Fair weather followed by increasing cloudiness and warmer in the forecast for to-day.

The Sunday School of the Presbyterian Church had its Christmas exercises on Wednesday night, in the lecture room.

The revenue cutter Boutwell is decorated for the holidays with holly and evergreens. The masts are topped off with large bunches and the whole effect is quite attractive.

The entertainment to-night is spectacular in character, therefore it is earnestly requested that ladies remove their hats, so that no one will be prevented from having a clear view of the stage on that account.

The Christmas prizes offered by C. J. McSorley, a child's piano and large wax doll, were warmly contested for, the successful ones being Miss Ruth Watson, who got the piano, and Miss Winona Willis, the doll.

The great sale of reserved seats for the Carnival of Seasons, which is to be given at the opera house to-night, indicates a very large audience. The curtain will be raised at 8:30 p. m., and it is to be hoped all be in their seats before that time.

Word is received here of the death of George McCotter, of Grifton, who died there Wednesday, aged about 63 years. Mr. McCotter was an ex-mayor of Grifton and had been farming most of his life. His death was caused from consumption.

There should be a large attendance at the foot ball game this afternoon, if it is the holiday season and it will do every one good to turn out and see the boys. The merchants would do well to let their clerks off so as to reach the grounds at 8:30 o'clock, the time the game begins.

The Christmas tree for the mission Sunday school of All Saints Chapel, took place on Xmas Eve, at five o'clock in the afternoon. It was a pretty tree of yucca covered with red berries, which glistened in the light, and was heavily laden with gifts for all, pink tarleton candy bags and apples and prettily decorated, lighted and strung with pop corn. As the children's eyes brightened at the sight of the laden tree, and their little voices swelled out in the joyous Xmas hymns, it was indeed a glad sight to see.

GEN. NELSON A. MILES.

Arrives Here on a Hunting Trip. Leaves At Once For the Trip Up Trent River.

General Nelson A. Miles arrived in New Bern yesterday by the morning train, accompanied by Dr. Daly. They came on invitation from Mr. C. P. Jerome to spend a few days hunting at the latter's lodge at Rock Spring on Trent river.

General Miles drove to Hotel Chatham, but did not register as the trip up the river was to be made at once. About 11 o'clock General Miles and Dr. Daly walked to market dock where Mr. Jerome had his launch "Phenol" in readiness at the end of the dock. The trucks came down by wagon and a large box with a corner made of open slats was opened by the General himself when two fine dogs leaped out and began frisking about. The box was afterwards put on board the launch, the dogs taking their place inside again. Several days will be spent at Rock Spring.

There was a small crowd of curious spectators on the dock to see the party off.

General Miles occupies a distinguished position as Lieutenant General commanding the United States Army. He was born in Massachusetts in 1839. Serving in the Civil war, he was wounded at Fair Oaks and Malvern Hill, and left for dead on the field of Chancellorsville. His chief reputation was made by long service against the Indians in the West, the last encounter being in 1890 with the Sioux and Cheyennes.

And There He Was.
"Yes," he said, "I think a man owes it to himself to choose a wife who can do housework. If necessary. Of course I wouldn't want my wife to work in the kitchen, but she ought to be able to do so. One never can tell what may happen. Girls sometimes leave suddenly, and sometimes are occasionally swept away. In my opinion, a girl does herself just as much honor in learning to do housework as in learning to play the piano or in studying 'Omar Khayyam' and—"
"Oh, Mr. Spoodiekita," she cried, "excuse me for interrupting you, but such a funny thing happened this afternoon. I dropped the dishcloth and said to myself, 'There, I know somebody will come this evening! And here you are!'"
—Chicago Times-Herald.

Barry of a Dread of Death.
Sir Lyon Playfair, who represented the University of Edinburgh for 31 years, naturally came in contact with the most eminent men of England, and he put this question to most of them, "Did you in your extensive practice ever know a patient who was afraid to die?" With two exceptions, it seems, they answered "No." One of these exceptions was Sir Benjamin Brodie, who said he had seen one case. The other was Sir Robert Christison, who had seen one case, that of a girl of bad character who had a sudden accident.
—Health.

The Discovery of Iron.
Teacher—Sammy, can you tell me where and how iron was first discovered?
Sammy—I can't tell you just where, sir, but I think I know how it was discovered.

Teacher—Well, Sammy, what is your information on that point?
Sammy—I heard by say the other day that they said it.

The Bishop Know Him.
A story current about the bishop of London represents him as a bold listener to a windy speech. Turning to a fellow sufferer, he said, "Do you know that speaker?"
"No," was the answer.
"I do," said the bishop. "He speaks under many aliases, but his name is Thomas Hot."—London News.

McClure's For January.

In variety and worth of contents McClure's Magazine for January is notable, as well for literary merit and for art. The first in a series of memoirs by Miss Clara Morris appears in this number, and by the graces of her writing the famous actress gives added value to a narrative full of interest. In this is told the story of her trials and triumphs on the occasion of her first appearance in New York.

There is a careful and vivid pen-picture of the Emperor William, that most interesting figure of contemporary royalty. From this study by Mr. Ray Stannard Baker the reader gains definite acquaintance with the man and the sovereign. A third article of merit is entitled "Great Achievements of Modern Bridge Building." Here Mr. Frank W. Skinner, C. E., relates many marvels in this most marvelous branch of modern engineering, and we learn just why it is that America leads the world in this work.
