Prepared only by Dr. H. Mozely, Atlanta, Ga. Word comes from that great city of nodern times, Chicago, that two of its sarned professors have discovered the fountain of Eternal Youth, and that poor mankind need have no future terror of weak and decrepit old age, and the Old Gentleman with the scythe, whose pleasant duty it has been to reap and gather in mankind, will neede go out of busi-ness. Verily the wonder grows, when the source of this Eternal Youth is knownit is the lymphatic fluid of young goats? How greatly must our veneration now ncrease for the Goat family.

What tender affection must we now have for the patriarchal William Gost, as he browses in the alloy ways upon the succulent tomato cau, or make and de yours the luscious circus poster upon the Truly it must be with awe, that we look upon this ancient William, this father of the tender goalling from whose body comes that lympathic fluid, which shall renew our youth, as the eagles, which shall give hair to the hald head, suppleness to the rheumatic knee, and MOZLEY'S LEMON HOT DROPS. straightness to the bended back ! And surely all this hope, this prize of Eternal Youth which is now held out to man is no bubble of light, no irridescent fancy, no rainbow to fade away?

Surely not, for have not those men of science in Chicago tried this goat lymph upon man's nearest friend and next companion, the dog, and has not the fluid filled this animal with friskness even unto the 'steenth degree?

And what is good for the dog, surely man will not rebel against, but thankfully accept, and with renewed youth for both man and deg, shall they go forth, easily and gracefully accepting the new pleasures of Rternal Youth.

Happy this discovery comes before the end of the nineteenth century had passed, for now there shall be no need of century records, except it be in the way of pastime, when man shall leap from century to century, as does the festive furnisher of the lymph, jump from crag unusually happy to night. THE CLIMATE OF CHICAGO How Could the Poor Prenchman Tell What It Could Do?

While in Chicago M. de Monvel, the French artist, heard one story that pun-zled him. It was told at a dinner party. sled him. It was told at a dinner party, and he smiled just as if he understood it. That night he thought it over, but the more he thought the less he comprehended it. Finally a fellow artist who had heard the story repeated it, drew pictures of it, and then a light broke on M. de Monvel, and he laughed.

"Ah, we Frenchmen are stupid when compared with the Americans!" he exclaimed. "I shall tell that story, and it will make Paris laugh."

will make Paris laugh." The little tale was about a French carpenter who bought a saw from a Chicago manufacturer who made a specialty of advertising. Engraved on the tool was the assurance that "day in and day out this saw will wear longer than any other on the market." The Frenchman read the advertisement, and the day he bought the saw he put it carefully away. The next day he used it and left it out of doors in the

He Got It.

He had the air of a man who was particularly well satisfied with himself.

"I tell you," he said, "there's nothing like having sickness in the family to convince a man that he can do a good many things that he never would have dared to attempt before. Now today I am going to buy a gown for my little girl. Her mother can't get ont, you know, and so I am going to do it my-salf." On the day following he had the air of a man who was particularly dissat-lefted with himself.

"What's the matter?" he was asked.

"Couldn't you go, that gown?"
"Couldn't I get it!" he repeated.
"Couldn't I get it! Hang it all! The trouble is that I did get it!"

"Something wrong with it!"
