ALL APPLAUD HIM.

President McKinley's Speech at Atlanta Touches a Responsive Chord in the South.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—Not second to any of the current topics discussed at the Capitol, the departments and public places generally today were the paternal sentiments expressed at Atlanta yesterday by President McKinley. Adverse comment was the exception decidedly. Nearly every one who spoke gave cordial approval to the President's utterances and all they may seem to imply.

It is understood that what the President said was the result of deliberation determined upon after consultation with the members of his cabinet, prior to the departure from this city. It may be regarded as the keynote of another branch of the President's policy, and designed to link his name to events and transactions making a page in the history of the republic not outshone in brightness by any other. The stirring and thickly crowded incidents and issues upon which public attention has centered for the last twelve months have unquestionably broadened the public character of the President and developed in him thoughts and feelings of which he was before unconscious.

At the period he entered upon the presidency there was no anticipation in his mind, or in that of any other, that his administration would be marked by any unusual occurrences or consequences. A high tariff measure was expected, and also more or less remedial currency legislation. That was about all. Yet, almost in the twinkling of an eye the country was plunged into a foreign war, and questions of the greatest moment followed almost precipitately. It was a wise and fortunate stroke for the President when he put southern men in high places of command. It tended to wreath a halo around his name, and it set off the spark of desire to be a broader and more enduring path along the same line. It is not to be marveled at that the project of expansion, born almost in a moment, dangled the imagination of the President and excited his ambition. If it is possible to make this redound to the glory and the welfare of the country the President may succeed in writing his name in living letters for the respect and homage of future generations of his countrymen and of the world. But if all his views and aspirations in regard to this are doomed to defeat and disaster he may well be content to rest his chances for enduring and honorable fame upon the happy fulfillment of the promise which he yesterday held out to the ear of the south. Even at a distance of hundreds and thousands of miles there can be heard in fancy, the roar of that great volume of appreciation and reciprocity bursting from the throats of the warm-hearted, brave and chivalric people who listened.

Americans at Manila.

MANILA, Dec. 13.—Nearly a thousand soldiers are seriously ill in the hospitals, while twice that number are walking around unfit for active service.

About twenty patients are in the small pox tents. These tents are anything but pleasant places for the sufferers. They stand in an open square in the central part of the new city. No shade protects them from the fierce heat of the midday sun, nor is there any flooring to keep out the water when it rains.

With the arrival of every succeeding steamer the city takes on more and more of an American appearance. New stores spring up and old Spanish signs disappear. Wives of army and navy officers have arrived and the sight of a pretty American face is not uncommon now on the Luneta or the Escolta.

Many a household is saddened by death because of the failure to keep on hand a safe and absolute certain cure for croup such as One Minute Cough Cure. See that your little ones are protected against emergency. F. S. Duffy

Dreyfus Now On His Way.

LONDON, Dec. 15.—The Paris correspondent of the Daily News says it is believed there that Dreyfus is now on his way to France.

The Paris correspondent of the Daily Chronicle says: "A warrant was issued today for the arrest of Count Ferdinand Walsin Esterhazy."

The thoughtful mother sleeps well, she knows there is a bottle of Anway Croup Syrup in the house, and it is always a safeguard against any attack of croup, her child may have—keep it on hand 25c at Bradham's.

FOR MILITARY PURPOSES.

Colored Preacher's Residence Set on Fire

S. S. Royster Appointed Adjutant General. Large Number Marriage Licenses. Favors Elections in August. Parades for Museum.

RALEIGH, Dec. 15.—The report of the adjutant general to the Governor was made today. He asks for an annual appropriation of $20,000 to cover army costs, insurance of military property in armories, equipments and practice marches. The practice march of the Fourth Regiment two years ago was so beneficial as to be an object lesson. One of its results was a marked improvement in the personnel of that regiment and in its eight companies volunteering in a body and being now the First Regiment of Volunteers at Havana.

Rev. Samuel Vass, colored, of this city, recently delivered an address at Raleigh, more, copied by the papers here, which was full of sensible advice to his race. Last night an attempt was made to burn his house, which came near succeeding. Shavings and kindling wood had been well laid under the house, and a box of matches was found close to the fire, which was promptly extinguished. Vass is out of town. It is not known whether the attempt to burn his dwelling was due to anger at his speech.

New Hanover county has ousted the republicans board of education and has put in three good citizens and thorough business men.

There is a great demand for North Carolina oysters—so great that not one-fifth of the orders can be filled.

