SHOULD WEST POINT ACADEMY BE ABOLISHED.

The developments being brought out by the Board of Inquiry, in its investigations on the matter of hazing at the West Point Military Academy, reveal such brutality, that it brings up the question, whether that Military school had better not be abolished, especially if hazing is to continue, and be practiced.

No better illustration of the hazing methods pursued, as shown by the testimony, is to be depicted than was done by the Washington Post's cartoonist, who in his cartoon showed a group of cadets behind a high fence engaged in hazing another cadet.

The cadet being hazed is being held up by a larger man than himself, while another large man is engaged in the pleasurable pastime of punching the little fellow, who is perfectly helpless.

The code of hazing at West Point seems to be, to haze the weak cadets, by pitting against them older cadets who are in special athletic training for such performances.

Naturally, or rather unnaturally the investigations seem to give personal affront to the officers and cadets on examination, as to the hazing, who seem to think that to question into a little matter, such as maiming for life, disfiguring or killing a cadet, is a special prerogative of theirs, which outsiders, and especially Congress has no right to abridge.

Congressman Driggs, on the Board of Inquiry, has stigmatized the West Point hazing as "brutal cowardice," and so will every one say, who reads the details of the examinations being made.

Either hazing methods should be rooted out, or the Academy abolished, for the revelation of the methods pursued show them to be a disgrace to the Dark Ages when opportunity at least was given a man to openly defend himself in combat, against enemies, and not be assaulted by so-called friends.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O. Sold by druggists, 75c. Hall's Family Pills are the best.

Billious—A girl seldom marries her ideal. Oyalus—No, she usually marries some other girl's ideal, just out of spite.

Persons who suffer from indigestion can not expect to live long, because they cannot eat the food required to nourish the body and the products of the undigested foods they do eat poison the blood. It is important to cure indigestion as soon as possible, and the best method of doing this is to use the preparation known as Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. It digests what you eat and restores all the digestive organs to perfect health. F. S. DUFFY & Co.

Hoah! There isn't much money in medical occupations. Jox—No; lots of them can be bought for a mere song.

A Deep Mystery. It is a mystery why women endure Backache, Headache, Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Melancholy, Fainting and Dizziness when thousands have proved that Electric Bitters will quickly cure such troubles. "I suffered for years with kidney trouble," writes Mrs. Phoebe Oberly, of Peterson, Ia., "and I have paid me so I could not dress myself, but Electric Bitters wholly cured me, and, although 78 years old, I now am able to do all my housework." It cures Constipation, Improves Appetite, gives perfect health. Only 50c at C. D. Bradburn's drug store.

AN ACCURATE WIFE.

Now the Father Her Husband's Account to Be Brilliant.

"I'll tell you a good story, boys," said the host as there was a pause in the conversation. "It's about a lady too."

"That story about Mrs. Archibald, love?" interrupted his wife.

"Yes, my dear, the one I told you about the other day. It happened like this: I was going down Fifth avenue."

"You told me Broadway, my love."

"Yes, I think it was Broadway, but it doesn't matter much. At all events I was going down town when a lady dressed in a blue waist."

"I think you're mistaken, hubby. You certainly said pink when you told me the story."

"Well, let it go at that—it was either blue or pink—and a white dress."

"No, she was dressed all in blue, don't you remember?"

"The host gave his wife a look that came from a marble heart. "She kept looking at me—"

"No, my dear, you did at her."

"Well, confound it, we both looked at each other. Her eyes seemed familiar to me. She was tripping along, looking as fresh as a peach, when suddenly she slipped on a banana skin and broke her leg."

"No, Begining, her ankle."

"Then my son, Mrs. B., would you like to tell the rest of the story?"

"Now, don't get mad, dear, but do be accurate."

"Well, she broke her blessed ankle or twisted it, and I had the satisfaction of carrying her into the nearest drug store. She smiled a sweet smile at me—"

"I think you are mistaken again, darling. You told me she was unconscious."

"Yes, I know, but that was before—I mean afterward—I mean Mrs. B., you got me rattled. Please don't interrupt. She smiled at me some time, anyhow, and seemed to thank me in a mute manner."

"One moment, dear. You certainly told me she was visible in her thanks afterward."

"Yes, yes, say, am I telling this story or are you? I asked her if I should call an ambulance. She whispered, 'No, get me a cab, I got her a hansom!'"

"No, don't you remember, darling, an automobile?"

"Great Scott, madam—here, boys, let's go to the club."—New York Herald.

THE CARD BACK INDUSTRY.

Employment For Book Cover Designers—Tricks of the Trade.

