In connection with Gen. Buller's movement General Warren, either on Thursday or Friday, moved, with 18,000 mee, in the direction of Weenen, on the Boars' left flank, which would give color to the view that both flanks of the Boars'

As a preliminary to a determined advance, Mount Hiangwane, southeast of Colenco and near the southern bank of the Tugela, must be cleared of the Beer force holding it, since otherwise this force might be able to threaten the British line of communications. It is possible that General Warren will ecoperate in an attack on this mountain. Now that the Tugela is running in flood the time is favorable, as it will be difficult for the Boers to reinforce their position mouth of the river, except by a pontoon bridge, which is believed to have been constructed.

London is full of runners. It is freely reported that engagements have taken place at three different points along the extended Boer lines. As a matter of conjecture, this is believed to be correm, for there is reason to suppose that something was done against Colence and Kount Hiangwane simultaneously with the salance of Portgistor's Drift.

Patient search during the last year or two has revealed no trace of any suc plans and an architect says he does not believe there ever were any. The matter of increasing the size of the building is under consideration. It is certain that more room is needed. During legislative ssions many rooms in the Supreme Court and library building and some in the agricultural building have to be utilized.