Governor Russell has appointed Beverly S. Royster, of Oxford, adjutant-general. This appointment is an admirable one. General Royster entered the Third Regiment as private twelve years ago, and has held every grade up to his present one. He is thirty-three years old. His commission is dated December first.

An effort is being made to get Judge Parrell to reduce the sentence of J. J. Biddle, who was postmaster at Nashville, and who for taking a dozen or more letters belonging to other people, was sentenced in the Federal Court here to be imprisoned for a year and pay a fine of $300. The effort to get the imprisonment remitted. Application is now being circulated, but the odds are against its success.

During the year ending November 30th 18,294 marriage licenses were issued in this State, or one to each fifty-five persons. Wake led with 483 licenses, Mecklenburg issuing 418.

Mr. John T. Pullen, so greatly beloved in this city for his works of charity and religion, is in poor health, and will go to the Jackson sanitarium in New York.

The Confederate bazaar will be held here during the week beginning January 15th, in aid of L. O. B. Branch, Camp of Confederate Veterans. The date of the organization of a North Carolina Veterans Association is set for January 28th and 29th.

During the two years past $60,000 of the State educational fund, which is the proceeds of the sale of swamp lands, has been disbursed, and there is now on hand $5,500 in cash, besides $146,000 in State bonds.

In the Federal court a sentence of a year's imprisonment and $500 fine was imposed upon a moonshiner who, by threats to kill, had made a sixteen year old boy work at his illicit distillery.

The State Board of Agriculture will purchase the extensive Ray collection of minerals and Indian relics for the museum. It will also considerably enlarge the museum.

Ambrose F. Hilleman, who was speaker of the lower House in the last Legislature, is dead. He had been in ill health a couple of years.

Ex Judge Avery declares himself as in favor of holding State elections in August (as used to be the case) in order to avoid any possibility of Federal interference.

David A. Fields, a merchant of Pine Level, made a voluntary assignment to bankruptcy. It is due to debts for commercial fertilizers.

The legislative examining committee last evening completed its annual examination of the office of the State auditor, and reports that it found everything in proper shape.

MUSTER OUT VOLUNTEERS.

Colonel Bryan Says We Should Recruit Temporary Army for Cuba and the Philippines.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—Being approached regarding his attitude concerning the volunteer soldiers, Colonel W. J. Bryan today expressed himself as follows: "The volunteers should be mustered out at the earliest possible moment. They enlisted for war when soldiers were needed for active service and many of them did so at great pecuniary and personal sacrifice. To hold them in the service for garrison duty would be a gross injustice. The administration has expressed its intention of releasing the volunteers as soon as regulars can be secured to take their place, but the bill providing for a permanent increase in the regular army is likely to arouse discussion and delay the day of discharge. Many consider that the army as it stood before the war was sufficient for all domestic purposes. I share in this belief. If the volunteers are to be held as hostages to force a permanent increase in the regular army a prolonged contest is inevitable.

"I think it will be better to recruit a temporary army of occupation to serve in Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines. This would postpone the discussion as to the regular army until a more convenient season. There is no important necessity for action in regard to the regular army but there is need for immediate action in regard to the volunteers.

After the army of occupation is recruited and the volunteers mustered out, Congress can deliberate upon the various plans proposed and make suitable provision for such a regular army as may be decided to be necessary. Congress could fix a maximum and empower the President to recruit within that limit so many as may be necessary for an army of occupation.

The enlistment could be made for two or three years, unless sooner discharged. Before the term of service expires the country will have a settled policy and can then decide whether such an army is longer required.

The bill could provide for the reduction of the force at any time and for the enlistment of the natives at the discretion of the President. In recruiting this army of occupation preference should be given to the volunteers now in the service in order to encourage enlistment companies and battalions formed from the volunteer regiments now in the service permitted to elect their own officers from among their associates now in the service. The pay of the private and non-commissioned officers in an army of occupation should be considerably increased over the present rate. Services in the semi-tropical regions are attended by so much danger that increased compensation is both just and necessary."

A cough is not like a fever. It does not have to run a certain course. Cure it quickly and effectively with One Minute Cure, the best remedy for colds and for the most severe cases. We recommend it because it's good. F. S. Duffy.

Another Historic Tree.

SANTIAGO, DE CUBA, Dec. 15.—General Wood, governor of the military department of Santiago, is determined to protect what is left of the "surrender tree," beneath which the Spaniards consented to the capitulation of Santiago. He has had it enclosed with a wire fence and has issued an order imposing a fine of $100 or imprisonment for one hundred days as a penalty for mutilating it. The tree is already injured by relic hunters.

Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.
