SOME CENSUS SURPRISES.

The census figures so far published set forth a few surprising facts. The first relates to Cincinnati, which for many years had a population exceeding that or any other community west of the Allegheny Mountains, Although the growth of Cincinnati had been at a lower ratio than the increase in population of most other cities for two decades, nobody was prepared for a drop in 1900 to less than 10 per cent. Cleveland, which shows an increase of 46.06 per cent, and a total population of 381,768, is now the first city of Ohio, leading Cincinnati by nearly 57, COD. Omnha has the distinction of being the only city the census returns of which have thus far been made public that shows a loss of population. It is probable, however, that Omaha has, in fact, gained in the number of residents since 1890. In that year the ambitious community had one of its hustling padders appointed to supervise the local enumeration and he was instructed to make a spread. To do it he included in his list all the names he could find on old hotel registers and tombstones, and all he could invent. Now has come the punishment. A fair estimate indicates that ten years ago Omaha had nearly 40,000 fewer people than were returned by the numerators.

It was not expected that Minneapolis and St. Paul could again equal the unparalleled increase attained from 1880 to 1890. The actual growth during that period was enough to satisfy St. Paul, but Minneapolis extended her limits so as to include in the Census of 1890 every farmer for miles around. Instead of a gain of more than 250 per cent. as reported ten years ago, the latter city now shows only a little more than 23 per cent, increase, or less than the average of American cities. St. Paul's gain in population between 1880 and 1890 was more than 221 per cent.; but for the decade just closed it was only about 28 per cent

If Brooklyn had not been annexed by New York this country would have been aide to boast of four cities with more than a million people each. Only three cities of Continental Europe (Parls, Berlin and Vienna) are known to have a larger population than Philadelphia. There has been no recent census of St. Petersburg .- Philadelphia Record.

TOOMBS AND STEPHENS. A Friendship That Was of Great Tae

A Friendship That Was of Great Use to the Former. Dr. F. H. Orms told me several good stories about our old time statesmen. Among other meedotes and incidents the doctor gave me some piquant reminis-cences of Toombs and Stephens. Toombs always tried to impress people with the belief that his genius made him estudied hard or availed himself of the labor of others he encouraged the idea rhat his most splendid efforts were the entirely offmad, without any special pre-aration for the occasion.

Once, when a very important debate was going on in the federal congress, Toombs made a magnificent speech which attracted everybody's attention.

It was not only an eloquent speech, but it was remarkable for its masterly array of facts and figures and its convincing s guments. "You must have devoted considerable time to its preparation," said one of the statesmen's admirers.

"Well, I gave about two hours to it," Toombs replied, with a careless, indifferent air.

Somebody repeated this to Stephens in "Two hours!" he exclaimed, somewhat irritably. "Prepared that speech in two hours, did he? I spent two weeks on it That's all I care to say." Stephens had patiently and inboriously collected the statistics, and Toombs had merely added the flourishes. The two great Georgians attended a national Democratic convention shortly be fore the war, and Stephens was confined to his bed just when he could least afford to be laid up. After an important caucus Toombs vis-ited his friend and sat down by his bed-

TWO WAITERS.

Difference Between Negro Server In Northern and Southern Hotels,

If you have traveled, you must certain have noticed the wide difference he tween negro waiters of southern and northern hotels. In the north the waiter is stiff, right and supercitions. He takes your order condescendingly and briskly betakes him self to the culinary regions with the same. He stands with folded arms and scornful expression at some little dis-tance, watching, however, for an opportunity to leap forward and pretend to anticipate your wants. And when he brings your change you are certain to note that it is laid upon a plate and that one particular quarter is noticeably detached from its fellows.

In the south the waiter shuffles back to the kitchen and returns with your meal. to which he has added some little delincy of his own choosing. He glide about you, leans tenderly over you, his black face filled with anxiety for fear some error of omission or commissio may occur.

He hangs about you with fatherly in-terest. He places the dishes before you with almost a caressing touch, and when you are ready to depart he tremblingly, opefully, lingeringly hands you your hat In the white brown depths of his eyes there is cute appeal, not unmixed with expectation.

Who but a case hardened drummer of the traveling representative of a frater unl organization could resist that appeal?

You need not fear to give him a quar ter-joy seldom kills outright-but you sure that a dime will produce : vide grin and an exaggerated bow. But most people consider it worth a narter to see that mouth widen into a smile which sets its owner's cars back an inch and causes his eyes to project like those of a crawling crab.-St. Louis

An Apple Eater.

During a visit to the south of England a gentleman was met with who related a dietetics. It was that for the last thre years he had lived on one meal a day and that meal was composed chiefly of apples! Further astonishment was evok ed by his reply to my question as to what he drank when he stated that the juices of the apples supplied him with all the molsture or drink he needed. This, he claimed, was of the purest kind, being in reality water distilled by nature and flavored with the pleasant aroma of the He partook of his one meal about apple. o'clock in the afternoon, eating what he felt satisfied him, the meal occupying him from 20 minutes to half an hour. He looked the picture of healthful man engaged daily in literary work .-- Chambers' Journal.

A druggist in Mscon, Ga., says: "I have sold a large quantity of Method's Friend, and have never known an in-stance where it has failed to produce the good results claimed for it. All women agree that it makes labor shorter and less painful."

Mother's Friend

is not a chance remedy. Its good effects are readily experienced by all expectant mothers who use it. Years ago it passed the experimental stage. While it always shortens labor and lessens the pains of delivery, it is also of the greatest benefit during the earlier months of pregnancy. Morning sickness and nervousness are readily overcome, and the liniment relaxes the strained muscles, permitting them to expand without causing distress. Mother's Friend gives great recuperative power to the mother, and her recovery is sure and rapid. Danger from rising and swelled breasts is done away with completely.

