Omeial Paper of New Bern and Craven County.

New Bern, N.JC., Nov. 30, 1900.

WORK FOR THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

The United States ceasus report for 1900, which gives the increase of something over 3,600 in Craven county's population over the census of 1890, may be regarded as a fair increase by some, but when the advantages in sell and climate in this county are considered a doubling in population during the ten years would not have been excessive, to counter balance the splendid natural advantages offered to all who would come here, for health or business.

On account of this very ignorance of soil and climate, there can be no great growth in population, followed by development of trade and commerce, in this section.

The neglect in presenting New Bern and Craven county to the outside world must be charged to the citizens of this

And further, this neglect will be specifically charged to the Chamber of Com-- merce of New Bern, because of its do-nothing-policy. Visitors to New Bern in the winter season find this place most enjoyable, from a climatic point of view.

But outside of this, very little, if any effort is made to induce them to make this city their permanent residence, or are there attractions offered which make these visitors anxious to return, outside of the good effects of the climate experiences.

Here is work, and plenty of it, for the Chamber of Commerce to make known to the outside world the splendid resources of this place, and to follow this up by making every inducement for those who come, to remain here, and assist in building up this section.

This is one work for the Chamber of Commerce, and there are many others.

HE STOLE A FORTUNE

AND YET HE WAS AN HONEST AND FAITHFUL BANK EMPLOYEE

Directors Did Not Think Bi Honesty Was to His Credit, and He Adopted a Novel Bethod of Making Them Change Their Minds.

They were sitting in the cafe of a big hotel up town and, being Wall street men, were discussing financial institutions. One of them was commenting on the case with which bunk employees at times steal money when he was interrupted by another of the party.

"Do you are that man over there looking in at the door?"

He pointed to a man with a commanding figure, keen eyes and an aristocratic ing figure, been eyes and an aristocratic bearing, who, as he spoke, turned away from the entrance to the cafe. "There goes a man who stole $000, 000 and never went to jall for it. Fur thermore, he is a thoroughly honeal map."

This paradoxical statement caused a general look of inquiry and a chorus of "How was that?"

"How was that?"
Then this story was told:
"That man—call him Brown, because that's not his name—was a trifle more that's not his name—was a trifle more than a year ago paying teller in one of the largest banks in the neighborhood of Wall street. He was quiet and reserved and apparently had few friends and ac-quaintances. He seemed to live for busi-ness alone, and his coworkers in the bank dubbed him 'the sphinx'.

"At the meeting of the bank directors one day the secretary read a letter from one day the secretary read a letter from Mr. Brown. In it he apologized for ob-truding personal matters upon the august lody, but he respectfully asked for a raise of salary. He was to be married, he said, and be felt that his salary of $2,500 a year was inadequate to his needs. The usual formula followed, in which he spoke of his long and faithful services and ended by requesting that he he ratied to $3,500 a year. No action was taken on the letter at the time. It passed into the pile of 'unfinished busi-

"A week later the directors held anoth-er meeting. In the course of it Mr. Brown begged for a hearing and renewed stroyn begges for a hearing and renewed verbally his request for an advance of salary. The directors, some of them crusty old codgers who had made their fortunes, did not take kindly to the prop-

'Yes, sir; I admit that,' said Brown, but there are certain moral obligations to be considered. For instance, I have had free access to the enormous wealth of this bank. Millions of dollars have passed through my heads, and my access through my heads are my heads and my heads are my heads ounts have been right to a penny. Had

'Oh, that's absurd, you know,' broke in another director. Our system here is so perfect that it would be impossible for any one to take a dollar and not be de-

"Brown smiled a bitter sort of smile and, apologizing for his temerity, ab-ruptly withdrew. It was noticed that on his way to his deak he paused a minute at the cavernous sperfure that marked the entrance to the vault. A few minutes later he left the bank and did not return. That evening as the accounts for the day were being balanced it was found there was a shortage of $600,000 in the funds. Instantly there was consterna-tion. The president and directors were summoned to a conference. Quick action was necessary. In the morning the news of the defaleation would be public, and practical rule stared them in the face.

"Early next morning Brown was in his usual place. He looked calm and as imperturbable as ever. The directors came in to discuss the best course to pursue

PRESENTS FOR HIS WIFE.

The Worm's Story of How the Final-it Came to Yurn.
"Hello, old man! What have you in all those bundles?" asked a gay, alry young bacholor of a careworn, solemn ooking young man as they met in oburban railway train.

"Tresents for my wife," was the set contloos reply. "It's her birthday." "Well, what are you bringing you wife in that package from your tal-lor's? gayly pursued the bachelor.

"Trousers," was the answer. "Yes, I repeat-trousers. Just you listen. On my birthday my wife got me three or four beautiful lace handkerchiefs, such as women carry at afternoon teas and such places, and a black velvet bat with high feathers, one of the three story kind that ob-struct your view of the stage in the theater. They looked mighty well on her, and she asked me if I wasn't having a nice birthday,
"Well, I didn't mind that very much, but when Christmas came I got anothor deal of the same sort. I gave my wife a pretty gold ring. She gave me a turquoise ring too small to go over any of my knuckles, and she wears it now next to the one I gave her. But that wasn't the worst of it. She got her sister to give me some after dinner coffee cups and my sister to make me a lot of lace dollies. That was all I got for Christmas.

"Tomorrow is my wife's birthday. In this package I am bringing her a pair of trousers which I had made to my measure and which I shall wear. In this parcel is a pair of the very best patent shoes, size 81/2, a good deal too blg for my wife; in this package is a liox of cigars, and in my pockets I have a new meerschaum pipe and a packet of tobacco. Now, I don't see how she can fall to have a happy birthday. Do you? I hope she'll enjoy it, for I want to get even for all the pretty things she has given me."-London Tit-Bits.

Literary Note.

The world has never known a more framatic situation than that presented by the foreign community within the walls of Peking while cut off from communication with their countrymen. During these long, doubtful weeks, the most interesting figure in this international tragedy was Sir Robert Hart, who for more than twenty-five years bas been as far, as a European might, the statesman guiding the affairs of the Chinese Empire.

On the '7th of October, the following cable-message from Sir Robert's London representative to the Editor of The Cosmopolitan was received: "Sir Robert Hart has sent for November number Fortnightly, London, and Cosmopolitan New York, an important article on slege of Peking, about fifteen thousand words, which I will post you to-morrow.' The MS, arrived in time to be included in the December issue.
