful Capital. At 4 o'clock the casket was carried into the Capital square grounds, and placed on a catafalque in front of the big bronze statue of Washington. The military were grouped around the grounds and in long lines far down the streets. The funeral services were held by Rev. Dr. Eugene Daniel of the Presbyterian church, assisted by all the other ministers of the city. "Hark, Hark, my Soul," and "Just as I am" with a solo "As from the voice of an angel" sung by Mrs. Charles McKimmon were the hymns sung at the services. Then the long line of people numbering thousands followed the young hero to his last resting place and there "Abide with me" followed by the last verse of a hymn that is used at the Naval Academy at every service, was sung as the grave was closed. A most beautiful editorial on the young man was written by Mr. W. E. Christie, who for years has made his home in Mrs. Bagley's family circle.

Senator Butler and Congressman Skinner are here on the field to prepare their lines for directing the Populist convention which meets here on the 24th. Secretary of State has just chartered the Brown Bros. Company of Mitchell Co. It is for the mining and handling of mica.

The most severe storm that has been seen here for more than 20 years passed over the city last night. The lightning and roll of the thunder was terrible from 9:30 up to 12 o'clock. Many houses were flooded, bridges washed away, but as yet no serious damage is reported. The building at the Fair grounds where some of the soldiers were quartered was struck and some of the men stunned for quite a while. The rain fell 3 inches. Several barns in the city were struck. Hail fell in a blinding storm. In some places in the lowest part of the city people had to swim to reach ground. This storm will be remembered for years.

OREGON IS APPROACHING.

BLANCO CAN'T FIGHT.

Because He is Said to be Short of Powder. Flying Squadron Well to the South. Great Gathering of Ships of War Around Cuba.

The Cadiz Fleet.

Special to Journal. WASHINGTON, May 16.—It is declared that Spain has sent the rest of her war vessels across the Atlantic to meet the ships of America. The Spanish fleet that has been lying at Cadiz is now coming this way.

The Board of Strategy believes that Admiral Sampson will have destroyed the Cape Verde fleet before the Cadiz fleet sailing north from Curacao can reach Cuban waters.

Between Two Fires.

How to capture or destroy the Spanish fleet, now in the Caribbean sea is the great war question of the hour. When the Squadron has coaled it is thought that it will proceed to some port on the southern coast of Cuba.

The authorities believe that the men-of-war on blockading duty in the vicinity of Cienfuegos are safe, and that, in fact, they would like nothing better than for the enemy's squadron to proceed in Cienfuegos. Such action would result in bringing down upon them Commodore Schley's fleet from the North, through the Yucatan channel, while Sampson's fleet would hasten along the southern coast of Cuba, and the Spaniards would be caught between two fires.

Harvard and Terror.

In view of the announcement of the French government that the Harvard, twenty-four hours before the completion of her repairs, must give notice of her intention to depart, it is presumed by naval officials that similar action will be required of the Terror's commander. Besides, in international law it is not permissible for a belligerent cruiser to pursue a cruiser of the other belligerent immediately on the latter leaving a neutral port. Before such pursuit twenty-four hours must intervene.

Flying Squadron.

A number of ships were sighted off Sand Key, near the Southern end of Florida late today. It is thought that they may be Schley's fleet. The fleet left the vicinity of Charleston Sunday night under orders for Key West.

Concentration in New York.

Fifteen thousand of the volunteer troops will rendezvous at Camp Black. These troops will be known as belonging to the department of the East. The enlistment of men has been going on rapidly at Camp Black. Some have failed to come to the scratch. Four men were egged out of Camp by their former comrades for refusing to enlist.

The steamships Saguarco and Santiago with extra stores of coal and supplies for the use of the fleet sailed from New York today for Key West. They will be used upon their arrival as transports for the troops.

The cruiser Columbia which has been on scouting duty along the Northern Atlantic coast, arrived at the Delaware breakwater tonight.

Good It True.

Information has been received that General Blanco is already short of ammunition for the defense of Havana. The supply now on hand is said to be sufficient for not more than two days fighting.

Minister Woodford in declining the appointment of Major General says that commissions should go to younger men who are better fitted to command.

The Navy Department has detailed Chief Engineer Fitch, on the retired list, and three other Engineers to investigate and establish the additional coast defenses.

A change is expected in the present way of managing the movement of the fleet. This will involve the abolishing of the Board of Strategy and its powers will be wielded by a new board of consultation.

The hopes of Spain to relieve Havana are in trying to have the blockade of that port declared ineffective and therefore invalid. She has asked the powers to so declare.

The Oregon.

The Navy Department officials believe that the battleship Oregon has passed the danger line, and is fast approaching Capt. Sampson's fleet.

The fear has been expressed that the Spanish torpedo boat Terror in remaining at Fort de France, proposes to stay until she receives information concerning the position of the Oregon, when she will dash out and attempt to destroy that vessel. Officially no apprehension is felt concerning the safety of the Oregon and her consort.

Capt. Clark telegraphed that his vessel was safe, but the course taken by him is not allowed to be known.

Sampson Selects a Position.

The Navy Department has been advised that Admiral Sampson, acting in accordance with instructions sent him by the naval war board, is making all speed to the western end of Haiti, when he will proceed, it is understood, down the Windward passage to take station at its southern end.

There he will be in close cable communication with the department, will be able to throw out scouts and will receive information of the appearance of the enemy within several hundred miles of his position and act accordingly.

Only Want a Chance.

If either Admiral Sampson, with his fleet fresh from the attack on the Spanish fortification in the harbor of San Juan, or Commodore Schley, with his flying squadron can meet and fight the Spanish Cape Verde fleet this week, the end of the war will be in sight. There is no doubt that either Sampson or Schley can crush the Spanish fleet, if they can only get at it, but there is a doubt about their getting at it. It is now thought to be trying to get to Cuba without fighting either of our big fleets. If it succeeds, the war will be considerably prolonged, and that is evidently what Spain desires, in the hope that if the war is prolonged some other European power or powers will get mixed up in it.

Can Run Faster.

Owing to the superior speed of the vessels composing the Spanish fleet, they will have the choice of fighting or running should they be met by either of our fleets. The most formidable fighters in our fleets—the monitors and battle-ships—are so slow to keep up with the Spanish fleet, if it desires to run away without fighting. It is only a question of time when every ship in the Spanish fleet will either be destroyed or captured; if they get into a Cuban harbor it will be a matter of a few weeks. This week will tell which will hold the blockade. The blockade of Cuba, which during the past few days has been accompanied by some stirring fighting, which we get the best of, besides cutting two important Spanish cables, will be continued, but the landing of an army in Cuba has been postponed until after that Spanish fleet is wiped out.
