Experts in gold mining agree out presty much the tectors fact now shown about such metal is briefly the all original pyrites of small grain texture contain gold to a greater or less extent, this of course, not overing such secondary large crystal pyritons deposits derived from veins. It is not yet known, however, whether the gold in these pyrites is in chemical combination with the sulphide of gold, or whether each migne particle of gold is simply covered with a coating of sniphide of iron, or finally whether such particles are in the metallic state, but alloyed with silver or other metal which combines more ver or other metal which combines more rapidly with sulphur than the gold does, and consequently forms a coat of sniphide of silver over the gold. The particles of gold are so minute and the combinations follow so rapidly during the splitting up of these pyrites that the finest instruments and tests known to chemistry have as yet been unable to settle this part of the question to the satisfaction of all concerned, this fact

This story is told of Bir Walter Scott, who was far from being a brillfant pu-pil at school: After he became famous he one day dropped into the old school to pay a visit to the scene of his former woes. The teacher was anxious to mak good impression on the writer and put the pupils through their lessons so as to show them to the best advantage After awhile Scott said: "But which is the dunce? You have one surely. Show him to me." The teacher called up a poor fellow who looked the picture of woe as he bashfully came toward the distinruished visitor.

"Are you the dunce?" asked Scott. "Yes, sir," said the boy.

"Oh, yes, sir," replied the gardener; "Tai strong enough, but I must dig a libtle before I can get hold of the roots. If you'd told toe to pull them up by the branches I could, of course, easily have removed them withous digging."—Strand Magazine.
