AN ELECTION OF PERSONAL PREFERENCE.

The average Democratic voter in North Carolina cannot help but feel some what diffident in the approaching State Senatorial primary. The reason for this diffidence is at Syrup." It not only heals and stimulates once apparent to every observer and person familiar with the political contests in this State.

The Senatorial primary in November in which all Democrats are especially interested, possesses two features, at least, which vary from the customary run of elections.

The first feature is that this primary election is for white men, only, and compliance with the rules laid down by the tents? Democratic executives, gives the franchise or privilege of voting at the primary.

A second feature is that the coming Senatorial primary is one in which the contest is really among the voters of one political party, where outside danger, in the shape of the colored vote cannot enter in to any degree.

It is this exemption from all trouble from the colored vote, that makes this Senatorial contest a most interesting has failed. It may be taken in all condione, in that no party obligation rests tious and cannot help but do you good upon a single voter, every Senatorial candidate being in every degree a Demo-

Examination by a male physician is a hard trial to a delicately organized roman. She dreads the humiliation of it all.

She therefore puts it off as long as she dare, and is only driven to it by fear f cancer, polypus, or some dreadful sickness. Most frequently such a woman leaves a physician's offlee, where she has undergone a critical examination, more or less discouraged. This condition of mind destroys the effect of advice, and she grows worse rather than better In consulting Mrs. Pinkham, in person or by letter, no hesitation need be felt. The story is told to a woman, and is entirely confidential - to a woman who has listened to thousands of similar stories - and who is so competent to advise women because of vast experience, and because she is a woman. Her advice is absolutely free to all sick women, and her address is Lynn, Mass.

Read Miss Farrell's account of how she was sick, and was lead to health by Mrs. Finicham She is only one of thousands whom Mrs. Pinkham has cured this year.

Fomale Weakness Relieved by Mrs. Pinkham.

"I take pleasure in writing you a few lines thanking you for your advice. I did just as you told me in taking your medicine, and owe my life to you. You are like a motiver to your sex. I was awful sick, was all run down, and felt sick all over. I looked like a person brought out of the grave. My face was as white as the driven show - I was always tired after doing a little work, and would have to sit down. I had torrible pains and headaches, and my appetite was not good, also, troubled with shortness of breath. I could not go up one flight of stairs without being tire Land having to stop to get my breath - I was feeling just as miserable as would be - I took two buttles of your Veretable Compound, and cannot express my thanks to you for what your medicine has done for me."-Mass. #### the other passengers, looking both foolish and disgusted, resumed their seats. -New York Tribune. ORIGIN OF THE TERM "MOB" C. T. WATSON, Chmn.

Used In Its First Meaning In Time of Chaucer. As indicating the populace, proverbially fickle and easy to be moved (moblle, from Latin mobillis), the expression "the mobile people" is as old as the time of Chaucer, but in its later sense, that of the disorderly crowd, and in its contracted form, "mob," it is not older than the postrestoration pe riod. In Roger North's Examen, 1740, reference is made to the Green Ribbon club, 1680-2, and the writer adds:

"I may note that the rabble first changed their title and were called the mob in the assemblies of this clubfirst mobile vulgus, then contracted in one syllable." It was used hesitatingly at first by Dryden ("Don Sebastian, 1690), Durfy ("Commonwealth of Women," 1088) and Shadwell ("Squire of Alsatia." 1688), and Richardson points out that Dryden uses both "mobile" and "mob" in the sense of rabble, the former in the stage directions as the common word, the latter as if it had not long been introduced.

It is this very newness of position which should cause every voter to place himself where he can exercise his political freedom by thought of the candidates fitness, and after selecting a candidate feeling no constraint in voting for hlm

The more freedom that can be enjoyed by the voters in this Senstorial primary in selecting for themselves their candidate and voting for him, the greater the real success of the primary.

Any hindrance which shall prevent the full exercise of a personal preference at the Senatorial primary, makes the primary a failure, an injury to the future welfare of the Democratic party which stands responsible for the primary.
