NOT A LITTLE WATTER.

A local notice in these columns a few days ago mentioned the fact that the Chairman of the Democratic Executive committee of the county, had received remittances from two Democrats, sent to Such an article will probably cause two kinds of surprises, first that any one should voluntarily contribute, and second, that any money should be needed in a lecal campaign.

Principles not money, should win, is often amerted, yet every campaign proves that politics is a practical matter, and the candidate and purty which treats the same as such, generally wins over the idealist, who thinks that the enunciation of "burning principles" is enough to win voten.

The financial part of political campaigns in North Carolina, is too much held as a little matter, by the Democratle party.

Elect a State chairman, a county chairman, in each county, with a secretary for each, who will furnish "copy" for the local newspaper, and the campaign is opened, and every thing is bright and promising for party suc-

To the average voter, it is nothing worthy of mention, that the chairman and secretary may have to neglect their legitimate business for several weeks, bosides paying money out of their own pockets for different things in connection with campaign work; or that the local paper is supposed to laud Indiffer-ent speakers, lie about the number in political gatherings, and fill up its coluwith political matters which are of taterest to only a few of its readers.

It is this very neglect of the so called little matter of dollars and cents, by Democrats, which causes those who really work and pay out their money campaigns, to wonder if the party to really desirous of victory.

There are plenty of shoulars when the battle is were, but how few of these shouters are found beforehend proslaces of ner is the chaps of smarth tions to the local committee, to order that those who work may be paid.

The Peedle and the Liens.
"I notice that Automobile Montgomery says that horses often make a dive for the corn he paints." remarked ore art league student to another.

"Well, there might be some truth in it." said the second. "I saw a little inclident at the art institute the other day that made me think of Mr. Montgomery's proud boast. Tou know those big lions on the sides of the steps, the work of Kemeys, are pretty lifelike. I was standing looking at them when a little white poodle came down the steps in the wake of a woman with stylish clothes on. The poodle had a gold colciothes on. The poodle had a gold col-lar around his neck and was alto-gether one of the tiniest, dandided gether one of the tiniest, daudified specimens of a dog that you could find. He walked up to one of the lions, settled back on his hind legs, and looked at the big stone beast. Then he snifted and gianced around inquiringly. All at once he made up his mind. He made a fleror rush for the lion, barking as relectivists and as loud as a dog six as victously and as loud as a dog six inches long could bark. He positively swelled up and appeared about to ex-

Needles are all made by machinery. The piece of mechanism by which the needle is manufactured takes the rough steel wire, cuts it into proper lengths, alies the point, fixtues the head, pierces the eye, then sharpens the tiny instrument and gives it that polish familiar to the purchaser. There is also a machine by which needles are counted and placed in the pupers in which they are sold, these heing afterward folded by the same countrivance.

MUSTARD AND VINEGAR.

inmini, with bright yellow Bowers, tobs lowed by seed pods a half inch long concaining reddish seeds, and is supposed to be the same megationed in the Bible as the tree which grew from "a grain of nustard seed." as the plant grows in the Holy Land to the height of 15 feet.
The seed pod of the white variety is much larger than that of the bluck, and the seeds are larger and of a bright yellow color. This is the variety used in the salid known as mustard and crees.

In the modern system of mustard making the two varieties are mixed together, the black containing volatile oil, sulphur and nitrogen, which supplies the pungent flavor, the white adding the acrid taste.
This pungent oil is not developed till the mustard is moistened by the addition of water, which sets up a kind of fermentation. It should be remembered that boliing water does not have this effect, so that cold or lukewarm water should be med. Cheaper mustards contain larger quentities of the white seed and also wheaten or starch flour. The flavor is less sharp and bitter than the pure mustard, but it keeps much better.

Vinegar is a diluted form of acetic acid and has been known from the earliest period. Wine vinegar is made from wine less and inferior wines, principally in France, the linest being obtained from white wines. Male vinegar is procured from an infusion of malt which has previously undergone fermentation or from apple cider. Vinegar in the form of lotions is a valuable external atimulant,—

A MAGICIAN'S TRICK REVEALED.

How a Cane May Be Made to Stand Alone Without Any Support.

The widow of Herrmann, the celebrated sleight of hand performer, revealed the modus operandi of the famous cane trick when discussing "Magic as a Home Amusement" in The Woman's Home Companion: "The feat of compelling a walking stick or unbrella to stand upright in the middle of a parlor without being supported by anything or anybody always seems wonderful. It is best when about to perform this feat to have a black screen for a background and to order the utick or unbrella to stand alone about a foot in front of this screen. To show the audience that there is no person or apparatus behind this screen to How a Cane May Be Made to Stan snow the audience that there is no per-son or apparatus behind this screen to secretly help the stick to stand when commanded the performer can take the screen away for a few minutes until all are satisfied that there is no hidden apare satisfied that there is no hidden apparatus there. Pass the cane around among the audience to 'let them see there is no pin in the cane's ferrule and that it is an ordinary cane, absolutely without life. When the screen is again in place, the stick can be hypnotized by a few mysterious mumblings, which will be certain to keep the audience guessing in the wrong direction. Then the stick will stand alone for as long as the performer may desire.

"The secret of hypnotizing is so simple that the audience will never suspect it.

"The secret of hypnotizing is so aimple that the audience will never suspect it. It is to previously tie a yard of black thread from the top of one of the front legs of an ordinary chair to the top of the other front leg, letting the 'bag' of the thread fall to the ground until ready for the 'hypnotizing.' Carelessly place the stick within the 'bag' of the thread, planting the stick upright six inches from the chuir, making it appear that it is only by the mercest accident that the performer selects this particular spot. Now take your hands away, and, of course, the stick will stand where you place it. The supporting thread will not be seen on account of the dark background. This and many other feats any smateur can perform after a little practice."

Character.

A growing tree is not thinking of the shadow it will cast. It is growing to hear its fruit or furnish the timber of its being. The shadow grows in consequence. And it is so with an honest, good life. The inspiration of it is not the desire for others' applause or the growth of personal influence, but the wish to do the duty of the day because it is duty. It is not by mere brains that good, enduring influence is secured. Character, which hapires confidence, wins respect and by the very laws of life tells on others—this is the force which a good man directs. But self conceit, personal vanity and overcomfidence in oneself are not consistent with this character. Let there be unaffected moderty behind obvious power, and respect is won, and respect implies influences of the best kind.—Weekly Bouquet.

German should be the first foreign language studied in our achools, says William Crauston Lawton in The Atlantic. The teath year is quite late enough to begin it. In four or five years it could be really mastered as a working toot. Nor should the best liberature be long post-poned. The supprens masterplecos, indeed, Pasut, Wallenstein, Nathan, are ill milted for children. Most of "Withelm Tell" or "Hermann and Dorothea" could be read in grammer schools. But perhaps the greatest wealth of the German speech is in ballad and lyrie. The vocabulary of this liberature also is very close to the Bearty, bossely Saxon English at our own homes and hearths. Beaves, if not hundreds, of such lyrics as Uhland's should be stored in the memory of every shill of 14 or 15.