His fife For a Hand.

In a little town or village in Glouces tershire there is a church which contains the mortal remains of one of the old Crusaders. In moldering effigy he is depicted on the tomb, while by his side in cold eloquence is imaged the form of his wife. It will be noticed by even the casual observer that the female image is bereft of one of the hands, and the story runs that the Crusader, while fighting in the east, was made a prisoner of war and brought before Saladin, who, before executing judgment upon him, asked him if there was any reason why he should not be put to death. To this the knight replied that he was but young, and would leave a newly wedded wife, who would bitterly mourn his loss

"The love of woman is as a fleeting breath," retorted the sultan. "Your wife will forget that you have ever lived; she will love again and marry another." To this the sad knight could only reply that on her fidelity he could rest his soul. "Well, then," replied Saladin, "I will promise on my onth as a soldier that if this man's wife will cut off one of her hands and send it to me I will set him free to go to her." By tedious and slow journevings the message came, and she, in all piteousness for him who was her lover and her lord, caused her fland to be cut off and sent it to the sultan, who kept his word and set the Crusader free.-Notes and Querles.

A Wonderful Bird. One day a wonderful bird tapped at the window of Mrs. Nansen's-wife of the famous arctic explorer-home at Christiania. Instantly the window was opened and in another moment she covered the little messenger with kisses and caresses. The carrier pigeon had been away from the cottage 30 long months, but it had not forgotten the way home. - It brought a note from Nansen, stating interesting story is told of a duel between the Boor General Bothn and British sharpshooter called Sampson. This encounter took place during the wa of 1881, when the British first learned to their cost the deadly aim of the Bost marksmen.

Sampson had taken up a position b-hind a large bowlder and was preparing to "pick off" the enemy when a bullet from a Boer, cencealed like himself 356 yards away, knocked off his hat.

Waiting until he caught a glimpse of the Boer, Sampson fired. He was so satisfied that he had hit his opponent that he inconsiderately raised his head and instantly got a bullet in the neck. The Boer, convinced in his turn that his r tagonist was dead, rose to his knyes. The was struck in the shoulder by another of Sampson's bullets, but before he dropped fired again and lodged a shot in Samp ion's side

The duel continued until each man b. came unconscions. They were found later by their commades and carried off the field in a dying condition. Happily both recovered. 'The Boer was General Botha.

Will Interfere Nest Time

A Lewiston man was passing through a country district near the city one day. when off in a field he saw a boy throwing stones through the ginss of a descried house. The man's first impulse was to shout to him to stop, but then he thought that the boy's father should have taught him better things, and it was not his duty their wickedness. So he went home that night and began to tell the instance at upper table. His boy, who had been out a the country hunting all day, began to urn colors and finally broke out: "Well, pa, you needu't be sobont. An Extraordinary Island.

the bay of Plenty, New Zealand. is one of the most extraordinary islands in the world. It is called White island and consists mainly of sulphur mixed with gypsum and a few other minerais. Over the island, which is about three miles in circumference and which rises between 800 and 900 feet above the sea, floats continually an immense cloud of vapor attaining an elevation of 10,000 feet. In the center is a boiling lake of acid charged water covering 50 acres and surrounded with blowholes from which steam and sulphurous fumes are emitted with great force and noise. With care a boat can be navigated on the lake. The sulphur from White island is very pure, but little effort has yet been made to pro cure it systematically.

The Facial Angle

As a rule, the greatest facial angle be ongs to those of a refined and intellectual nature: the average is about 80 degrees In some of the Greeian statues it is a high as 100 degrees, but the Romans rarely represented it over 95 degrees. It was the Dutch connoisseur, Camper, who was the funct connoisent. Camper, who first used the term facial angle—that angle which is formed when a straight line is drawn from the middle of the forehead to the point of juncture of the nose and lip, where it is met by another imaginary line crossing from the opening of the ear. To form an opinion as to one's intellectual capacity, his profile or facial angle must be studied.

A Clever Bird.

A Clever Bird. Mexico has a clever hird called the molanarpes, which has discovered a new use for the telegraph pole. At the foot of the post this bird makes a large hole, in which it rears its family; somewhat higher up the post it makes an obserra-tory, from which bored holes permit it to observe the horison in every direction; still higher this sagacious bird makes its storehouse, and thus the pole serves as its house, fortress and warehouse.

Plows.

Flows. In Scotland in very ancient times the eight oxes plow was probably in general use, for the old land measures, as davoch and such like, were founded thereon. In the eighteenth century, in Aberdeenshire, the 10 or 12 oxes plow was, however, more common, but all such plows finally disappeared about the time of Waterloo.

Some men will buy two or three black derby hats a season, and these will always look rusty and old. Other men will buy not more than one a year, and that will never lose its deep and brilliant gloss,

"I'll tell you why it is," said one of the best dressers in town the other day. "It is because one man brushes his hat with a stiff bristled whisk, and the other rubs his softly with a piece of woolen cloth. The felt of a hat is such a delicate stuff that a stiff whisk applied to it has pretty much the effect that a currycomb or a rake would have on a suit of clothes. It wears the nap off, exposing the bare gray foundation ort order. "A piece of woolen cloth, rubbed over a bat with a circular motion that conforms to the grain, doesn't rub off the map at all, but keeps it lustrous and firm and of good color.
