WELCOMED THE BOYS.

Insurance Company Cannot Accept Terms Craige Bill.

Postal Telegraph Company Wins Equal Cotton Bids. Presbyterian Church Building's History. Railroad Charter, Fusionists to Hold Office.

HARRISON, April 25.—There were celebrations at eleven cities and towns in the State over the return of the various companies of the First North Carolina Regiment. Two of the companies were from Charlotte.

The commissioners appointed to assess the "damages" to the Southern Railway in the case in which the court decides that the Postal Telegraph company can run its wires for 250 miles along the Southern give only $10 damages. Of course, there are no damages, as the courts have time again decided, so the $10 is merely nominal. It was the Western Union and not the Southern making the fight.

James Sprunt, the well-known cotton shipper of Wilmington, now makes the positive assertion that he can put more weight of the compressed standard square bale of cotton (542 1/2) into a ship to the net ton register than it is possible to put in cylindrical bales.

Recently the hosiery mill at Salisbury was struck by lightning and burned. S. H. Wiley and others have bought the interest of the old stockholders and will at once rebuild the mill and fill it with new machinery.

In a suburb of Goldsboro Saturday night there was a shooting affair, in which five men were wounded. As yet the particulars have not come to light.

Heavy shipments of straw berries from the southeastern section begin this week. The first carload from any one point was shipped from Chadbourn.

Sturgeon fishing in the lower Cape Fear river is quite active. The fish bring $12 to $20 each.

The worthy and public spirited Duke of Durham are making extensive and costly improvements at Trinity College at that place. The grounds are being graded and beautified and two handsome buildings have recently been completed. Preparations are being made for a "field day" of athletic sports in May and this may be made intercollegiate.

This week the First Presbyterian church building here will be torn down to make room for a new one. The building was erected in 1817 and is the oldest here. From 1810 to 1817 Rev. Dr. William McPherson, of Virginia, was not only the principal of the academy, but also "pastor of the city," at $300 salary he preached in the Capitol. In 1831 the Capitol was burned. In 1835, before the new Capitol was completed, the State constitutional convention met. The sessions were held in the Presbyterian church. It was at this that ex-Judge William Gaston made the memorable speech on allowing Roman Catholics to vote. It resulted in their being given the franchise. As an acknowledgment of what Gaston had done, the Pope sent him an autograph letter. Strange to say, at another corner of the block on which the old church stands is a little wooden office in which Gaston wrote North Carolina's State song, "The Old North State Forever," so dear to all the natives of the State, with its chorus so well known.

The State charters the Transylvania Railway Company, capital $25,000. It has bought the Hendersonville and Broad Railway, twenty one miles long and will extend it ten miles farther to Easton. Pittsburg and Newcastle (Pa.) people are owners.

The fusion board of agriculture met here secretly to take steps to prevent the Democratic members elected by the late legislature from taking charge. The fusionists were not notified by mail, but personally by two fusionists. They propose forcibly to prevent the Democrats from taking charge June 15, and to this end have put new locks on the doors and iron bars at the windows. There are legally only nine fusion members, as the terms of five expired, but these latter are here.

The Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company retires from North Carolina because it will not accept the terms of the Craige bill, which requires all corporations doing business in North Carolina to surrender all rights to transfer cases from State to Federal courts.

TRENTON NEWS HAPPENINGS.

New Bridge Needed. Herring Fleetful. Peaches Injured. Debating Society. Truck Looks Well. A Crooked River.

Trenton, N. C., April 25th.
Mr. Leary, the contractor has completed the bridge across the Brogden mill race at Trenton, a long needed necessity. Mr. Leary is a good workman and has given an excellent job both in workmanship and material.

Why is it that people who have to travel the Core creek road are so inconvenienced at crossing at Core creek as a bridge is much needed there? Oftentimes the mail carrier has to leave his vehicle on this side of the creek and take the mail sacks and cross the footway to carry the mail to Core, a distance of over half a mile and return same way. Why don't the proper authorities have a bridge put there? Ninety or a hundred dollars would put one there.

Herrings are quite plentiful around Trenton today (Monday). They are being dipped up here in the river with small dip nets, quite a treat to us all as the fish catch this season has been but very few up to the present time.

Bishop Watson held services at Grace church on Friday last and had quite a large crowd and appreciative congregation to hear him.

We hear often the remark that the peach crop is not much injured. We have examined many trees and in our judgment the crop around here is injured at least 75 per cent.

The students of Professor Rhodes' school have for some time had a debating society at the high school, and we learn that the boys are much interested in it, and that many of them are developing considerable talent in their debates.

The new whiskey still arrived here on Saturday last, much to the displeasure of the temperance portion of our community, who oppose all stills and have of every kind that dispense or make spirituous liquors.

We learn that the corn is being shipped here by every boat. Over 300 bushels were brought here on Friday last. Well, Jones is a real corn county, this corn importing is brought about by planting too much cotton.

The farmers are enquiring for empty flour barrels, buying and storing them away in advance of the crop. Many are canvassing around to get them.

Cabbages are looking well for the cold that has preceded them, and promise a fine yield.

Our Sunday Schools are in a flourishing condition and are well attended by all, both old and young, which speaks well for our Sunday school superintendents, whose interest and untiring efforts for them appears to increase.

We notice in a recent issue of the JOURNAL an item that a gentleman at Pollockville who straightened up houses and wharves was at Pollockville who said he could straighten Trent river. We would like to ask the gentleman not to do it as the old river has flowed so majestically so many years, winding its way through old Jones county with so much convenience to the good people of our county; winding around to nearly every plantation, giving a good landing. How exceedingly convenient to our farmers but if the gentleman desires to use his straightening powers let him take the boat at Pollockville and take a visit to Trenton, and when in sight of Trenton he will find a crook that is, I don't know how many miles around, as I have never measured it, with a bend like a mule shoe where one can sit in the centre of the ridge and fish on both sides provided he has a very long pole. Should the gentleman desire to straighten this crook no objections will be raised, as we have learned from tradition that our forefathers had an eye on this crook and secured an act of the legislature to remedy the inconvenience by cutting a canal across the bend, but the company who procured the job failed to do it, and it remains there until this day, as nature formed it.

Mr. Benjamin Brock, Jr., and Miss Susie M. Kinsey were united in holy wedlock today at Trenton, Rev. T. M. N. George, officiating. The happy couple have the sincere good wishes of the whole county that happiness and prosperity may attend them through a long life.
