PLACE HUNTERS AS LAW MAKERS.

An editorial digest of the State's newspapers on the Legislature of 1901, would prove interesting reading.

These editorial opinions would show a wide range, from the perfectly satisfied view by the any-thing-Democratic-good newspaper, to the strong expressions from the newspaper which recognizes humbuggery and hypocrisy, and refuses to sanction them, even by its own political party.

A complete or even partial editorial digest on this subject is not available at this time, but the JOURNAL cannot help noting a few editorial expressions on the Legislature.

The Raleigh Post, after giving expression to a feeling of relief, that the new Revenue bill had many of its objectional and dangerous measures eliminated, says:

"Let all go to work now to build up the State. And especially let the business people, of all vocations, co-operate in putting down those demagogues in the State who constantly make war on legitimate enterprises of the people."

The Charlotte Observer, in an editorial expressing gratitude that the Legislature's Revenue bill was "Not as bad as was feared," advises:

"That all hands go to work now to build up the State's interest and sit down on the pestiferous demagogues who are trying to tear them—who never try to help, but always seeking to hurt some individual or interest, who live off the men of energy and enterprise and who are yet forever warring upon them because of the mistaken notion that the papers and blackguards are a majority in North Carolina and that the way to popularity is by attack on thrift and decency."

The Greensboro Telegram, in a comparison of the Legislature of 1899 and 1901, says:

"Speaking broadly, we should say that the difference between the Legislature of 1899 and the one just closed is the difference between statesmanship and politics. Carrying the analogy further, it could be said that the legislation of the two bodies might properly be characterized, the first, as a result of the consciousness of the people of the State that a crisis had been reached, as an expression of the united will of the State's best citizenship on certain questions, and second—that will having been accomplished—as the pleadings largely of special or selfish interests. By this we mean simply that the Legislature of 1899 operated on a high plane, the members were impressed with the solemnity of the situation, and sobered by the responsibility that rested upon them."

"They came in impressed with the duty of righting a great wrong, and they went straight for their object, without shadow of turning.

"The Legislature of 1901 came in under different circumstances. There was no great wrong to be righted, no overshadowing object to be attained. The members went to Raleigh without a special mission. There was no strong unanimity of sentiment impelling. The cohesive force of no single object bound them together, their constituents gave them no special mission. So the members who themselves had no axes to grind, fell easier prey to those who had. There was time to give ear to the special pleaders. Particulars, trifling, or local interests became magnified, and ever present hand of the politician found plenty of work, and the lobbyist ran the Legislature much to their own liking, and the men who had come to clear or plant to lay for future use, got in their work."

And taking expressions heard among the people and business interests, there is a feeling of relief that the Legislature of 1901 is past, and that the place hunters who were elected can no longer be law makers, to jeopardize the commercial and industrial interests of North Carolina.

Strikes a Rich Find. "I was troubled for several years with chronic indigestion and nervous debility," writes F. J. G. of Lancaster, N. H. "No remedy helped me until I began using Electric Bitters, which did me more good than all the medicines I ever used. They have also kept my wife in excellent health for years. Always Electric Bitters are just splendid for all made impurities that they are a grand tonic and invigorator for weak, run-down women. No other medicine can take the place in our family." Try them. When I was younger than I will ever be again," said the professor with a three story head and eyes as big as the telescopic order, "I was the victim of such intense mental abstraction that I removed myself entirely from the world of practical affairs. I was in the boundless realms of thought and held but fleeting attention to the active field of human action. It was necessary to notify me when I should attend my classes, eat my meals and even when I should retire.

"I was at one time requested to lecture in a New England village and agreed to do so. The theme was one that had received my best thoughts, and the mere prospect of delivering it was a physical pleasure. When I arrived at the depot my thoughts were concentrated upon the prepared address. I realized that my train was an hour late and that I must hurry, but beyond the mere fact of hurrying I did not grasp a detail.

"Drive fast!" I shouted to the driver of a dingy looking vehicle as I sprang in and handed him a $5 bill. "Spare neither horse nor whip."

"Away we went with a plunge. The carriage rolled like a ship in the trough of the sea. Street lights seemed a torchlight procession moving rapidly by the other way. Constables shouted, dogs barked, small boys chased us and business ceased that people might stand on the sidewalks and gaze. Up one street and down another we dashed madly. We took corners on two wheels, grazed telegraph poles and knocked over such movable objects as ash barrels and dry goods boxes.

"After half an hour of this bewildering experience I stuck my head out of the window and shouted, 'Are we nearly there?'"

"Where did you want to go, sir?" came the edifying answer.—Washington Star.

No Gentleman. "Name," said the girl in the red shirt waist and plaid skirt, "ain't be just a prince?"

"Oh, rats!" replied her lady friend, with dignity. "Any one kin see that he wears a celloid collar, and them trousers is $3 ones."—Philadelphia North American.

What we call "time" is but a single sun ray thrown across the infinite void of eternity, and "life" is but a floating flicker or mote that vanishes even as it becomes visible thereon.

Head Luck. Dasherway—Miss Pinkerly told me the other day that her doctor had put her on a meager diet, and I thought it would be just the time to ask her out to luncheon.

Cleverness—And did she accept? "Did she! Well, I should say so. She informed me that there was one day in the week that he allowed her to eat anything she pleased."—Detroit

HE SLEPT IN SECURITY.

The Tonic a Small Boy Used For Weak Feelings.