Few wily players ever think of the labor and intelligence which are bestowed upon the backs of the cards with which they pass an evening. It represents an industry which gives employment to scores of skillful draftsmen and even artists. No one can tell why, but the public demands perpetually new designs on the backs of playing cards, and every year sees the issue of probably a thousand new backs. These vary in simplicity from lines of little stars up to the most complicated geometrical patterns, arranged in the most artistic designs. The designers use a system which reduces the amount of their work three-fourths. They draw merely one-quarter of the back, transfer that quarter to the quarter diagonally opposite and then reverse and transfer the two quarters to the two remaining. The design is usually drawn upon a large sheet of drawing paper which is anywhere from four to ten times the size of the card. After it is finished it is reduced by a photograver to the size required.

The advantage of this practice lies in the suppression of any error or even slip. A line which is inked too heavily at one point would look bad if left in its natural size, but when reduced to one-tenth the difference is imperceptible to the eye. The same thing applies to geometrical figures. When drawn, they may be a trifle irregular, but when reduced they appear to be perfect. The best work in this field is done by book illustrators and book cover designers. Some of them have been so successful in the making of card backs that they attend to nothing else. A majority of the designers, however, take up the calling as a relaxation or an additional source of income rather than a regular occupation. One artist with more ingenuity than honesty devised a back which could be marked by sharpers in such a fashion that it could scarcely be detected by any player who was not in the secret. This design was exposed a few months afterward and the plate destroyed. Never afterward did the manufacturer give him employment.—New York Post.

Dahlia and Bees. The dahlia is deservedly a favorite flower in most country districts nowadays. A row of brilliant red dahlias on either side of the garden walk is charming to the eye. The flower, too, deserves our esteem in that it blooms when most of the good things of summer are hastening to decay. We do not hear beekeepers telling stories against the dahlia nowadays, but it was decidedly a quiet former days. Authorities held that the cultivation of the dahlia was quite incompatible with successful beekeeping. The bees, it used to be said, were rendered drunk and incapable by feeding on the honey of those flowers. Some would die from the effects, while those that recovered made little or no honey when they arrived home at the hive.—London Express.

Be Cleared Out. "I have some, sir," said the English nobleman condescendingly, "to ask your daughter in marriage."

"Indeed!" replied the hard featured American papa. "Practically you want my daughter and her fortune, giving your title in exchange. Isn't that all?"

"Well—if you put it that way, yes. Is not my title more than sufficient?"

"No, I want something to boot, and if you don't clear out you'll be that something."—Catholic Standard and Times.

Now He Exploited It. "Do you know where your husband's society lodge rooms are?"

"No, but I have reason to believe they are at the top of one of the town's skyscrapers. At any rate he told me he was to meet me there last night, and I distinctly heard him mutter, 'Two high for me, I pass out.'"—Chicago Post.

MEN WITH GREEN HAIR.

A Fascinating Discovery Which Will Restore to Copper.

According to Professor L. Lewis, Berlin, a distinguished German scientist, the hair of some copper workers is almost certain to turn green sooner or later. The professor has studied the subject for years, and he tells the result of his investigations in the Deutsche Medicinische Wochenschrift.

"For nearly 250 years," he says, "scientists have known that the hair of persons employed in copper works is apt to become green—a curious fact and one which is especially interesting from a biological point of view. The general belief, however, that the hair becomes green after a few days' work in summer is erroneous. Workers perceive freshly during the summer, and the dust from the copper naturally clings to their skin and tends to give their hair a greenish hue. This green, however, can be easily washed off."

"The true green does not appear in the hair of workmen until they have been some years at the business, and neither by washing nor by the use of chemicals can they ever wholly rid themselves of it. I have examined over 300 workmen, and yet I found that only a slight trace of the copper naturally clings to their hair. I examined one man, a brass polisher, who had been 27 years in the factory, and I found his hair of a natural color. On the other hand, I found another polisher who had worked in the same factory for 40 years, and his hair had become green under such conditions. This was clearly proved to me by the discolored hair of a goat which I used to frequent a certain copper factory and which used to drink daily without any evil result the water in which the copper was washed."

"In the case of workmen the hair of the head and beard changes color more often than that of the eyebrows, and, as a rule, the beard changes first. On men with white or fair hair the change can be noticed more readily than those with dark hair. Another peculiar fact is that after some years the green may disappear from the hair, provided the workman is no longer employed at this trade. I knew one old man whose hair, which was very green while he was working at copper, became snow white soon after he ceased to work. On the other hand, a story is told of a workman whose hair, which was white while he was at work, became green within five months after he had stopped working."

"In the cases which I studied the green was spread evenly over the whole hair, which is curious in view of the fact that two other scientists who have been studying this subject discovered more green at the roots of the hair than anywhere else. The color itself, I found, varied from the lightest green to the very darkest."
