Japan as a Manufacturer of Matches.

Japan is so far away from us that we do not appreciate the rapid and enormous strides that she is making in manufactures. The match industry will serve as an example of what our friends the "Japs" are doing. There are over 900 match factories in Japan, and they produce over 300,000,000 gross of matches and employ 60,000 workmen. Matches are exported from Japan to China, Korea, the English Indies and even to Australia. Japan is rapidly increasing her trade with us, and is the most friendly disposed nation of the Orient toward the United States, if not in the world, and the friendship of this rising power will be most useful to us in our relations to our Asiatic possessions, going a long way to offset the jealousy of the European nations in that quarter of the world.—Ez.

CONTINUOUS ADVERTISING.

What the Experience of Successful Business Men Say.

There are three things in so-called lines of business when advertising does not pay, but these are few and far between. From now on until January 1st, the volume of stores advertising will be large. The holiday announcements fill the columns of the newspapers and the news features get less attention from the publishers.

This is to be expected, as it is the busiest time of the year for both merchants and newspaper owners. People are spending money freely and the shopkeepers want to get all they can of it. The stores would get considerable holiday trade if they did not advertise in a newspaper, but competition is keen and the merchant who can offer the best bargains or the most attractive stock is certain to distance his rivals in capturing business.

The thing that puzzles many an advertiser is this: "Why do so many advertisers stop advertising entirely when the holidays are over? They need business at that time more than in December, they are anxious to get rid of winter goods in order to have room for the spring stock, and yet when you try to get an advertisement out of them they resolutely turn you down saying: "We can't afford to advertise now."

If you will run over the list of the most successful business houses within our knowledge you will find that nearly all of them advertise every weekday in the year. It is important to keep the name of a firm or its product continually before the public or it will soon be forgotten.

Time and time again men who have built up large enterprises have thought that their business would carry itself without advertising. They have tried the experiment and have found out after a few months of publicity silence that they were mistaken, and then they had to spend a lot of money to get back where they were before.

One of the great successes in the patent medicine line 15 years ago was a preparation known as "Vegetine." It was sold every where, and the firm which manufactured it made a fortune. Business day the proprietors decided that the $75,000 or $100,000 which they were spending for advertising might be well spent. The preparation, they argued, was so well and so favorably known that there was no longer need of putting out so much good money.

So they stopped their newspaper announcements. The way business dropped off the first year frightened them and forced them to resume their advertising. The demand was again built up to good proportions, but the success was only temporary, for another economical fit seized the company and the advertising was again cut off. This was the final blow to the business, and now no one ever hears of "Vegetine."

While continuous daily advertising may not be so vitally important in a retail business, yet no merchant who wants to do all the business he possibly can get along without it. The dollar trade is the greater the importance to keep hammering away at the public.

WHEN COMPANY COMES.

When the pie is in the pantry, And the chicken's in the pot, And the house is neat and tidy, Then the company comes not.

But when the pantry shelves are empty, And a pluck-by dinner waits, While the baby has the colic, Then they enter at your gates.

When the tablecloth is dirty, Stained with gravy and with squash, The lace curtains at the laundry, And the bedspreads in the wash.

When you're doing the fall cleaning, Rugs and carpets on the line, Then your husband's dear relations, Come to visit or to dine.

So they eat the pickled-up dinner, And decide they cannot stay, They "must do a little shopping," And they quickly haste away.

Then they tell all the relations How their visit was a call; That "Jane is no wife for Reuben; She's no 10 centkeeper at all."

When they're gone you tell the baby, While you wipe your misty eyes, "Baby, when we make a visit, We'll not take them by surprise."

—Boston Globe.

Doing Fences.

A member of the mining exchange tells this story of a man doing fences: "I had a wagon and was driving out of Denver, on my way to the mines. The roads were fustled deep in dust, and the weather was hotter than hades. A young fellow halted me a few miles out and asked if he might walk behind my wagon. It was the strangest request I had ever heard, and I said:—

"Walk behind? No! Get up here on the seat and ride." He wore a sort of apron and look and replied:—

"I don't want to ride, pardner. I ain't fitten to ride and I ain't fitten to get fitten. Just let me walk behind your wagon."

"I thought then he must be crazy and concluded to let him have his way. The dust rolled up in dense, suffocating clouds. I glanced frequently over my shoulder, but couldn't get a glimpse of him. As the team rattled on, however, I heard his voice repeating over and over again:—

"Serve you right, confound you! Sell your claim for $10,000, win $1,000 at poker, go down to Denver, blow off the town and go dead broke! You blank blank blank! Ought to suffer! Go to go back and start all over again! Dust too good for you! Ain't half punishment enough!"

"At the end of the journey he was nearly dead, but still bravely anxious to do penance. I hired him, and he's here in New York now, doing well."—New York Press.

Admitted It Himself.

A story is told of two prominent Chicago lawyers who several years ago were regarded as being among the brightest lawyers the state had produced for a long time. There was great rivalry between these men, and one day they were having a heated argument on the steps of the state-house at Springfield.

"I'll agree to leave it to the first man we meet," said one of the wrangling lawyers fiercely.

"All right, and that will settle it once for all. Ah! Here is Charlie."

"Well leave it to him."

"Charlie," as the man spoken of approached, within hearing distance, "we want you to decide who is the best lawyer in Illinois. We agree to abide by your decision."

"Well," replied Charlie, himself an old practitioner and well known in the capital city, "I plead guilty to being the best lawyer in the state myself."

"Why, Charlie, how can it be proved?" inquired the first of the two Chicagoans.

"You don't have to prove it," replied the Springfield man, "I admit it, don't I?"—Detroit Free Press.

"I had dyspepsia fifty-seven years and never found permanent relief till I used Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. Now I am well and feel like a new man," writes B. J. Fleming, Merry, Neb. It is the best digestant known. Cures all forms of indigestion. Physicians everywhere prescribe it. F. S. Duffy.