There is a 5-year-old boy in Massachusetts avenue who is of the blood of patriots. His grandfather was in both the Mexican and civil wars, and his father was also a soldier, consequently the little fellow has heard much "rag" talk in his short life and has exalted ideas of its protective qualities. He was the baby of the family till very recently and occupied a crib bed in his mother's room. When the new baby came, Harold was put to sleep in a room adjoining his mother's, and as he had never slept alone before his small soul was filled with nameless fears which he was too proud to tell in full.

"It's mighty lonesome in here, mamma," he called the first night after he had been tucked in his little white bed. "Just remember the angels are near you and caring for you," replied mamma from the outer room.

"But, mamma," he objected, "I ain't acquainted with any angels, and I'd be scared of them if they came rustling round, same as I would of any other stranger."

"Now, Harold, you must go to sleep quietly. Nothing will hurt you." "Can't I have the gas lighted in here?"

"No; mamma doesn't think it necessary, and it is not healthy." There was some silence for some time, and then the small voice piped up again. "Oh, mamma!"

"Yes, dear." "May I have grandpa's rag?" "Why, what for? I want you to go right to sleep."

"Please, mamma!" and a small night-gown figure appeared at the door. "Just let me stick the rag up at the head of my bed, and then I'll go right to sleep, indeed I will! You know the other night grandpa said at the meeting that 'under the protecting folds of the rag the weakest would be safe,' and I feel mighty weak, mamma."

He got the rag, and when his mother looked in on him an hour later he was fast asleep, with a fat little fat under his red check, holding fast the end of the "protecting" rag.—Washington Star.

What Forty Poles Make. A good story is told about a certain professor whose business it was to lecture to a number of students on surgery. During one of his lectures, the professor said that in his opinion the pole was of little or no value. To the astonishment of those present a Polish gentleman arose and, after accusing the professor of insulting his countrymen, demanded an apology.

The professor thereupon explained that the pole to which he referred was merely a term of measurement. The Polish gentleman, seeing his mistake, asked the professor to forgive his apparent rudeness. To this the professor smartly replied:

"You could not be rude, sir, even if you tried, for it takes 40 poles to make one foot!"

Quite Fit. "Mr. Uper," said the prosecuting attorney, "this is an action in which the plaintiff seeks to recover damages for alleged injuries received at the hands of White Caps. Have you heard anything about the case?"

"No, sir," replied the witness. "We'll take him, your honor." "Mr. Uper," asked the attorney for the defense, "do you know what a 'whitcap' is?"

"Yes, sir. It's a wave that's got foam on top of it." "We'll take him, your honor."—Chicago

WHY COUGH

Dr. Bull's COUGH SYRUP Always cures when others fail. Dr. Bull's Pills cure Constipation, 50 pills 10c.

Literary Notes. Ida M. Tarbell will tell in McClure's for April of "The Disbanding of the Confederate Army," an article of strong interest and, too, of historical importance. "Walks and Talks with Tolstoy," by Andrew D. White, Ambassador to Germany, will give a realistic picture of the great Russian genius. "Ploughing," by Martha McCulloch-Williams, will describe with delightful sympathy a day among fields and farmers in the South.

It is said that the powers of either man or woman are developed five-fold by working with a life-companion who is in entire harmony. The ideal wife as a rule has it in her power to make the ideal husband, but constitutes the ideal wife is discussed in an extremely able article by Lavinia Hart in the April Cosmopolitan.

Bohemian For April. The Bohemian for April offers a good supply of clever things by clever people. The stories are unusually interesting, and the verse is bright and dainty.

Flowers For Sale. The Daughters of the Confederacy, at Kittrell, N. C., offer at $1.00 per one hundred, delivered free anywhere, the best blooming and bedding varieties of violets. Lower in quantities.

These plants can be set at any time from September 1st to June 1st. Cold weather does not harm them, therefore, they can be safely planted even in mid-winter.

They are such luxuriant bloomers that during the chief blooming period they are a mass of radiant purple. They afford blooms during the whole winter season in the severest spells, and with a little protection with leaves or straw will bloom freely even then.

These violets are sold to raise a fund in mark the graves of Confederate soldiers buried at Kittrell. At any time from April to November a large basket of roses of largest, finest varieties, will be sent by express, safely packed in damp moss, for $1.00. Orders of entrance of really magnificent roses for a very small sum, and at the same time a good case, address:

THE DISCOVERER OF Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound The Great Woman's Remedy for Woman's Ills.

No other medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement.

No other medicine has such a record of curing female troubles or such hosts of grateful friends.

Do not be persuaded that any other medicine is just as good. Any dealer who asks you to buy something else when you go into his store purposely to buy Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, has no interest in your case. He is merely trying to sell you something on which he can make a larger profit. He does not care whether you get well or not, so long as he can make a little more money out of your sickness. If he wished you well he would without hesitation hand you the medicine you ask for, and which he knows is the best woman's medicine in the world.

Follow the record of this medicine, and remember that these thousands of cures of women whose letters are constantly printed in this paper were not brought about by "something else," but by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, The Great Woman's Remedy for Woman's Ills.

Those women who refuse to accept anything else are rewarded a hundred thousand times, for they get what they want—a cure. Moral—Stick to the medicine that you know is Best.

When a medicine has been successful in restoring to health more than a million women, you cannot well say without trying it, "I do not believe it will help me." If you are ill, do not hesitate to get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once, and write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for special advice. It is free and helpful.
