PROGRESS MADE, BUT TOO SLOWLY.

The census report of the Government gives New; Bern its fair proportionate increase of population, as compared with other cities in North Carolina.

The local development, increase of trade, building improvements, etc., for the past ten years show a very fairly healthy increase.

In fact New Bern grows, when there is comparatively little local off art made to assist its growth

This natural increase of population and material growth, with so little local effort male, proves that splendid natural advantages, and location of this city to be such, that with a united effort of the people, there could be a great growth of the place.

Individual offorts to advance the progress of New Bern, socially, educationally or materially, can be of but little value, unless such efforts are assisted by

There can be no community progress of any kind unless there is community work, and this work must be done by all the citizens, not by a few or a part of

If any citizen asks why is trade dull, why does not New Bern grow, let not the excuse be made except upon the ground of the indifference of its pec-

There is every reason why this city should and could grow faster. There is a local development and progress, but it

The cause is apparent, and the remed v is equally as apparent, and only needs application to work a cure, which will make New Bern a live, wide awake and progressive city.

ny local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies Deafness is caused by an inflamed conition of the mucous lining of the Eus tachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever, nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous sur-

HE WON IN A CANTER.

"LUCKY" BALDWIN MADE HISJOCKEY RIDE SQUARE.

The Horseman Used an Argumen That Made the Crooked Rider's Teeth Chatter While He Got Out All the Speed in the Animal,

In the lobby of a hotel the other evening a number of men were discussing sports and sporting men when the subject of nerve and grit came up. One of the party, a well known Californian who knew "Lucky" Baldwin in the old days, sald:

Baldwin was about the bardest man to be chiseled out of anything he set his heart on getting that I ever met up with. A whole lot of people tried to put it on him in business and other sort of deals, but none of these ever succeeded in catching 'Lucky' Baldwin sufficiently asleep to make their plans

"Horsemen still talk about a funny game in which Baldwin figured on one of the Chicago race tracks a number of years ago. Baldwin had brought his magnificent string of thoroughbreds to Chicago to make an effort to annex the swell stakes that were then on tap on the tracks in the windy town, and he got them home first or in the money in many of the biggest events. Well, he had one of his finest horses entered in valuable long distance event, and Baldwin was particularly anxious to win this race, not so much for the purse end of it as for the glory of capturing the stake. His horse just about figured to win, too, and Baldwin intended to 'go down the line' on the animal's chances, not only at the track, but at all of the blg poolrooms in the country. He stood to clean up considerably more than $100,000 on the horse if the brute got under the wire first. Baldwin's regular stable jockey was taken sick on the morning of the race. and the old man had to hustle around for another boy to ride his horse in the big event. From another borseman he bought for a big round sum the release of a high grade rider, who was to have taken the mount on a thoroughbred that didn't figure to get near the money in the stake race. Baldwin gave the jockey his instructions as to the way he wanted the horse ridden, and then, when the betting opened, his commisstoners dumped Baldwin's money into the ring in such large quantities that the horse became an overwhelming fa-

"A quarter of an bour before the horses were due to go to the post a well known bookmaker, to whom Baldwin had often exhibited kindness in less prosperous days, ran to where the old man was standing, chewing a

"'Baldwin,' said the bookle to the old man, 'there's a job to beat you, and you're going to get bent. They wanted me to go in with 'em, but you've always been on the level with me, and 1 wouldn't stand for it. The ring has bought up your lock, and your horse is going to be snatched."

"'Much obliged for telling me that, replied the old man. 'I'll just make a stab to see that the boy doesn't do any snatching, though." "Baldwin borrowed another gun from one of his stable lands on those days be always carried one of his own about as long as your arm), and with his artillery he strolled over the infield and took up his stand by the fence at the turn into the stretch. He hadn't mentioned to anybody what he was go ing to do, and the folks who saw the old man making for the stretch turn simply thought that Haldwin wanted to watch the race from that point of view. He did, for that matter, but he happened to have another end in view

"Well the horses got away from th post in an even bunch, and then Bald win's horse went out to make the run ning. The jockey's idea was to race the horse's head off and then pull him in the stretch, making it appear as it the animal had tired. Raidwin had instructed the jock to play a waiting game and make his bid toward the fin tah. The borse simply outclassed his company, however, and he didn't show any indications of leg weariness whatever as he rounded the backstretch on the rall a couple of lengths in front of his field. Baldwin could see, however that the crooked jock was sawing the borse's bead off in his effort to take him back to the ruck. When the bornes were still a hundred feet from him Baldwin let out a yell to attract his Jockey's attention, and then he flashed ed at the lock: 'Leggo that borse's head, you mon key devil, and go on and win or I'll shoot you so full of holes that you won't hold molasses!" "The jock gave one look at those two guns that Baldwin was pointing cure her of a frightful case of stomach straight at him. Then he gave Bald trouble and yellow jaundice. Gall stones win's borse bla bead, ant down to ride for all that was in bim, and the horse under him cautered in ten lengths to the good on the bit. As long as 'Lncky' Baidwin was on the eastern turf after that no lockey ever tried to yank one of his bornes."-Washington Post.
