That the management of these properties is an added care to those who have the conduct of New Bern's affairs, is not rprising, nor is it to be wondered at that the Board of Aldermen and Mayor have been kept busy in getting the water and sewerage matter, so far as it conerns the citizens of New Bern, into ome form, satisfactory to its perfect maintainance, and to the tax payers.

For adjustment in this water and sewer matter the city administration may be said to have had two matters to ar-

First, the provision of an adequate in come from water and sewerage rents, to carry on these properties, to keep the same in perfect order, and to provide for the interest and sinking fund account of rkable Skill Displayed by Pro-fessional Bee Trankers.

A QUEER TRADE

Talk about your queer trades," said a man from Texas, "what do you think of bee tracking as a means of making a living? I know several professional bee trackers who have never done anything else in their lives, and their skill is something almost incredible. What he the work like, did you ask? Well, I'll explain. Down in Bee county, in my state, where some of the greatest aplaries in the world are located, all boney is graded and marked according to the bloom from which it was obtained. For example, you may have your choice of cotton blossom, wild clover, horse mint and several other brands, each distinct in favor. This seems very mysterious to a stranger, beseems very mysterious to a stranger, be-cause the bees range wild over miles of countryside. But it was discovered long ago that the colony from each hive o duster of hives always draw their swee from some one particular flower and re giously shun the others. At the begin-ning of the honey making season the pro-prietor of a bee farm wants to know, of course, how much of each flavor he i to he sets the tracker to work. "The tracker, who is always a native Mexican, mounts his tough little bron cho, rides over to a row of hives, waits until a big, healthy looking bee emerges and when it flies away on its daily que he gallops along in its wake. Often the feeding ground is miles distant, and the feeding ground is miles distant, and the bee takes anything but a beeline. On the contrary, it makes long detours, frisks and frolies through gardens, loafs in shady groves and has a good time generally. But it is the rarest thing in the world for it to shake off its 'shadow.' How the Mexican manages to keep it in sight and to distinguish it from other bees it meets en route I have never been able to understand. The business seen actually to develop a special faculty When the bee finally reaches its destina tion, the tracker makes a mental not of the variety of flower and then returns home. Next day he verifies his observation by following another honey gathere and then labels the hive and proceeds t the next one. When his task is done the apiary man knows exactly what he can depend on in the several flavors. The trackers are-well paid; enough to let them loaf between seasons."—New Or-leans Times-Democrat.

THE SENATORIAL CONTEST.

The Self-Sacrifice and Pallhful Services of Pour Hen Make a Choice Embarrassing. Mr. J. W. Walfe Figures

Out That the Honor Belongs to Carr. The Reasons. To the Editor of the Charlotte Observer

Simmons, Carr, Waddell and Jarvis orm a strong quartette in each of whom are to be found strong points which arpeal strongly for support in the pending contest-but we cannot support all of them. And yet we must render a verdict. As the case now stands one of these four men will succeed Mr. Butler. To thousnds it is positively puzzling and embarrassing-painfully so. It will not be denied that every one of them is a patriot and worthy of the high honor. It is concelled that every one of them has been unselvish and generous in effort and sacrifice for our standard. Nor will it be gainsaid that every one of them is fit and leading in this contest because of valiant and conspicuous service rendered his State and his party.

But what shall our yerdict he? It is n t cowardly to hesitate in the face of these considerations and weigh the claims of each, It is rather manly to accord to the claims of each the calmest and fullest consideration. I have sought to do this. It was an effort-a painful but conscientious one with the result that my judgment and conscience tell me that Carr is entitled to the honor. I figured after this manner. Each has done what he contributing each in a different sphere. All of them, according to their means and ability, have done their duty as party men. Here I count them equal. The next question is, Who has rendered and his State? The answer to this determines our verdict. It is known to all men that no man in the history of North Carolina has ever done what Carr has done for his native State. The record of almost every educational institution between Murphy and Manteo bears testimony to his liberality, Every enterprise projected and every institution erected n the name of charity for two decades in the State is in part an expression of his philanthropy. The institutions of the Church without regard to creed, faith or name are stronger in North Carolina today because of his generous and helping hand. The Confederate veteran of blessed presence, whether in comfort or in rags, whether in the Soldiers' Home or n his lowly hut, is the unceasing object of his unfailing benefaction.

Nor is this all of it. All of it will never be paraded in cold type. Enough of it, however, is before us to justify the estowal of any honor within our gift o this peerless Carolinian. He could have planted his dollars otherwise and n other channels where they would have multiplied and increased more than thousand fold for his own aggrandsement and the oppression of his fellows. But he chose rather to plant and dispense them where they would feed the hungry, clothe the naked and visit the sick and suffering and where they would bear fruit in the betterment and the uplifting of his fellow men and in the dissemination of those things which help, enrich, ennoble and bless humanity. In the memorable year of 1870 while Jarvis was planning and figuring for the speakership of the House, while Waddell was doing the same for a seat in Congress and while Simmons was plauning for the sophomore class at college, Carr, unknown and almost penni less, was planning and figuring for a place in Blackwell's tobacco factory. During these thirty years since Waddell has spent eight of these years in Congress, Simmons has spent six of them in a Federal office and in Congress and Jarvis has spent fourteen of them in the office of Lieutenant Governor, Gover nor, minister to Brazil and Senator in Congress, while Carr has spent practically all of them in his factory. Surely we may award one honor to the mar whose head has been covered with the snow that never melts by 30 years of up remitting toll in the industrial and commercial field in which he has wrought so wondrously for himself, his fellows and his State, Surely the legal professionand we entertain for it a respect second only that we pay the sacred desk-can Commercial problems, problems of fl nance and problems evolved by our com plex industrial and commercial expan-tion demand for their solution the best talent in the business world. Condidone have so changed that we need in our greatest legislative body not only our greatest lawyers, but our greate and most successful men in the commercial world. Their training, their ex perience, their keen judgment and their practical and thorough mestery of con mercial affairs are as indispensible as the technical learning of the lawyer in the shaping and making of such wise legislation as will meet the just demands of the diversified interests of the wartous acctions of this great country.

Mark you, we have not even adverted to what Carr has done for the growth to what Carr has done for the growth, the development and the expansion of the material leterests of his State. His capital is today invested in more enterprises to more sentions of this State than that of any living man. He therefore, knows the people, their affairs, their needs and their conditions. in the old fashloned gig was a member of the reception committee and a resi dent of the town. "On the way to Cambridge Mr. Webster turned to his fellow traveler with an inquiry whether there was not some place in the neighborhood where they could obtain a drink. 'If you will drive a short distance out of your way to my ouse,' was the courteous response, 'l think I can promise you as good a
