PULLY THE PUIURE, DON'T. What may be tweed the attempt to revive negro magistracy in this city, a few days ago, met with the result that conid only be expected, that is, fall-

Brisfly stated, the case was the aum moning of a white employer, by his negro employes before a negro magistrate, who might be supposed to favor the negroes as against the white man.

As to the individual merits of the case which are really unimportant as bearing on the matter of negro magistrates, it can be said that the attempt was one on the part of the negro employees to extori payment for services not performed by planing a white man in the obnoxious position of appearing before a negro magistrato.

Fortunately for the sake of decency and law and order, there was an exhibition of good sense displayed on each side, the negro magistrate being waited upon before the case was brought up, and quietly told a few things, and his acceptance of the situation and dismissing the case.

With no thought or desire to lesser the peculiar dignity and power which may be invested in the office of a negro magistrate, or to especially lecture the negro magistrates of New Bern on the duties of their offices, the JOURNAL be lieves that any but the most obtuse negro magistrate can easily draw a lesson from this case of a white man before the negro magistrate Chapman.

Calmness, good sense and moderation prevailed in this instance, but it is just as well for the negro magistrates in the fature, if such cases may be brought to them for their disposal, to not merely think, but to act at once, and Don't accept anch cases,

And the discreet negro magistrate will observe this Don'r.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other disease put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and preservised local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires consiliutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J.

The Regineer's Story.

"To run over a man—perhaps that's the only thing of all that shakes me. To see him on the track within 10 or 20 feet of you, to know that you can't stop to save him. to feet the wheels of the engine go over his body, crunching out his life—a man doesn't want to experience that more than once in a lifetime.

"It's worse with a child. There was an old mate of mine to the west when I was riding in the Union Pacific—never mind his name; he's dead now—as good an engineer as ever stood in a good an engineer as ever stood in a box, cool, herve like steel, had been through three wrecks, a holdup and a fire. Well, one day Jim was a little behind his schedule and made like any-thing for the next stop. There was a crossing right in front of him. He crossing right in front of him. He saw that everything was clear, as he thought, and went right chead, when all at once out of a clump of trees there ran a little golden haired fairy right in front of the engine. It was all over in one instant, and when the train stopped Jim dropped like a log. It was two months before he crept back again to work. But he could never come to that crossing but he saw the little girl with her hair fluttering in the wind running out from the trees. And one day he just got off his engine, turned it over to the second man and walked away, never to be seen again until his body was er to be seen again until his body was found in the river."-Leslie's Weekly.

In his city he a college of medicine, flowered in the forest the formulated their plan. When all was ready, a challenge was made and accepted. The ferms were those. The lawyer was to enter the dissecting resum of the college at 0 o'clock that pight. He must be unaccompanied. A dim light would be throug in the room. As he entered he was to be permitted one glance around the room. Then he was to proceed at ones to the opposite eide of the room and take his seat with his back toward the cetter dissecting room. At the end of every half hour he was to be permitted one glance around. This must continue until daybreak. No second look would be allowed until the half hour had expired.

At 0 o'clock the young man entered the room. The ferid smell usual to the pince greeted him. A lamp burned dimly, throwing its feeble rays on the dissecting table. On it lay a shrouded endaver. The corners of the room were filled with growsome shadows. But one took could be taken. The young man drew up his chair and resolutely turned his back to the room. The half hour passed. He raised his head and glanced over his shoulder. The expelleds of the cadaver seemed to raise and look at him. He could not give another glance to satisfy himself and turned his face away once more. The next half hour passed slowly. The fetid odor seemed to increase. At last the time came again for the second look, Quickly he glanced over his shoulder. The head of the corpse seemed to he raising itself. The lamp gave a sudden flicker.

But only one look. Twenty minutes passed. A shrick was beard by the watchers outside the room. They rushed in. The roung lawyer was insanely langhing and shricking. The form on the dissecting table had metamorphosed itself into the chief of the students elique. But the lawyer never again recovered his reason.—Philadelphia Inoulier.

Recently there was sold in New York for no less a sum than $1,000 an old fushioned chine plate of the extremely rare kind which is known to the collectors as "growing crockery." From the plate itself had sprung to a height of more than a third of an inch a sort of senarion of beautiful erwals fully seem more than a third of an inch a sort of eruption of benutiful crystals that seemed to take the form of elegant trees and miniature pagodas. The growing crystals were gradually rising higher and higher, and they had brought up with them the chamel surface of the plate at every polit where they had spring from the body of the latter. Such plates are a chemical manifestation of the rarent possible kind, and only a very few yours ago a teapet, the property of a lady in Woburn place. London, that had become covered with heautiful crystals in this way, was sold to a collector for $5.000.

The clay of which such china is made contains alumina and magnesis, and in certain cases these are so acted upon by the presence of sulphuric acid as to produce fibrous crystals that are in reality very touch of the character of Epson salts, or crystals of alum. Only a very, very few instances of this "growing crockery" have ever occurred, hence the "fancy" prices that examples freth. The Training Sheep Dogs.

The natives of New Mexico seem to have an original way of training shepherd dogs. A pup to taken from its mother as soon after birth as pessible (the breed of dog is immaterial). The young of a sheep or gost is taken away, and the pup is substituted. After the first fow days the pup is never fed except just before the flock goes to pasture in the morning and just after the sheep are brought in at night. As soon as he can walk he goes out with the flock and stars with it all day. Whenever he begins to anticipate support by trying to drive the flock in before sundown he gets pusished. After he is about a year old he takes a flock out, guards it from other dogs and copotes during the day and brings it to at the proper time at night without supervision.
